SMITH AND VARE FIGHT FOR SEATS AS FIRST FIREWORKS OF NEXT CONGRESS

Flood Control, Tax Reduction and Farm Relief Material for Other Skirmishes.

ANTI-THIRD-TERM RESOLUTION, TOO

Republicans Likely to Organize Senate, but Independents Will Still Hold Balance of Power.

By CHARLES G. ROSS,
Chief Washington Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 26.—By all signs, the first session of the seventieth Congress, which opens Monday, Dec. 5, will provide an unbroken succession of political skirmishes, rising at times to the intensity of major engagements. Whatever it may or may not accomplish in the way of legislation, it ought to be eminently satisfying in political melodrama.

This will be the "long session" of the Congress, of indeterminate length, as compared with the "short session" which meets in December every other year and comes to an end by fixed designation in the following March. In the present case, "long session" means a meeting that will last probably into the June, or right up to the eve of the national nominating conventions. Except for the 64 holdover senators, the Congress will be composed of legislators who received their commissions at the general elections of November, 1926, more than a year ago. Its assembling will be coincident with the beginning of a new campaign pointed toward November, 1928.

Party Balance in Senate.

With 238 Republicans, 194 Democrats, two Farmer-Labor members and one Socialist on the rolls, the House of Representatives has a Republican over-all majority of 41, a comfortable working majority for the regulars even when deserted by the Wisconsin insurgents. The situation in the Senate, where the Republicans have a nominal strength of 48 (including Smith and Vare) against 47 Democrats and one Farmer-Laborite, is markedly different. On its face, the lineup appears to assure organization of the Senate by the Democrats through the election of a president pro tem and captain of the committee chairmanships) if Smith and Vare are kept out. Such a result, however, is most unlikely. For one thing, the Democratic leaders are averse to assuming a responsibility which would be to their manifest political disadvantage in the coming campaign; for another, it is far from certain that they could maintain control even if they desired it. This uncertainty arises from the fact that Senator Shipstead, the Farmer-Labor member, is in the habit of voting with the Republicans on matters of organization. With Shipstead so voting, and Smith and Vare excluded, the Republicans would have 47 votes and the Democrats 47, and the tie would be dissolved by the Republican ballot of Vice President Dawes.

Influence of Independents.

On all matters pertaining to legislation, however, the Republican control of the Senate will be merely a paper control. When the Independent Republicans, who for practical purposes constitute a third party (the party which finished the effective opposition in the last Congress) are subtracted, the regular Republicans become a minority, subject to being outvoted by a combination of the Independents with the Democrats. These Independents comprise Shorthart of Iowa, Norris and Howell of Nebraska, Frazier and Nye of North Dakota, La Follette and Blaine of Wisconsin and on occasion, Borah of Idaho, Johnson of California and Couzens of Michigan. With this group rests the balance of power in the Senate. Even when reduced in numbers to the rock-ribbed members, it can block any Republican program with the aid of the Democrats. It would have wrecked and remade the Mellon tax bill passed by the last Congress if a majority of the Democrats had not on that occasion joined with the regular Republicans.

From the drop of the hat, the Senate will engage in a fight over the seating of Smith of Illinois and Vare of Pennsylvania. Reed of Missouri will head the movement

Flyers Brave Arctic Storm To Aid Wounded Teacher

Aviator Takes Doctor 115 Miles to Isolated Alaskan Village, Where Girl Accidentally Shot Herself.

By the Associated Press.

ANCHORAGE, Alaska, Nov. 26. Help for Miss Bessie Howe, Government school teacher at the isolated native village of Ninilchic, 115 miles west ofAncho rage on Cook inlet, literally came out of the air when a terrific gale prevented rescue by sea.

Miss Howe accidentally shot herself in the abdomen last Tuesday when cleaning a rifle. No doctor or expert medical care was available and no regular means of communication existed between the little Indian village and white settlements.

The Government radio men at Seldovia and Anchorage caught a faint amateur signal of distress, evidently sent with a spark coil, asking immediate aid. All boats at Seldovia, the nearest port, were held in harbor by a raging storm.

Pilot Russell Merrill and A. D. Haverstock, Government doctor, decided to take the big chance and hopped off in a plane equipped with skiis. The 115-mile flight to Ninilchic was accomplished and the airmen succeeded in landing on the ice of a small lake six miles from the village.

Through wisdom born of long service in the North, Dr. Haverstock took the girl by dog sled to the plane. The tortuous journey over the frozen Terrain and headwinds in Cook Inlet delayed the return flight and the plane was forced to land at the Anchorage air field in darkness. Three flares and the headlights of an automobile revealed the location of the field and Pilot Merrill brought the plane down for a successful landing.

The wounded girl is in a critical condition today in the Anchorage hospital with a fighting chance to recover from the blood poisoning which had set in. She arrived in Alaska in September from the Middle West. Her home is thought to be in Kansas.

WOMAN HIT BY AUTO DIES IN HOSPITAL

Mrs. Hanora Sehl, 55, Run Down Crossing Page Boulevard at Belt Avenue.

Mrs. Hanora Sehl, 55 years old, a widow, of 1438 Semple avenue, was fatally injured last night when struck by an automobile while crossing the street at Page boulevard and Belt avenue. She died six hours later, at midnight, at St. Luke's Hospital.

James Gunn, 5187 Kensington avenue, was driving the car. He was held for the Coroner.

Mrs. Sehl was crossing from the north side of Page boulevard, at Belt, when run down.

GETS DIVORCE IN RENO FROM CORNELIUS VANDERBILT JR.

Wife Obtains Decree After Former Publisher's Complaint Is Withdrawn.

By the Associated Press.

RENO, Nev., Nov. 26. — Mrs. Rachel Vanderbilt today obtained a divorce from Cornelius Vanderbilt Jr., former publisher, on a charge of desertion. A complaint filed by Vanderbilt charging cruelty was withdrawn. Mrs. Vanderbilt was not present.

Vanderbilt said after the decree was granted that he was "very sad." He added that he intended to reside in Reno.

The first suit for divorce, later withdrawn, was filed here by Vanderbilt Nov. 10, his complaint charging his wife discouraged his newspaper activities (in the failure of which he lost a fortune) because they left him little time for social affairs. No mention was made of a financial settlement.

Mrs. Vanderbilt was Rachael Littleton of Chattanooga, Tenn., a half sister of Martin W. Littleton, New York attorney. The Vanderbilts were married in April 1920, the wedding being attended by New York's most exclusive society who mingled with Mr. Vanderbilt's doughboy pals of his army days. He served as a private with the Twenty-seventh Division in France.

GOV. ZIMMERMAN IN DRY TILT

Wisconsin Executive Defends Prohibition Law at Meeting.

CHICAGO, Nov. 26.—Gov. Fred R. Zimmerman of Wisconsin and A. J. Cermak, chairman of the Cook County Board of Commissioners, engaged in a verbal battle tonight on the subject of prohibition, at a meeting where good roads was scheduled to be the topic of discussion. The occasion was Governors' Night at the Motorist Association of Illinois, at which Gov. Zimmerman, Cermak and Gov. Len Small, of Illinois, were the speakers.

Answering Cermak's statement that "prohibition does not prohibit anything but saloon keepers from washing their windows," Gov. Zimmerman declared: "You didn't have money by the millions before prohibition to build roads in Cook County, establish hospitals or make numerous other improvements."

PANAMA CANAL IN OCTOBER SET NEW RECORD FOR TRAFFIC

DECLARES DOG NOBLER THAN HUMAN BRUTE WHO SHOT HIM

Chicago Stock Exchange Man Writes Elegy Recalling Senator Vest's Famous Eulogy.

CHICAGO, Nov. 26.—To the famous eulogy of the dog voiced by the late Senator Vest of Missouri has been added an elegy, printed in a suburban paper, by a Chicagoan who found his dog dead beside a road, shot through the head.

"You reminded us ever of the true meaning of love, faith and loyalty," read the notice, submitted as an obituary by Mr. and Mrs. Charles T. Atkinson, the owners. "You taught us how to play, and played joyously with us.

"You filled our home with the comfort and happiness of a rare companionship.

"Dog, or spirit, you are nobler and more human than the brute who shot and killed you."

REMUS DEFENSE OPENS FIGHT TO PROVE INSANITY

Two Laymen Testify He Was Unbalanced; Alienists Say He Was Sane When He Killed Wife.

EXPERTS' REPORT IS PROVISIONAL

Bickering Over Presence of Doctors Results in Order to Sheriff to Restrain Counsel.

By the Associated Press.

CINCINNATI, Nov. 26.—Insanity today became the theme of George Remus' murder trial when the State rested its case and the defense plunged into the attempt to establish in the minds of the jurors that the defendant was temporarily unbalanced mentally when he shot to death his estranged wife seven weeks ago.

For a week the prosecution had emphasized a theme of cold-blooded murder, a killing as the result of a four-cornered plot in which Remus acted out his part of executioner. The prosecution rested its case shortly after the three alienists appointed by the Court had submitted a provisional report finding Remus was sane at the time he killed his wife and sound mentally at the present time.

Defense Calls Laymen Witnesses.

The defense had only an hour and a half left of the Court session when it got its chance to strike the first blow in behalf of Remus.

It immediately whirled into its major theme. It called two men who had been in intimate contact with Remus in recent months. Both lay witnesses, with no knowledge of the medical descriptions of insanity, asserted the belief that Remus was insane.

First came Leo A. Burke, lawyer, who for a period of six months advised Remus as legal counsel. Then appeared A. Lee Beaty, former assistant Federal District Attorney and ex-Legislator for Ohio.

The defense immediately plunged into an attempt to gain from Burke an estimate as a lay witness of Remus' mental condition.

The question brought on an argument, first between prosecution and defense and then Judge Shook and Charles H. Elston, co-counsel for Remus.

Elston denied he had gone on record as remarking upon Remus' present mental condition.

"The record shows your side is on record," said Judge Shook. "Co-counsel has gone on record. There are two of you, but we will hold to one plea. One destroys the others."

Wrangle Over Question.

"Would you be able to say from your observation whether Mr. Remus was sane or insane?" Elston asked Burke.

"Yes," was the reply.

"What is your opinion?"

An objection cut off an answer and the jury was sent out of the room. Prosecutor Taft maintained that lay witnesses first would have to state facts and then an opinion.

The jury was brought back and Burke testified:

"When mention was made of Mrs. Remus and Franklin L. Dodge Jr., Remus would become much worked up, strike his body, raise his hands above his head and, to my mind, appeared like a maniac. He would quiet down, apologize, and then go back and do the same thing over. It occurred twice in one conference. His face would become contorted."

"Upon how many different occasions did that happen?"

"There were six conferences."

Prosecutor Taft undertook cross-examination, the first time he had questioned a witness. He brought out that Burke had not taken steps to have Remus placed under observation and had not tried to have a guardian appointed. Burke said he formed the opinion that Remus was insane about the third or fourth week of their association, and admitted he had continued to do business with a man he regarded as insane for two to four weeks more.

"What type of insanity did you think affected Mr. Remus?" Taft asked.

"I thought he was mentally unbalanced, that was all," replied Burke. "I didn't know just what type." Burke admitted he had no medical knowledge of insanity.

Beaty gave it as his layman's opinion that Remus was insane. He had come in contact with Remus

U. S. TO ASK BURNS MEN TO TESTIFY AGAINST SINCLAIR

SUBPENAS FOR 75 WITNESSES DRAWN

Contempt Hearing of Oil Man, Confidential Associates and W. J. Burns in Washington, Dec. 5.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 26.—Springing a surprise, United States District Attorney Gordon today began the preparation of approximately 75 subpenas calling as Government witnesses nearly every person who testified during the grand jury investigation into the charges of tampering with the Fall-Sinclair oil conspiracy jury.

Gordon let it be known for the first time that it would use Burns detectives in an attempt to prove that contempt of court had been committed. The Burns detectives carried on the shadowing of the trial jury and their reports, seized by the District Attorney, disclosed that they had kept up an intensive surveillance. They even inquired into the jurors' personal financial affairs among their neighbors, and the Government contends that such close scrutiny of a juror is contempt of court.

Contempt Hearing Dec. 5.

Harry F. Sinclair, millionaire oil man and defendant in the conspiracy trial, which ended in a mistrial as a result of this surveillance of jurors; W. J. Burns, head of the detective agency; Sinclair's confidential associates, Henry Mason Day of New York and Sheldon Clark of Chicago; W. Sherman Burns, manager of the Burns agency, and C. L. Veitsch, Burns' Baltimore manager, have been cited to appear before Justice Siddons in the District of Columbia Supreme Court, Dec. 5, to show cause why they should not be punished for contempt of court.

The Government charged in its petition on which the citation for contempt was issued that Sinclair sent Day and Clark to Washington where they engaged the Burns agency "to spy upon, to bribe and intimidate and to do anything calculated to interfere with and impede" the Fall-Sinclair jurors in the unbiased discharge of their duties.

It was further charged that the purpose of the surveillance of the jury was "to impede, pervert and prevent the due administration of justice in the court either by corruptly influencing said jurors to decide the issue of said prosecution in favor of the defendants, or to disagree as to said issues" and that "in case such a course should seem advantageous to said defendants in said cause" to bring "about a mistrial" of the case.

Informer Among Witnesses.

When the grand jury witnesses testify at the contempt hearing the evidence collected by the District Attorney against those cited for contempt will be disclosed. These witnesses include Charles G. Ruddy, manager of the Burns Philadelphia office, who directed the shadowing of the jury, and former Gov. Pinchot of Pennsylvania to whom W. J. McMullin disclosed what the Government charged was a plot to bring about a mistrial. McMullin, who while working on the case as an operative of the Burns agency, became a Government informer and kept the District Attorney's office in touch with the Burns plans, probably will be the most important witness.

McMullin charged that at the direction of Burns executives he prepared a false affidavit intended to bring about a mistrial in the case by showing a juror had been approached by a Government employe. The affidavit was presented to Justice Siddons by a Burns attorney a few days after the case had ended in mistrial and formed the basis of the charge by W. J. Burns that the Government, alone, had been guilty of jury tampering.

No returns showing that certified copies of the citation ordering the respondents to appear in court Dec. 5 had been received today by the District Attorney.

Burns, his son and Veitsch agreed to accept service in the office of their attorney here Monday, but those for Sinclair and Day were sent to New York to be served by United States Marshals, while that for Clark was to be served in Chicago.

Clark's hearing on charges of attempting to influence the action of the jury, originally set for Nov. 5, was continued until Dec. 5 at the request of the Government.

DEMONSTRATION FOR COLORADO STRIKERS FAILS IN NEW YORK

Police Make Preparations for Radicals' Meeting, Which Turns Out to Be "Flop."

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Nov. 26.—What was to have been a great demonstration of radicals in support of the striking Colorado miners was held this afternoon in union headquarters, but it turned out to be a "flop" so far as excitement went.

Fifteen hundred spectators, obviously bored, listened to a dozen speakers attack President Coolidge and John D. Rockefeller, responded with a few faint boos and cheers, and drifted away.

Police arrangements, inspired by the clash of radicals and white-collar workers in Wall Street early this week over the Colorado affair, were elaborate. More than 160 policemen, mounted and afoot, surrounded the crowd. But their precautions were unnecessary.

The sole flicker of excitement came when Robert Minor, editor of the Daily Worker, called President Coolidge a "cool-headed, hard-hearted skinflint."

A telegram, protesting against the use of National Guardsmen to preserve order in the coal fields, was adopted by the meeting and subsequently sent to Gov. Adams of Colorado.

NAVAL OFFICER KILLED WHEN PLANE CRASHES AT HONOLULU

Lieut.-Com. McComb Was Escorting Steamer From Harbor; Liner Puts Back With Body.

By the Associated Press.

HONOLULU, Nov. 26.—Lieutenant-Commander Millington B. McComb, of the Pearl Harbor Naval Station, was reported killed late today when a land plane in which he was escorting the steamer Maloio out of Honolulu Harbor on its return trip to San Francisco, plunged into the sea off Koko Head.

Lieutenant-Commander McComb had been accompanied by Lieut. R. P. Kauffman, flying in another plane. The latter returned to Pearl Harbor and reported the mishap, but could not determine the officer's fate.

Spectators said they saw an object fall from the plane. The Maloio reported she was returning to port with one body.

McComb was one of the best aviators in the islands and one of the youngest officers of his rank in the navy. The officer's body was recovered from the water, the message from the Maloio said. A mechanic named Anthony accompanied McComb, and his fate was not learned.

When Commander McComb's plane fell the Maloio turned back and started the work of rescue. The Commander was flying a two-seated Voight plane.

6 ARRESTED IN RAID ON GAMBLERS IN HOTEL

"Progressive Realty Co." Rooms Outfitted for Gaming at the Laclede.

After lying in wait in the hall outside for an hour listening to muffled gambling expressions and the click of what sounded like poker chips and dice, six city detectives at 10 o'clock last night raided a three-room suite of "The Progressive Realty Co." on the fourth floor of the Laclede Hotel, Sixth and Chestnut streets, and uncovered a gambling den.

Twenty-five men were grouped about eight card tables and a dice table when detectives of the gambling and liquor squads rushed in.

The detectives had waited until someone came through the double doors. Then Kenneth McGuire, reputed to be the smallest detective on the force, scrambled through the doors in the manner of a football back going through a line.

Six men were arrested, among them one who said he was Edward Oxenhandler of 1614 Burd avenue, president and manager of the "Progressive Realty Co." Police had been watching him since he was arrested in the hotel last July, charged with possession of a racing handbook.

"Have you any lots for sale?" asked Detective Thomas Hunt, surveying the card tables and dice table.

"Yeah, lots," grinned one of the men, tossing forward a poker chip.

On a dice table in the center, detectives reported finding $169 and seven or eight men grouped around it. The others were distributed among card tables, of which there were four in each of the other two rooms. In one of the rooms, the raiders found between 400 and 500 decks of cards stored away and soft drinks in the ice box. They were refused access to a steel safe. The raiders also seized 132 poker chips and three pairs of dice.

The prisoners deny they had been gambling, said they were "merely passing the time" or "exchanging money."

German Foreign Office Calls for Conference to Block Poland's Threatened Invasion.

RUSSIAN MINISTER JOINS HIM IN NOTE

League Council Won't Meet Until Dec. 5 and Break Is Feared Before That Date.

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, Nov. 26.—In connection with a report of the overthrow of the Lithuanian Government, Reuter's Berlin correspondent says there has been no news from Lithuania since last night, when a Kovno message reported that proclamations had been posted about the city summoning the citizens to participate in an armed uprising against the Waldemaras Government.

The movement was said to be engineered by Lithuanian emigres under Col. Pletskaitis, who is alleged to have assembled his adherents at Vilna with Polish support, intending to march against Kovno.

It is also reported from Berlin that Premier Waldemaras in a note to the League of Nations declares he has positive information of the formation of an army of Lithuanian emigres, organized with Polish aid.

Special Cable to the Post-Dispatch and New York World.

PARIS, Nov. 26.—A conference of Powers to prevent war between Poland and Lithuania, or a Polish invasion of Lithuania may take place before the question can come before the League of Nations Council on Dec. 5.

Foreign Minister Stresemann of Germany, after a conference with Under-Secretary of Foreign Affairs Litvinoff of Russia, issued a statement urging such a conference.

"The two Ministers," his formal statement read, "recognized in common accord that it is urgent to avoid everything which might trouble the development of peace and to take measures necessary to settle present difficulties."

This places Poland between Russia, which has already issued a sharp note of warning to her, and Germany, which threatens to do the same. Other Governments in Europe are being stirred to the belief that it is necessary to relieve Poland and Lithuania from diplomatic pressure.

Vilna Question Still an Issue.

It will be difficult, however, to settle the problem outside the League Council, which has recognized Vilna as Polish. Vilna having been taken by Gen. Zeligowski's coup de force with Polish soldiers, Lithuanians have held it is impossible to accept this method of deciding the rate of their ancient capital. They have maintained a barbed wire frontier against Poland for six years.

The present difficulty started when the Polish Government declared Poles on the Lithuanian side of the barbed wire are mistreated by the Waldemaras Government. To end the strain, Poland urged Lithuania to open the frontier, but the Lithuanians refused because this would be tantamount to recognizing Vilna as Polish.

City is Key to Kovno.

President Pilsudski and Foreign Minister Zaleski of Poland have been in Vilna twice this week. The city is an important cavalry post from which Kovno, capital of Lithuania, could be captured in two days, and that is what is feared.

The French and British Ministers have urged both Warsaw and Kovno to let matters quiet down until the League Council meets. But Moscow's energetic note to Poland, followed by Berlin's intimation that Germany will support Russia, has created diplomatic pressure on Poland and Lithuania which other Powers consider dangerous.

Leaders of all parties in Lithuania have been drawn together by the fear of Poland and are seeking to get a Cabinet in which all parties will be represented, so that there can be no internal dissension during the expected crisis.

In Riga it is reported Poland is preparing for a coup about Dec. 15.

SAYS WITNESSES AT TAX HEARING DIVIDED $50,000

Representative Johnson of South Dakota Demands Congressional Inquiry Into Origin of Fund.

ADVISES LONGWORTH OF LAVISH SPENDING

Anti-Inheritance Lobby's Pay-Off Man Distributed $100 Bills at Capital, He Asserts.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 26.—An inquiry by the House Ways and Means Committee into reports that $50,000 had been used to pay expenses of witnesses recently appearing before it in favor of repeal of the Federal inheritance tax was demanded today by Representative Johnson (Rep.), South Dakota. He declared that if no committee member initiated such action he proposed to introduce a resolution demanding an investigation.

The South Dakotan said that he had advised Speaker Longworth of the report that "a well financed antiinheritance tax lobby" had been operated in the Capital. He added that he also had written the Speaker that if the committee, at the time of the recent tax hearing, had possessed authority to investigate, it could have ascertained what he said was a fact.

"Had this committee possessed legal powers," Johnson's letter continued, "it could undoubtedly have proved that the pay-off man of this group at the Raleigh Hotel recently had approximately $50,000 in $100 bills and paid off those hired to be in Washington make the demonstration before the committee.

Questions Committee's Authority.

"Had it legal powers, it could have shown that approximately $3500 was paid to Oregon men alone and that $700 to one man from Arizona. About $500 was, as can be shown, paid to men from my own state of South Dakota who were brought here to convince the committee that that State desired repeal of the inheritance tax.

"It could have been shown that $100,000 was contributed to this fund by one Montana corporation or individual interested in it."

Johnson, who is now undergoing treatment at Walter Reed Hospital here, said that in his letter to the Speaker he had argued that the recent tax hearings of the Ways and Means Committee were illegal inasmuch as a resolution to give the committee authority to sit during the adjournment of Congress had failed of enactment last session.

Johnson said that in connection with the reported activities of the inheritance tax lobby he had been advised that money was distributed so freely that in one case a World War veteran had been paid $490. He asserted he had been told the pay-off man, under the impression that the veteran had come from South Dakota to advocate repeal of the estate levy, paid him without question.

Green Attacks Tax Cut.

The Chamber of Commerce of the United States today was accused by Chairman Green of the House Ways and Means Committee of acting "without information on the subject in demanding a tax reduction of $400,000,000. His stand was similar to that taken by President Coolidge, who considers the attitude of the chamber concerning decreased taxes and increased expenditures absurd.

Green said that, in his judgment, the amount of tax reduction recommended by the committee, $225,-820,000 according to its own estimate, is now "too large to leave a proper working balance in the Treasury in the fiscal year of 1929." This figure exceeded by more than $10,000,000 the maximum of $225,-000,000 set by the Treasury.

Referring to the attitude of the Chamber of Commerce, Green said: "It seems to base its demand for a reduction of upward of $400,-000,000 on the fact that the Government receipts have on previous occasions been underestimated by the Treasury and also on the claim that it is immaterial if the reduction should create a deficit in the Treasury.

Estimates Now Accurate.

"It is true that the Treasury has heretofore underestimated the Government receipts and I was one of those who, at the time of the consideration of the former revenue bills, predicted that the receipts would be larger than had been estimated. It was, however, at that time extremely difficult to make correct estimates for the reason that the receipts from non-recurrent items, such as back taxes and indebtedness to the Government from various sources, could not be calculated with any degree of accuracy.

"We are now geting down to a normal condition so far as corporation and individual income taxes are concerned and the Treasury estimates for the last fiscal year were approximately correct on those items. On the items that are not current which may be paid at any time we are now in a position to make fairly accurate estimates.

"The committee not only heard the Secretary of the Treasury on the hearings but had further hearings in executive session at which the undersecretary, Mr. Mills, appeared as did Government experts who prepared the calculations which had been presented. The committee went over these calculations with the greatest care and at the end no one was able to point out any error in them."

Start Reading Bill Monday.

Only one-half of the proposed reduction will apply to the current fiscal year, Green said, adding: "Consequently we will have a good-sized surplus for that fiscal year. It is the subsequent years that must be provided for.

"The suggestion that a deficit is immaterial is one with which I cannot agree and I do not believe that the Chamber of Commerce would concur in it on reflection. It not only runs counter to the law with reference to the preparation of the budget but in my judgment is the worst kind of policy. If adequate information had been before the Chamber of Commerce I do not believe that any such recommendation would have been adopted."

Reading of the tax bill in committee will begin Monday and should take about four days, said Chairman Green. Minor changes are expected to be made. One question to be considered is the proposal to place insurance companies on a par with corporations in their tax assessments.

ASKS POWERS TO BAR POLISH-LITHUANIAN WAR THAT THREATENS

the Warsaw Government Thursday, as published here, points out that the preservation of peace depends to a much greater extent on Poland than on Lithuania, because it cannot be to Lithuania's interest, in view of her resources, to seek a solution of her claims through an armed conflict.

The note says that, while the Soviet Government has also called Lithuania's attention to the need of avoiding steps likely to aggravate the situation, it is convinced that the solution of the dispute can be reached only by peaceful means, and invites Poland's attention to the immeasurable dangers of any Polish attempt to infringe Lithuanian independence.

EARL OF DERBY'S DAUGHTER KILLED RIDING TO HOUNDS

By the Associated Press.

MELTON MOWBRAY, England, Nov. 26.—Lady Victoria Bullock, only daughter of the Earl of Derby, died this afternoon without regaining consciousness after suffering an injury while hunting with the Quorn hounds yesterday. The hunt was attended by the Prince of Wales and Prince Henry.

No one was with Lady Victoria when the accident occurred, but she was found afterward by her brother, Lord Stanley, lying unconscious under a low archway on which apparently she had struck her head.

NO CHANCE FOR CAROL TO RETURN, PREMIER DECLARES

Vintila Bratiano Says He Will Follow Policies Outlined by His Deceased Brother.

By the Associated Press.

BUCHAREST, Nov. 26.—Vintila Bratiano, who succeeded his brother, the late Ionel Bratiano, as Premier of Rumania, granted the Associated Press today the first interview he has given to anyone since his accession to power. While obviously deeply shaken by his brother's death, which he said was both a tremendous personal shock and an irremediable disaster to the country, he expressed fullest confidence of his Cabinet's ability to guide Rumania successfully through its present difficulties.

"Tell the people," said Vintila, "that whatsoever may befall Rumania because of my brother's death there can be no revolution, no serious disturbances, no change in the Constitution or regency. Our people are by temperament too philosophic, too hard working, too obedient to constituted authority, to be interested in revolutionary ideas.

"Rumania will be the last country to be contaminated by bolshevist theories. You must remember that all our peasants now own their own lans; therefore they are the last people in the world to want to upset the new order.

Says Carol Won't Return.

"As you see, perfect calm reigns; our army is completely loyal to the Constitution. There is no chance that Carol will return. The death of my lamented brother spelled the end of the Carolist agitation. If there had been active forces, civilian or military, working for his return, we would have found it out within the last 48 hours, and we would have known how to deal with it.

"Moreover, it can no longer be said that our Government policy is actuated by the fact that its head is the personal enemy of Carol, which was the constant insinuation as long as my brother lived."

Vintila Bratiano, who is strikingly unlike his brother in all respects except in his features, said he would continue the same internal and external policy pursued by the late Premier, which he considered had proved wisest for the country.

Refuses to Face Election.

"For 70 years," he went on, "the aim of our party has been national unity of the Rumanian people. That, indeed, is the cardinal principal of the opposition parties. We are ready to form a national cabinet which shall combine the best and ablest elements of all parties, but we cannot at this delicate juncture of the nation's life accept a demand for the immediate dissolution of parliament and new elections. This would throw the country into confusion and chaos.

"Our party has a majority in parliament. All the soundest and most influential elements in the country are behind us. Why should we, with our long experience in Government, suddenly relinquish the power to the inexperienced, untried peasants party, which, after all, has only the barest minority in parliament?

"As I have said, we are ready at any moment, however, to form a National Cabinet, after which we shall be willing to hold new elections. But for the present Rumania is at the crossroads and it is to the interests of the country that we follow the safe path outlined by my brother."

Praises America.

The new Premier expressed his admiration for America, with its tremendous energy and resources, its passion for peace, its charity. He reminded the correspondent that one of the few sentences his brother had uttered in his dying moments was his gratification that the American Minister, William S. Culbertson, was among the first to inquire about him when the Premier was stricken with his mortal illness.

"Mr. Culbertson always had a sympathetic understanding of Rumania's problems," said Vintila. "My brother felt that he could always count upon the American Minister's moral support and that of his country in Rumania's present and future trials."

BRENTWOOD IRRITATION TO MOTORISTS REMOVED

Boulevard Stop Sign Is Replaced by Automatic Traffic Signal.

The boulevard stop sign at the intersection of the North and South and Manchester roads, in Brentwood, rigid enforcement of which until recently was the bane of motorists driving through the municipality, was replaced yesterday with an automatic traffic signal, in conformity with an ordinance enacted by the town's trustees several months ago.

The signal, which was placed in operation at dusk, hangs overhead at the center of the roads' convergence. A left turn when the white light flashes is permitted, as at Big Bend and Manchester roads. Installation of the traffic signal was brought about by Edward J. Burke, member of the Board of Trustees and Police Commissioner of Brentwood, through whose efforts, largely, the fee system of arrests and fines, formerly in vogue, was abolished.

ALTON CONSTABLE PLEADS GUILTY OF LIQUOR GRAFT

Four Other Madison County Officials Indicted in Bootleg Inquiry Answer "Not Guilty."

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., Nov. 26.—Constable Harry Lessner of Alton, one of five Madison County officials charged with "shaking down" bootleggers, pleaded guilty in Federal Court here today in the arraignment of more than 100 persons indicted at Quincy last month after an extensive inquiry by the Government into bootlegging and protection "graft" in Madison County.

The other officials under indictment pleaded not guilty. They are Justice of the Peace H. F. Ladd of East Alton, former Police Magistrate O. O. O'Brien of Wood River, Constable John Kunneman of Granite City and Constable Columbus K. Thompson of Hartford. They probably will be tried during the January term of court.

Sentencing Is Deferred.

Sentencing of Constable Lessner and 21 others who pleaded guilty of conspiracy to violate the prohibition law was deferred by Judge FitzHenry, it being indicated that some of them will be used as government witnesses against those who today entered pleas of not guilty.

Lessner and the other Madison County officials, as well as O'Brien, were arrested last July after prohibition officials had begun their inquiry and estimated that between $170,000 and $250,000 in protection money had been collected in Madison County.

In warrants for their arrest Lessner, Ladd and O'Brien were accused of conspiring in the issuance of bogus search warrants and taking money from bootleggers on whom the warrants were served.

Enter Pleas of Guilty.

Under one indictment returned by the Quincy grand jury, Oct. 25, charging conspiracy to violate the prohibition law, 105 names were called this afternoon, resulting in 21 pleas of guilty and 40 pleas of not guilty. In addition, 23 others filed motion to quash the indictment. A number failed to appear in court.

Among defendants pleading not guilty was John Giannola of St. Louis, Italian faction leader and dealer in corn sugar, who was questioned in the murder of Constable Ahmer Hockett and John Blake in February, 1926. The discovery of their bodies on a moonshining farm at Horseshoe Lake in the subsequent publicity given bootlegging in Madison County caused the Government to make its inquiry.

Three Women Defendants.

Three women also were among those arraigned and one man pleaded not guilty from a wheel chair.

When several defendants whose names were not called did not answer, Judge FitzHenry ordered the Government to make all additional arrests and serve notices on all accused to appear next Saturday. Motions to quash indictments and changes of pleas will be considered then.

Some Likely to Change Pleas.

Fifty requests for permission to change pleas within five days indicated there would be additional pleas of guilty next Saturday.

Aside from Constable Lessner, pleas of guilty were entered by Joe Fisher, Homer Garner, A. W. Hoppe, Charles Holdsworth, Alfred Aldinger, Louis Rosenthal, Harry Schmuch, Henry Wolfe, Joe Schmerge, John Exoras, Joe Gray, John Henkhaus, Frank Jefferson, Joe Kogovsky, Michael Cramer, Lonney Lacey, George McGeffen, Carl Reis, Robert Sears and Hallie Williams.

It will then be up to Senator Norris to accept or reject the filing.

SWINDLE VICTIM GOES TO SEDALIA TO SEE SUSPECTS

Two Men Under Arrest for Attempted Fraud Will Be Viewed by W. E. Ebert, Who Lost $41,000.

William E. Ebert of 7111 Waterman avenue has gone to Sedalia to look at two men held there, charged with an attempted swindle, to find out whether they are the men who swindled him of $41,000 in a fake stock market deal at Springfield, Ill., Oct. 22.

The Sedalia swindle suspects are F. C. Coleman and Joe Thomas, the latter known also as Henry H. Edwards. Herman Lefholz, a farmer of Oak Grove, Jackson County, has charged they drew him into a proposition in which he was to be required to deposit $25,000 with them, ostensibly as evidence of his good faith in a stock deal.

At the critical point, Lefholz consulted a banker, and on his advice informed the Sheriff of Pettis County, who arrested the men. In a similar situation last month, Ebert disregarded a banker's advice, and put up the money demanded, to his subsequent regret.

One of the suspects, Thomas, is said to have negotiated with Lefholz for the purchase of 470 acres of land, and a meeting between them in Sedalia was arranged. A payment of $75,000 on the land purchase was to be made, and Thomas had said his uncle would be at Sedalia to provide the money. Thomas reported to Lefholz, the latter says, that his uncle was detained in a conference at Jefferson City.

Thomas and Lefholz, walking out together, picked up a billfold containing $200, a code book and a letter addressed to F. C. Coleman at the Bothwell Hotel. They went to the hotel and called for Coleman, who was so pleased at getting back the other contents of his billfold that he insisted on giving Lefholz the $100.

With this money in hand, a series of supposed deals on the stock market was begun, and purported winnings were run up to $75,000. Then Lefholz was told he could not get his share without first depositing $25,000, to show he could have paid if he had lost. At this critical point, he sought outside advice and the arrests followed.

BANK ROBBERS IN ARKANSAS SEIZE MARSHAL, TAKE $30,000

Lock Officer in Warehouse When They Loot Safe, Put Him in Box Car and Then Escape.

By the Associated Press.

BEARDEN, Ark., Nov. 26.—Posses, delayed because of the forcible detention of the Town Marshal, failed today to intercept five middle-aged men who robber the Farmers' and Merchants' Bank here of approximately $30,000 during the night.

The robbers, riding in an automobile bearing a Texas license, arrived in town about 1 o'clock. Seizing Tom Pierce, Town Marshal, they locked him in a warehouse. Later they took him to the bank and held him while they worked deliberately with an acetylene torch until they opened the safe. After gathering up the money, the robbers took Pierce to a refrigerator car about 50 yards away and locked him up. Pete Culp, an early worker, happened along and he, too, was placed in the car. Trainmen found the two men several hours later. Pierce immediately organized for pursuit, but by that time the robbers had escaped.

SYRIAN RUG SELLER STABBED IN ARGUMENT OVER RELIGION

Mohammedan Accuses Poolroom Proprietor of Wounding Him in Lung With Knife.

Sulieh Mahmood, Syrian rug salesman living at the Princess Hotel, Eighteenth and Chestnut streets, was stabbed in the chest last night after an argument over religion in a poolroom at 14 North Eighteenth street. A knife penetrated his lung and he was taken to City Hospital in a serious condition.

Mahmood, a Mohammedan, had the dispute over religion with Abe Batit of 1021 Dolman street, a frequenter of the poolroom, but he accused one of the proprietors of stabbing him. Police arrested the proprietors and closed the poolroom. The accused prisoner denied the charge.

English Baby Believed to Have Set World's Record.

NUNEATON, Eng., Nov. 26.—This town boasts one of the world's wonders in a nine-month-old girl, "Happy" Boulestridge. She has never been known to cry.

"Happy" is attracting the widespread attention of baby experts who are confounded because she is otherwise normal and theoretically it is impossible for a baby to be normal without crying occasionally. "Happy" laughs a great deal of the time.

TELLS OF FRICTION ON SHIPPING BOARD

Commissioner Hill Incurs Disfavor Because of Stand on Sale of Pacific Lines.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 26.—The controversy among Shipping Board members over the disposition of the Government's Pacific lines has reached a point where one member declared today he had received "intimations" of administration pressure as a result of his stand.

Commissioner Hill, who has contended the purchasers of the lines should be made to guarantee operation for 10 years, said he had received intimations of such pressure if he did not agree to a five-year guarantee. He said he had been told that his name might not be sent to the Senate for confirmation, although he added that no official word had reached him on the subject.

The board has had the proposed sale of the lines before it for nearly two months, and a subcommittee, on which Hill served, recommended at the most recent meeting of the whole board that the lines be advertised under both a five and a 10-year clause and that the board select the most favorable bid.

Three members favor a five-year guarantee of operation and three want the longer period. The seventh member, Admiral Benson, who is in Honolulu, was said to favor a 10-year period.

The lines, the American Australian-Orient, American Oriental Mail and the Oregon Oriental Mail, operate 37 ships to the principal ports in the Far East.

APPOINTS HIS WIFE AND SON TO STATE JOB ON SPLIT SHIFT

Roy A. McCoy's Office at Jefferson City Gives Double Instance of Nepotism Found.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, Nov. 26.—A double instance of nepotism, on a "split shift" has been found in one of the State Departments, in employment by Supervisor Roy A. McCoy of the State Bureau of Building and Loan Supervision of his son, Paul, 19 years, as a stenographer in the Bureau, while he is attending the Jefferson City Junior High School.

McCoy admitted his son was not spending full time in the Bureau, although he receives the regular monthly salary of a stenographer, but explained this was offset by the boy's mother staying in the office during the time the son was in school. She is not a stenographer. McCoy said.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

TAX BODY ALLOWS CLAIM OF $109,000 LOSS IN TWO YEARS

J. T. M. Johnston, Former St. Louisan, Wins Appeal From $43,000 Additional Income Assessment.

LOST IN 1919 AND 1920 ON 8 SPECULATIONS

Decision Declines to Recognize One Bad Investment of $5400 in Cigarette Manufacturing Concern.

Post-Dispatch Bureau.
20-22 Wyatt Building.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 26.—In the years 1919 and 1920, J. T. M. Johnston, then of St. Louis, more recently of Dallas, Tex., banker and former Baptist minister, lost $114,692 through bad investments. When he claimed these losses in his Federal income tax returns for those years, however, the Commissioner of Internal Revenue disallowed his claims and notified him he would have to pay $40.08 additional income tax for 1919 and $3389 for 1920.

Today the Federal Board of Tax Appeals reversed the finding of the Commissioner and allowed Johnston to deduct all his losses except the $5400 he put into the Theo Photiades Corporation, cigarette manufacturers. The board did not deny that he lost the $5400; it merely stated that the evidence did not prove he had lost it in 1919.

The board's decision stated that in 1919 and 1920 Johnston's principal business was investing in oil and mining and other speculative enterprises. It listed eight speculations which had turned out badly. Some of them began as far back as 1912.

The first speculation listed was a $10,000 investment made at the instance of a personal friend, in the Diamond Concrete Silo Co., which went out of business in 1919. The company had no assets and Johnston lost his $10,000.

Guarantor Fails to Make Good.

Johnston next invested in the Theo Photiades Corporation, which had been organized to manufacture cigarettes. The opinion stated that Johnston had been induced to advance the money on the promise of the son of a business associate that he would personally make good any losses resulting from the investment. The corporation became insolvent and had no assets. When Johnston tried to collect on the promise, the son refused to make good. A lawyer advised Johnston he could not force the son to pay.

The investment was made in 1914 and 1915. The company became insolvent before 1919. The board held that the evidence did not show when the investment became worthless.

"So far as the record shows, the loss may have been sustained many years prior to 1919," the board held in disallowing this claim.

Johnston's third investment, according to the decision, resulted from a loan of $32,750 to Henry Carter, secretary of the now defunct Bankers' Trust Co. of St. Louis. Carter paid the interest several years, but the collateral, 200 shares of the Bankers' Trust, had depreciated. In 1919, Johnston sold the note to his son, J. L. Johnston, then president of the Liberty Central Trust Co. of St. Louis, for $10,000. His loss was $22,750.

Johnston's largest loss in 1919 came from a $48,000 investment in the A. W. C. Mining Co., of Joplin. By 1919, the profits from the mine decreased considerably and Johnston sold out for $10,000. His loss was $38,000.

Lost $10,500 on Gas Bonds.

In 1919, Johnston sold bonds of the Greenville Gas Co., for which he had paid $28,000, for $17,500. He lost $10,500.

The losses for 1920 were not so heavy, although he did drop $20,689 in the St. Louis-Texas Petroleum Co., of which he was one of the organizers, in 1918. Johnston paid into this company an oil lease which he had bought for $9152 and in addition $848 in cash, making his total investment $10,000. In 1919 the company borrowed $10,000 from the National Bank of Commerce of Wichita Falls, Tex., and Johnston indorsed the note. In 1920, the well came in dry and the company was dissolved. The bank called on Johnston to pay the note he had indorsed, plus $689 interest. His loss in the venture was $20,689.

His two other losing ventures for 1920 also were in oil. In one he lost $4503 when he invested $8128 in a few acres near the "Burke District" in Texas. He took a note from two men, who later returned out to be financially irresponsible. The well produced a small amount of oil, but not in paying quantities. Johnston sold the well and the lease for $2625.

The other loss was suffered when Johnston joined with W. H. Peden of St. Louis in obtaining a lease of oil lands near Wichita Falls. The well came in dry and the lease was abandoned. Johnston lost his entire investment, $2550.

The opinion today did not state how much additional tax Johnston would have to pay as a result of

"So far as the record shows, the loss may have been sustained many years prior to 1919," the board held in disallowing this claim.

Johnston's third investment, according to the decision, resulted from a loan of $32,750 to Henry Carter, secretary of the now defunct Bankers' Trust Co. of St. Louis. Carter paid the interest several years, but the collateral, 200 shares of the Bankers' Trust, had depreciated. In 1919, Johnston sold the note to his son, J. L. Johnston, then president of the Liberty Central Trust Co. of St. Louis, for $10,000. His loss was $22,750.

Johnston's largest loss in 1919 came from a $48,000 investment in the A. W. C. Mining Co., of Joplin. By 1919, the profits from the mine decreased considerably and Johnston sold out for $10,000. His loss was $38,000.

Lost $10,500 on Gas Bonds.

In 1919, Johnston sold bonds of the Greenville Gas Co., for which he had paid $28,000, for $17,500. He lost $10,500.

The losses for 1920 were not so heavy, although he did drop $20,689 in the St. Louis-Texas Petroleum Co., of which he was one of the organizers, in 1918. Johnston paid into this company an oil lease which he had bought for $9152 and in addition $848 in cash, making his total investment $10,000. In 1919 the company borrowed $10,000 from the National Bank of Commerce of Wichita Falls, Tex., and Johnston indorsed the note. In 1920, the well came in dry and the company was dissolved. The bank relied on Johnston to pay the note he had indorsed, plus $689 interest. His loss in the venture was $20,689.

His two other losing ventures for 1920 also were in oil. In one he lost $4503 when he invested $8128 in a few acres near the "Burke District" in Texas. He took a note from two men, who later turned out to be financially irresponsible. The well produced a small amount of oil, but not in paying quantities. Johnston sold the well and the lease for $3625.

The other loss was suffered when Johnston joined with W. H. Peden of St. Louis in obtaining a lease of oil lands near Wichita Falls. The well came in dry and the lease was abandoned. Johnston lost his entire investment, $2150.

The opinion today did not state how much additional tax Johnston would have to pay as a result of the disallowance of the $5400 loss in the cigarette company. The main thing is that h will be allowed to deduct $109,292 on his gross incomes for the two years and will not have to pay the additional $42,482 assessed by the Collector of Internal Revnue.

Remus Defense Fights To Prove Insanity

in his capacity as a Government official.

The Jack Daniel warehouse "milking" case in St. Louis was under discussion when Remus went into a fit of raving, said Beaty. Another time Remus raved was when he was ordered removed from one jail to another.

Beaty admitted under cross-examination that no steps had been taken to have Remus confined because of insanity although the Federal laws made such a provision.

During one outburst of raving Beaty testified upon redirect examination, Remus had referred to a "conspiracy between the Government and the Egan gang of St. Louis to take his life."

"That was one of the things upon which I based my opinion," said Beaty.

Franklin L. Dodge Jr., former Department of Justice agent, was mentioned by Remus as one of those in the alleged conspiracy, the witness testified.

Remus' plea of transitory insanity was based upon his assertion that Dodge's conduct with Mrs. Remus drove him out of his mind.

Immediately after the announcement that the State had completed its direct case, Elston leaped up with the usual motion for a directed verdict of not guilty. It was denied by Judge Shook.

Elston next moved to have much of the State's evidence struck from the record. He said that the State had failed to prove that Remus acted as an agent for a four-sided murder conspiracy when he shot his wife. The Judge reserved his decision on this point.

Elston moved that the three alienists be removed from the judicial dais. They took seats just back of the Judge a few days ago.

Judge Shook explained that he had requested the doctors to sit with him. "I have advised with them from time to time," the Judge said, "but if either side objects to their presence here, of course, I shall request them to take seats elsewhere."

With Elston still explaining his position, Remus got to his feet and suavely and smoothly begged the Court to disregard Elston's request and to continue to permit "these honored alienists" to sit where they were. Elston was plainly nettled by the interference. Judge Shook also was annoyed.

He summoned Sheriff William Anderson to the bench.

"Sheriff," the Judge directed, "I want you to see hereafter that but one attorney for each side addresses remarks to the bench. That applies equally to the prosecution. If more than one attorney for a side arises at the same time, I direct you to use the proper force to stop it."

Elston withdrew his request upon Remus' insistence. The Judge, however, asked the doctors to find other seats.

Text of Alienist's Report.

The alienists' report was provisional, the doctors said, and was based upon interrogation of Remus and observation of him in the courtroom since the trial started Nov. 14. It might be changed later, they said. The report was not read to the jury. Judge Shook explained that he accepted it at this time for his own guidance. Had Remus been found insane, Remus would not have been permitted to continue as his own chief counsel, the Judge added.

The report in full follows:

"The undersigned, appointed by his court to determine whether or not defendant, George Remus, is and was at the time of the killing of his wife, to-wit: on Oct. 6, 1927, sane or insane:

"Basing our conclusions upon conversations with and examinations of the said George Remus, including our observations of him in the courtroom during the progress of his trial thus far, we are of the opinion that she said George Remus is now sane and was on Oct. 6, 1927, sane.

"This present opinion, however, is provisional and subject to modification depending upon further developments in the trial.

"Respectfully submitted:

"David I. Wolfstein, M. D.
"E. A. Baber, M. D.
"Charles E. Kiely, M. D.
"To His Honor Judge Chester R. Shook, Nov. 25, 1927."

Remus Thanks the Judge.

"I, from my heart, most deeply appreciate the kindness the Court has shown and the report of the alienists," Remus said to Judge Shook. He displayed deep emotion as he thanked the Judge for keeping the report away from the jury at this time.

Judge Shook, in filing the document, pointed out that the newspapers were carefully clipped of all information concerning the Remus trial before the jury was permitted to see them. "This can not come before the jury at this time," said the Court.

Judge Shook received the report yesterday and had filed it in his pocket overnight. Before he made it a paper of record, Judge Shook turned to a transcript of the proceedings of Nov. 4 last, when the present trial was set. He read into the record that Remus and his counsel, Elston, at that time had asserted unalterable adherence to the report of the alienists and declared their intention not to call on others.

Nevertheless, Elston objected to the filing of the report at this time. The report is based on only one observation and testimony and offered by the State and is not in any sense complete," Elston said. "We object to its being filed at this time, no matter what it contains."

Remus at the opening of court obtained a ruling that records of his wife's divorce suit against him should be made available to the defense. Mrs. Remus was on her way to divorce court when Remus forced her taxicab to the curb with his own automobile and shot her to death.

The State rested at 11:22 a. m.

The defense has approximately 100 witnesses to introduce. The State presented 23 in its direct case and has a great many, including Dodge, for rebuttal.

The court said at today's adjournment that he would take advantage of Sunday to study the record of the jury—choosing period for statements of the defense's position upon adherence to the report of the alienists.

Elston after adjournment said that at least two weeks, possibly more, would be required for the defense's case. Remus might be expected to be on the witness stand a week.

The court sessions were ordered shortened one hour today, running from 9 a. m. to 1 p. m. only.

FOUR NEW SNAKES FOR ZOO

Four specimens of Central American snakes—a green-headed whip snake, a Tamagas Verdi and two boa constrictors—have been added to the collection in the reptile house at the Forest Park Zoo.

They were given by Dr. Douglas D. H. Marsh, assistant supervisor of the Antivenin Institute of America at Tela, Honduras, and were brought to St. Louis by George C. Stohlman, Missouri Pacific Railroad executive. Stohlman and his bride, who was Miss Faye Salisbury, visited Central America following their marriage Oct. 22.

USE OF SCIENCE IN NURSES' TRAINING URGED BY SPEAKER

Vice President of Rockefeller Foundation Makes Address at Opening of Barnes Hospital Addition

A new era has dawned for nurses with the development of modern medicine and the increasing importance of public health problems, said Edwin R. Embree, vice president of the Rockefeller Foundation in his address last night at the opening of the new $500,000 11-story addition to the Nurses' Residence at Barnes Hospital, 600 South Kingshighway.

The nurse was once a mere helper to the physician, Embree said, and was not regarded by doctors as belonging to a distinct profession. The rapid advance of medicine, however, since the application of the germ theory of disease to healing, has made imperative the scientific schooling of nurses.

Embree, who has visited hospitals in many foreign countries, giving particular attention to modern nursing, traced the medical development of the past 60 years, and said:

"It is in a world of such scientific achievement that the nurse must serve. Her grounding in the natural sciences, her general scientific equipment, is therefore of the highest importance.

Scientific Training a Need.

"In certain parts of this country and in parts of Europe it is rather a shocking idea today that nurses ought to be given intensive scientific training with laboratory experience. The number of schools, it must be admitted, where modern training for nurses can be had, is astonishingly small. This is due in part to the shortsightedness, in this respect, of the medical profession. It is due also to the lack of understanding of the problem on the part of the public."

One of the outstanding features of medicine today, Embree added, was the part being played by nurses in Europe, Asia and the islands of the Pacific in public health education. In New Zealand, said the speaker, the death rate has fallen substantially because of the work of Plunkett nurses in educating the people. Similar work has been done in Siam.

"There is no excuse for further delay in carrying out a modern program of education for nurses," Embree concluded. "We emphasize today disease prevention as the most effective method of maintaining public health. Nurses must be equipped for this service. Hospitals no longer will be able to make use of the nurse in her training as today—it is the hospital that will have to give to the nurse in her training period. More and more she will be regarded as the medical student is regarded today."

Extra Cost Is Justified

Embree pointed out that $2,000,000,000 are invested in hospitals in this country and that $1,000,000,000 is expended annually for medical and hospital service. The scientific education needed by nurses today, he concluded, will add greatly to the expense of medicine, but the money will be justifiably spent.

Dr. McKim Marriott, dean of the School of Medicine, at Washington University, stressed the importance of nurses to the medical profession and asserted that Barnes Hospital nurses, when they had completed their training, were scientifically equipped. Harry B. Wallace, member of the corporation of the university, presided.

There were short talks by Prof. Claribel Wheeler, director of the School of Nursing; Prof. Philip A. Shaffer, chairman of the administrative board; Frank C. Rand, chairman of the board of trustees of Barnes Hospital; Mrs. Benoist Cartin, president of the Board of Managers of the Maternity Hospital; and Mrs. George D. Markham, president of the Board of Managers of the Children's Hospital.

U. R. TO PASS TO ITS NEW OWNERS NEXT WEDNESDAY

Rolla Wells, Receiver Since April 12, 1919, to Transfer Property to St. Louis Public Service Co.

"Rolla Wells, Receiver," will cease to function at midnight Wednesday, when the United Railways system will pass out of the receivership under which it has been conducted since April 12, 1919.

Federal Judge Faris yesterday issued an order for delivering three of the United Railways subsidiary companies to the new St. Louis Public Service Co. for operation at the end of the present month. Receiver Wells, accepting the order, said he would turn over the entire system at the same time. A court order will be issued for the turning over of the entire system.

This will mean the passing of the system, comprising all the St. Louis electric lines except the municipally owned Waterworks line, from the control of the Federal Court and its appointed administrators, to the new company, representing an amalgamation of the interests of the old company's security holders.

F. O. Watts, president of the First National Bank, and J. K. Newman of New York and New Orleans, professional reorganizer of bankrupt lines, have directed the new organization. A. L. Shapleigh, president of the Shapleigh Hardware Co., will probably be president of the new corporation, but Stanley Clarke, general counsel of the Reorganization Committee, is expected to be in active charge, with the title of executive vice president. Sam W. Greenland, formerly connected with interurban lines in Indiana, will be in charge of operation.

ASHBURN'S OUSTER DEMANDED

Upper River Association Wants Business Man as Barge Line Head.

By the Associated Press.

SHAKOPEE, Minn., Nov. 26.—A resolution attacking the regime of Gen. T. Q. Ashburn over barge transportation on the Upper Mississippi River and virtually demanding his removal, was adopted today at a meeting of the Minnesota River Improvement Association's executive board.

Declaring that proper transportation facilities are of great importance to the Northwest, the resolution declares the problem is not one requiring army training and urges appointment of a head with business experience and ability. The resolution charges that Ashburn is not in sympathy with development of barge transportation on the upper river, and declares that he "held up the use of $1,200,000 appropriated by Congress for additional equipment on the upper river for four and one-half months without any reasonable excuse, depriving the upper river of tow boats and barges for a whole shipping season."

SWITCH COMPANY ORDERED AGAIN TO STOP STOCK SALE

Action Taken Against Firm of Chas. M. Hurst, Under Indictment for $4095 Embezzlement.

The Hurst Automatic Switch and Signal Co. of St. Louis yesterday was ordered by State Securities Commissioner Stockard to cease efforts to sell its stock in Missouri. The order followed a report to him by the St. Louis Better Business Bureau that, although the company has lost its permit to sell stock in Missouri, its president, Charles M. Hurst, has made a sale in St. Louis County, and a salesman, W. M. Oldendorph, has made at least three solicitations in St. Louis.

The Hurst concern, which moved here from Wyoming in 1914, has authorized capital stock of $10,000,000, but its last financial statement to the Finance Department showed only $33.65 cash on hand. Sale of stock was ordered stopped in 1920. Hurst, however, asserted he had obtained a permit in 1914 to sell stock for the next 50 years, and, he argued, that permit could not be canceled. He sued the State for damages, and also sued to enjoin State officials from stopping his stock sales, and lost both actions.

Hurst is under indictment on a charge of embezzling $4095 from James P. Beardon, a disabled war veteran, for whom he was guardian. Hurst denied the charge.

JOURNEY OF MILE TO CLASSES BRINGS PROTEST BY PARENTS

A protest against some of their children having to go a mile, from one school to another, to attend manual training and domestic science classes, will be lodged with the Board of Education of Walnut Park by the School Patrons' Association and Mothers' Club of the community.

The parents complain that children attending the Walnut Park School must go to the Mark Twain School thrice weekly for the classes and that the time they lose from their studies during the trips is considerable.

It is expected a committee representing the parents' organizations will attend the December meeting of the Board of Education and suggest that, as a means of abolishing the trip for the children, manual training and domestic science classes be initiated at the Walnut Park School.

KILLS DIVORCED WIFE AND CINCINNATI DOCTOR

Man Opens Fire in Physician's Office as Woman Prepares Lunch, Then Escapes.

By the Associated Press.

CINCINNATI, Nov. 26.—Mrs. Artie McGough, 33 years old, formerly of Philadelphia, and Dr. Charles Dryer, 38, well-known Cincinnati physician, died tonight within two hours after they were discovered desperately wounded in Dryer's downtown office.

Both died of abdominal wounds soon after being removed to a hospital. Both said their wounds had been inflicted by Mrs. McGough's divorced husband. The man escaped and police tonight were searching the city for him.

According to their statements to police, Mrs. McGough had just entered Dryer's office with food for a lunch when Andrew McGough burst in upon them, shouted: "Now I've got you," and fired six shots. Two of them struck Dryer and another hit Mrs. McGough.

A man believed to have been the slayer was seen by an elevator operator as he ran down the stairs and disappeared on a side street. The operator said he called to the man and asked if any one was hurt. He replied that two persons on the floor above had been injured.

Clarence Smith of Covington, Ky., brother of the dead woman, said the McGoughs were divorced here five weeks ago. McGough was reported to have gone to Philadelphia following the separation and returned to Cincinnati two weeks ago. He formerly operated a patent medicine concern here.

SCHOOL GIRL DRINKS POISON MISTAKEN FOR MOUTH WASH

Lorraine Fields, 17, About to Make Shopping Tour, in Serious Condition.

While her father was outside getting his automobile ready for a family shopping trip, Miss Lorraine Fields, 17-year-old senior of Maplewood High School, went to the bathroom and drank poison about 8 o'clock yesterday morning in her father's home, 7252 Gayola place. She is in a serious condition at St. Mary's Hospital.

The girl's mother said that the family were about to go on a morning shopping trip, when Lorraine ran from the bathroom crying out that she had got hold of the wrong bottle. Mrs. Fields said she believed the girl mistook a bottle of poison for a bottle of mouth wash.

The father, F. W. Fields, is a traveling salesman.

MOTHER AND SON ARE KILLED BY INTRUDER

Yonkers (N. Y.) Police Lay Murders to "Ladder Burglar."

By Leased Wire From the New York Bureau of the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Nov. 26.—A man believed to be Westchester County's notorious "ladder burglar," tonight shot and killed Mrs. Clarence Rein and her 23-year-old son, Leslie, in an apartment house at 36 Allison Avenue, Yonkers, and escaped.

When police arrived they found a ladder leaning against an open window of the Rein apartment. The appearance of the apartment indicated the murderer had made a hasty search for valuables.

The "ladder burglar" has been operating in Westchester County for nearly five years, entering the homes of many wealthy persons and escaping with loot which, police say, has run into hundreds of thousands of dollars.

SCIENTIST SAYS WHITE BREAD IS MOST EASILY ASSIMILATED

By the Associated Press.

BERLIN, Nov. 26.—The respective nutritive values of rye bread, graham bread, white bread, rolls and other sundry bread stuffs Prof. Ernst Friedberger, the noted hygienist, sought to determine by experimenting for five months on animals at the Institute for Hygiene and Immunity Research in Dahlem, near Berlin. Without definitely solving this question, the hygienist came to the conclusion that food subjected to a long cooking process did not increase the bodily weight of an animal or person nearly so much as slightly cooked or raw food.

Prof. Friedberger says he has established the fact that rye bread is the best weight producer, the next being a mixed rye and wheat bread, folowed by graham and the other dietetic breads, while white bread and rolls produce little or no increase of weight.

Animals fed on the crust of white bread lost weight markedly. Toast also not only failed to produce the slightest weight increase, but animals fed exclusively on this diet rapidly declined and died. From these results Prof. Friedberger concludes that white bread is assimilated better and quicker than any other variety of bread, though he admits that it has by no means been scientifically proved that the assimilability of a food is to be accepted as a criterion for its nutritive value.

LIPSTICK BARRED FROM COURT

Berlin Judge Rebukes Woman for Using It at Trial.

BERLIN, Nov. 26.—Lip-sticks, powder puffs and combs do not conform with the dignity of a court room, was the noteworthy decision reached by the Berlin district judge, Dr. Wesenberg.

During a trial the judge noticed that one of the spectators, after having taken off her hat, started to powder her face and use her lipstick with avidity, finishing up by combing out her bob. Shaking with wrath, the Judge interrupted the proceedings and peremptorily ordered the lady to leave the room "for such unbefitting behavior in the dignified precincts of the court."

Congress to Open With Smith-Vare Fight

for the exclusion of both men, on the ground that their primary campaigns were tainted by the corrupt use of money. Reed will demand that the two be turned back at the doorstep, without being allowed to take the oath of office.

Unless there has been a wholesale reversal of position since the last Congress, he will be supported by all save a very few of the Democrats and independent Republicans. Led by Reed of Pennsylvania, a group of Republican stalwarts, setting up the claim that the Senate has no right to deprive a State of equal representation in that body, will move heaven and earth to save Smith and Vare, but it looks at this writing as if they are doomed to go.

There are various complicating features in both cases, including, in that of Vare, charges of fraud in the general election brought by William B. Wilson, the Democratic nominee, who has filed a contest for the Senate seat.

Tax Cut Controversy.

Tax reduction will come to the front immediately in the House and will furnish the theme of much oratory in both branches. Secretary Mellon has recommended a cut not to exceed $225,000,000. Some of the Democratic leaders, pointing to the Treasury's underestimates of surpluses in the past, are declaring for a much larger reduction, while the prevailing trend of thought among Republican progressives, such as Senator Norris, is in favor of shunting all tax-reduction schemes to one side and giving the right of way to national debt reduction.

Not only the amount of tax reduction, but the form of it, will occasion much controversy. Especial objection is made by the progressives—and by a good many regulars of both parties as well—to the item in the Mellon plan calling for repeal of the Federal estate tax.

The Mellon plan, as a whole, with its proposals to retain the automobile and other excise taxes, is described by some of its progressive critics as an entering wedge for the eventual imposition of a general sales tax. Such a tax was proposed several years ago by Senator Smoot, chairman of the Senate Finance Committee. The sales tax, which is the same in principle as the tariff tax, is declared by its opponents, among them the American Federation of Labor, to be a device for relieving the wealthy of their proportionate share of the tax burden. There is no immediate chance of its adoption in this country, but the progressives read a danger signal in the gradual whittling down of the taxes on the higher incomes, combined with the Treasury's strongly argued recommendation that all the existing excise taxes be kept intact "in the interest of a well balanced tax system."

Differences on Flood Control.

No problem presses upon Congress so insistently as that of providing an adequate flood control system for the Mississippi Valley. In his recent speech at Philadelphia, President Coolidge said that "flood control must be completed." With this view there is general agreement, but differences have already appeared in the discussions of methods. The "Missouri plan," sponsored by Senator Hawes of St. Louis, would link flood control with conservation of natural resources and the improvement of navigation, in a broad program to be administered by a commission of five members. This plan contemplates the expenditure of a billion dollars over a period of 10 years.

On the other hand, the view is strongly held by some Senators, including Caraway of Arkansas, that the primary end to be sought —flood control—should not be obscured by insistence upon related projects. Both the general policy to be followed and the engineering means to be employed— whether levees only or levees supplemented by reservoirs and spillways—will be the subject of extended debate. It is likely that some control plan will be adopted and a large appropriation for a term of years authorized, but with the initial actual appropriation held within limits that will not interfere with tax reduction. There is no immediate prospect of a bond issue such as that proposed by the Hawes bill.

Intimately tied up with flood control is the question of how far Congress should go toward the economic rehabilitation of flood sufferers. There has been no crystallization of thought on this knotty subject. One method of relief that is virtually certain to be followed, however, is the appropriation of money for seed loans or gifts of seed to destitute farmers. There is precedent for relief of this sort in a similar appropriation carried in the last deficiency bill (killed by the filibuster at the end of the last session) for advances to farmers in the Northwestern and the Cotton states.

Deadlock on Farm Relief.

The whole question of farm relief, of course, will be up again. Shot through as this question is with political considerations, it will inspire a veritable flood of oratory. That any tangible action will result, except along the non-controversial lines of promoting farmers' co-operative organizations, is most unlikely. President Coolidge has not altered his opposition to the "equalization fee" feature of the vetoed McNary-Haugen bill, while the champions of that bill continue to insist upon the fee as the sine qua non of farm relief. The deadlock is as tight today as when the last Congress adjourned.

Congress will again have before it the Boulder Canyon dam bill, which was filibustered to death in the last Senate, and the long-standing Muscle Shoals controversy. The presence of these issues, with others bearing upon the general question of public or private ownership of public utilities, has resulted in the formation at Washington of a lobby which claims to represent an investment of $17,000,000,000 of private capital in public utilities. This organization, calling itself the Joint Committee of National Utility Associations, has begun an intensive bombardment of Congress and newspaper men with propaganda against the Government ownership principle.

Passage of the Boulder dam bill, providing for the construction of a dam in the Colorado River for irrigation and power development, appears likely if the interested States reach an agreement respecting the distribution of water. In that event, the controversy over the bill will center around the question of whether the Government should operate the power units of the plant or lease them to private interests. This is the question which brings the power lobby into the picture.

Retention of Muscle Shoals.

The issue between Government and private ownership is quite as sharply drawn in the case of Muscle Shoals. Senator Norris, chief protagonist in the protracted fight over the Shoals, is for permanent Government ownership and operation, but would be content with the passage of a bill, proposed in the last Congress, providing, in effect, for a 10-year test period under Government auspices. Norris maintains that the Shoals project is primarily a power project and cannot be used advantageously for the manufacture of cheap fertilizer. He would have the Government sell the power generated at the plant and use the profits for the manufacture of fertilizer by steam power, under a process which has come into vogue since the Shoals plant was built.

Norris asserts that this is cheaper and more scientific than the process based on hydroelectric energy. The contention that the Shoals should be put to use for the manufacture of fertilizer, Norris maintains, is a smoke screen behind which private interests are seeking to get control of the project for power purposes. Norris is confident that he and his associates will continue to be successful in their effort to keep the project in the hands of the Government.

Minor Business Scheduled.

There is no end of other business awaiting the attention of the legislators. Prominent on the calendar will be the alien property bill, which probably would have been passed by the last Congress if the filibuster at the end of the session had not prevented a vote in the Senate. The House had passed the bill by a vote of 281 to 66. The bill provides a method for the settlement of American claims against Germany and for the ultimate return of the property of German nationals held by the United States.

Under legislation adopted by the last Congress, the incoming Congress is obligated to appropriate $75,000,000 for continuation of Federal aid to the states in road construction during the fiscal year 1929. Early passage of the public building measures left over from last session is expected. Further large outlays will be demanded for a program of naval expansion to be submitted by Secretary of the Navy Wilbur.

Anti-Third Term Resolution.

Notwithstanding the announcement of President Coolidge that he does not choose to run in 1928, Senate progressives have expressed their intention of pressing for the adoption of a resolution putting the Senate on record for continuance of the anti-third-term tradition. A resolution to this effect, declaring that any departure from the tradition would be "unwise, unpatriotic and fraught with peril to our free institutions," was pending when the last Congress adjourned. Senator La Follette was the author.

Another resolution which may provoke interesting debate is one by Reed of Missouri, proposing to adjudge Samuel Insull of Chicago and Thomas W. Cunningham of Philadelphia in contempt of the Senate because of their refusal to answer questions in the Reed slush-fund inquiry.

Various investigations will be urged. A demand is expected to be made for a searching inquiry into the armed intervention of the United States in the Nicaraguan civil war. A leftover resolution calling for an investigation of the sale and barter of Federal patronage by Republican politicians in the South will be pressed. Senator Walsh of Montana will call for early adoption of his resolution to investigate methods of public utility financing.

Such are a few of the items of business on the congressional program. There are many others. Since all this business comes up against a background of presidential politics, it is certainly not extravagant press-agenting to say that thrills a-plenty are in prospect.

Cuban Woman Colonel Dies at 116.

HAVANA, Cuba, Nov. 26.—Juanua Arias Verdecia, the only woman who attained the rank of Colonel in the Cuban war of independence died yesterday at the age of 116 at her home on the Uvero farm, near Bayamo, Oriente, according to a dispatch from that town. During the 10 years of war Col. Verdecia rendered valuable services in the field, leading her troops in person, and more than once engaging in hand-to-hand conflict with Spaniards. She joined the revolutionary forces with her husband, who was a brigadier. She took part in the Invasion of Santa Clara and participated in most of the battles of that campaign.

RYKOFF PREDICTS PUBLICATION OF "WILL" OF LENINE

Head of People's Council of Commissars Denounces Enemies of Stalin as Foes of Communism.

By the Associated Press.
KHARKOV, Ukrania, Nov. 26.—A defense of Joseph Stalin, general secretary of the Communist party, was made today by Alexis I. Rykoff, chairman of the People's Council of Commissars, in an address at the Ukranian Communist Conference here.

Rykoff warned the opposition to cease its efforts to break up the Communist party. He declared that the delegates to the fifteenth Communist conference probably would adopt a resolution to make public the "will" of Lenine, thereby robbing the opposition of one of its principal weapons.

Lenine's so-called "will" really is one of the last letters he left making suggestions for the future guidance of the Communist party. It has never been published in authorized form. Recently Leon Trotzky, at a stormy session of the Communist party in Moscow, before his expulsion from the party, read parts of the letter in which Lenine suggested that Stalin be removed from his post as secretary of the party because he was too "rough." Stalin himself took up this gauge, admitting that Lenine had written this, and declaring that his "roughness" was for the sake of the party.

Rykoff told the Ukranian Conference that the Government had reached a decision to arrest all persons carrying on terroristic propaganda, particularly for threats against Stalin.

"This tirade against the general secretary of the Communist party, calling him a dictator and Fascist leader, gave rise in circles sympathizing with the opposition to talk of the desirability of terroristic acts, aimed primarily against Stalin," Rykoff said.

He declared that the opposition had centered the main force of its attack on Stalin, thus masking its plans to break up the Communist party. He said that the opposition not only had published and spread illegal circulars and pamphlets, but recently had issued a daily bulletin resembling a newspaper.

Rakovsky Assails Soviet Policy in China, England, France.
By the Associated Press.
MOSCOW, Nov. 26.—Christian Rakovsky, former Soviet ambassador to France, who appears to have become spokesman for the opposition since the expulsion of Leon Trotzky from the Communist party, today attacked the foreign policy of the Soviet Government at a conference of the Moscow Communist party.

Rakovsky designated as "three of its greatest errors" the placing the fate of Chinese revolution in the hands of Gen. Chiang Kai-Shek; co-operation with Albert Pursell, the British labor leader and leader of the British general strike of 1926, and loss of initiative in the Russo-French debt negotiations.

Chiang Kai-Shek, at one time generalissimo of all the nationalist parties in China, turned against the radical elements within the Hankow Government and led a split which resulted in the setting up of a second nationalist government at Nanking. The split ended a powerful drive northward which the Nationalists were then making on Pekin, and the Nationalist leaders have been at Loggerheads ever since.

Albert A. Pursell was one of the leading members of the strike organization committee at the time of the British general strike. Previously he had visited to Soviet Russia as a trade union delegate to study conditions and returned with a favorable report. In 1925 the American Federation of Labor rejected his appeal for aid to the soviet.

The Russo-French debt negotiations several months ago appeared nearing some kind of an agreement, but were upset by a Soviet announcement that to all intents and purposes an agreement had been reached by which Soviet Russia was to get certain credits from France. The French disavowed this and the negotiations have been up in the air ever since.

Gallstone Troubles Explained

Kansas City Doctor Gives Good Advice to Sufferers From Gallstones of the Liver

Gallstone sufferers, especially those whose suffering has about driven them to an operation will welcome the joyous news that a large percentage of cases of this painful, health destroying disease may now be successfully treated without surgery.

To Dr. E. E. Paddock, a Kansas City physician, who for 30 years has specialized in the treatment of diseases of the gall bladder, gall ducts and the liver, belongs the credit for a remarkable home medical treatment that sufferers the country over declare has brought relief and has made hundreds of operations unnecessary.

According to Dr. Paddock, surgery is resorted to in many cases where medical treatment would be effective. It is Dr. Paddock's claim the knife should be used only in emergency cases, and that surgery removes only the effect—the cause remaining—unless medical treatment is taken to correct the trouble. Dr. Paddock is a strong advocate of the use of medicines to escape the necessity and danger of an operation. His book fully explains his method of treatment and offers convincing evidence of its efficiency.

Anyone who is afflicted or who is suspicious of any catarrhal inflammation and infection of the gall bladder or gall ducts associated with gallstones of the liver, should send for Dr. Paddock's booklet, "The Liver and Gall Bladder." A copy will be sent free and postpaid to any who request it. In this booklet the Doctor tells the story of his long experience in treating catarrhal conditions associated with gallstones of the liver with medicine. He explains the symptoms by which the disease may be recognized before it reaches an acute stage — and why these symptoms, unheeded, may cause indescribable suffering and ill health. Just fill in and mail the coupon below and the booklet will be sent free and without any obligation whatsoever Send for it today.

TORNADO RELIEF WORK EXPECTED TO END FEB. 1

Red Cross Committee Has Disposed of 2550 of the Approximately 8500 Applications for Aid.

Nearly two months after the tornado of Sept. 29, the Red Cross Citizen's Tornado Relief Committee has disposed of 2550 of the approximately 8500 cases in which rehabilitation is required, and has spent about $257,000 of the $900,000 contributed by the people of St. Louis for relief and rehabilitation.

Of the amount expended, about $57,000 went for emergency relief in the period immediately following the disaster, and $200,000 to the work of rehabilitation. The amount of money expended in relief was smaller than had been expected, because of the large amount of supplies and service contributed, in addition to the cash gifts.

Entire $900,000 Needed.

The work is being handled on a "case" basis, each case representing a family, and the total of 8500 cases represents about 30,000 persons of all ages. The entire $900,000 contributed will be needed for the work of rehabilitation, it is now thought.

Bert H. Lang, chairman of the Relief Committee, who gave out the foregoing figures yesterday, said that it is expected to complete the work by Feb. 1, 1928. At present, he said, 900 cases or more are being handled each week, and the awards are being made at the rate of about $300,000 a month. Henry M. Baker, National Red Cross director of disaster relief, supports Lang in the statement that the work is progressing at the customary speed of Red Cross disaster work. Baker has been here ever since the tornado.

Answers Complaints of Slowness.

Lang said many complaints ahd been made of the apparent slowness with which the work has progressed.

"But we are the guardians of the public trust," he said, "and we must spend the money contributed by the public to the best permanent advantage of the tornado sufferers. We must not give it away foolishly on a luxury basis, but payments must be on a basis of actual need, and the future welfare of the persons helped. We have investigated many of the complaints and have found little foundation for most of them.

"We shall be able to clear up cases more quickly from now on, and have begun on the building rehabilitation plans, in which the larger awards are made. Where persons owned their own homes, and had no insurance, the Red Cross will build or aid in building their homes anew if investigation proves this is necessary for the complete rehabilitation of the family. In some few cases the Red Cross will rebuild small stores when the livelihood of the family is concerned in the business conducted there.

About $250,000 for Building.

"It is estimated that about $250,000 of the relief fund will be spent on rebuilding. Other rehabilitation work is of wide range, and include supplying furniture, vocational tools or instruments, paying rent where the head of the family was disabled by the tornado, establishing trust funds for widows and orphans until the children can become self-supporting, paying the hospital bills of men or women who will be hospital-bound for long periods because of injuries suffered in the tornado and providing for the families of these persons."

Baker, since September, 1919, has directed relief operations in 134 disasters, including the Mississippi Valley flood, the Florida hurricane, Murphysboro tornado, Cuban tornado, and the Lorain disaster. He said of the local situation.

"The relief work is progressing as rapidly as customary under these conditions. The citizens of St. Louis can look for a marked acceleration of case clearings, because the most needy are being dealt with first. It is my experience in disaster relief that the number of cases closed per week increases rapidly as the work progresses.

Difficulties of the Work.

"In the gigantic task of rehabilitating more than 8000 St. Louis families, the attempt is to develop the most practical plan for each family, and then the Red Cross makes an award, if necessary to help the family get started.

"The social workers first assemble all the necessary facts about the family, such as its resources, debts, losses, etc. These facts are verified through the proper sources. If a need is disclosed, an award is made to meet it, and this is followed by the family's actually spending the award with the merchant of its choice. Credit with the local merchant and not cash direct to the family is the customary procedure."

Nearly 1200 Tornado Repair Jobs Have Been Begun.

Building permits for remodeling and repair of buildings damaged by the tornado of Sept. 29, issued up to yesterday, aggregate 1182 in number and $1,148,714 in stated value of the construction work. These include 82 permits issued last week, for repairs amounting to $137,155.

OPEN VERDICT IN DEATH OF MAN FROM FRACTURED SKULL

Coroner's Inquest Fails to Develop Any Clew as to How Gregory Conez Was Injured.

Police are investigating the case of Gregory Conez, 54 years old, of 2326 O'Fallon street, who died at City Hospital Wednesday from a fractured skull and concussion of the brain. An autopsy report of Dr. W. M. Winn showed that Conez, who was janitor at the Building Laborers' Union hall at 3603 Easton avenue, had suffered his injuries from at least 12 blows on the head by a blunt instrument. An open verdict was returned by a Coroner's jury yesterday.

Conez was found unconscious in front of 3533 Evans avenue at 5 p. m. Monday and was placed in a cell in the Dayton Street Police Station after City Hospital physicians had treated him for alcoholism and injuries to the head which they said were bruises. When a guard found him unconscious in his cell the next morning he was rushed to the hospital, where physicians then said he had suffered a fractured skull.

There was no clew for the Coroner as to the manner in which Conez suffered his injuries.

WIFE DIVORCES TOD SLOAN

Me 1 Cruelty Charged Against Former Jockey.

By the Associated Press.

SAN DIEGO, Cal., Nov. 26.—Elizabeth Sloan today obtained an interlocutory decree of divorce from Tod Sloan, former noted jockey. Sloan was not present to hear his young wife testify to the mental cruelty she said had been inflicted by his habitual intemperance. The decree was given her by default, together with custody of Ann, their 5-year-old daughter. The Sloans were married in Los Angeles June 8, 1920, the wife testified, and parted in San Diego last July 15.

Sloan was the riding sensation of the turf more than two decades ago, later going to England, where he had phenomenal success in the saddle. In recent years he has been a familiar figure at the Tijuana races. In the off season he engaged in real estate work here.

Anti-McAdoo Leader Declares He Will Put New Yorker on Ballot.

By the Associated Press.

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 26.—Accepting the challenge of John B. Elliott, prominent California Democrat, to bring the wet and dry question to an issue by putting the name of Gov. Smith of New York on the ballot in the State's next primary election, Justus S. Wardell declared today that Smith's name would be formally presented to the voters next May.

"California will send a delegate to the national convention pledged to Gov. Smith's nomination for the presidency," Wardell added. Wardell was the Democratic candidate for Governor in 1926, and is identified with the anti-McAdoo faction of the party. Elliott was the McAdoo faction's candidate for the United States senatorial nomination in 1926.

Elliott recently declared no wet candidate would have a chance of winning the support of California Democrats.

There are two methods by which Wardell could have Gov. Smith's name placed on the primary ballot. Smith could be put forward as a candidate by nomination by the State Democratic Committee or by the filing of petitions bearing the required number of signatures of voters. Wardell indicated the latter course probably would be followed.

New York Paper Says Al Smith Discourages Tammany Activities.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Nov. 26.—The New York American will say tomorrow that Tammany Hall leaders, acting on orders from Gov. Alfred E. Smith, have temporarily abandoned negotiations with Democratic spokesmen from other states to promote the Governor's nomination for the presidency on the Democratic ticket.

The Tammany representatives assert that prominent demands from many states have called to offer their support to Smith, the American will say, but the Governor has refused to receive the visiting delegations. He has informed Tammany leaders, the article will assert, that he will not talk about the presidential nomination nor do anything to influence the next Democratic National Convention.

CARDINAL BONZANO'S BODY LIES IN STATE

Funeral of Former Apostolic Delegate to U. S. to Be Held Wednesday.

By the Associated Press.

ROME, Nov. 26.—The death of John Cardinal Bonzano, one-time apostolic delegate to the United States, today at the age of 60 years, came as a shock to Vatican circles although it was not wholly unexpected.

Pessimistic announcements came from the Cardinal's sick room yesterday, after earlier reports had indicated he was improving after an operation for stomach trouble a week ago.

The Cardinal prepared for the serious operation as if he were preparing for death, it became known today. For two or three days before he went to the hospital he spent his time arranging his affairs so that in the event of his death all worldly matters would have been concluded. Just before the operation Saturday morning he confessed to Father Alisiardi and took communion administered by Canon Bina, who was a friend of more than a quarter century's standing.

Took Communion Daily.

While the Cardinal was in the hospital he took communion daily and just before his death received the last sacrament and the papal benediction.

Just before Cardinal Bonzano went on the table he was informed that prayers were being said for him by hundreds of persons, and he replied: "I do not know if these prayers will aid me to get well but I am sure they will aid me to die well, and so I am grateful to those who pray for me."

The Cardinal passed away peacefully in the presence of a brother and sister who came from Piedmont to see him, and others who knelt as he was dying.

The body was taken late this evening to his home, where it will lie in state until Tuesday, when it will be taken to the Church of the Sacred Heart. Funeral services will be held there Wednesday morning.

Body Lying in State.

Four large candles burned tonight at the four corners of a bed in the throne room of the Cardinal's apartment, where his body was lying in state. The room is decorated in red damask with gold fringes and a large quantity of flowers scattered around it.

The Cardinal lay in a restful attitude, holding a crucifix to his breast. Several nuns knelt on each side of the bed praying devoutly. Because of the late hour only a few intimate friends were admitted to the room tonight but tomorrow it may be seen by everybody.

Cardinal De Lai, secretary of consistorial congregations, who has also been sick, was somewhat better but his heart was still weak tonight. He was helped by digitalis and caffein.

YOUTH WHO AWAKENED FAMILY HELD; SAYS HE WAS SLUGGED

A young man, who at 4:45 a. m. yesterday awakened a family in University City and asked that someone be called to treat a gash in his head, was arrested after he told police he believed he had been slugged and thrown into an automobile. The incident occurred, the youth believed, after he left a party at 5563 Delmar boulevard an hour before.

Police are trying to learn if the youth, who said he was Justin Toles, 7829 Greensfelder avenue, University City, was in a machine which was wrecked and abandoned at Clara and Chamberlain avenues, when it was driven into a telegraph pole. A license on the machine had been issued to a woman in Kansas City.

BRITISH EDITOR FAVORS ANTI-WAR PLEDGE BY U. S.

H. Wickham Steed Calls on America Not to Weaken Pacts of Other Nations Against Aggression.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Nov. 26.—A declaration of American policy against aggressive war and a pledge that it never will weaken the hands of others nations banded together to deter an aggressor nation is hopefully looked for by Englishmen as a means of preserving the peace of the world, H. Wickham Steed, London editor, writes in the December issue of the magazine, Current History.

Steed, who is editor of the English Review of Reviews, made the same suggestion in recent addresses in St. Louis, New York and Chicago, and in luncheon conference with President Coolidge.

"When and in what form such an announcement could be made," Steed said, "we Europeans who hold peace to be the safeguard of civilization do not know; nor do we ask, since it is a matter solely American, with which no European has a right to meddle.

"But we know that the effects of such a declaration, of such a doctrine, would be incalculable. The peoples of Europe who yearn for peace and for security in peace would be mightily reassured and encouraged. Pretexts for refusing to diminish armaments would vanish. The world would gradually see that the way of peace is more excellent than the way of armed strife, and talk of the 'next war' would be stilled.

"Whether this be possible, I know not. It may be an idle dream. Only the people of America can decide."

Steed's suggestion is in line with recent announcements by two United States Senators that they would seek action at the coming session of Congress on resolutions to outlaw war.

Senator Capper (Rep.) of Kansas would have Congress declare it the policy of the nation to renounce war "as an instrument of public policy" with France and other "like-minded nations," and would bind the signatories to refrain from aiding an aggressor nation. A resolution by Senator Borah, which failed of action by the last Congress and is to be reintroduced, calls for codification of international law, denounces war as a means of settling international differences, and calls for an independent international tribunal to arbitrate disputes between nations.

An eventual road to international amity, Steed said, might be found in the codification of international and maritime law, but meanwhile some other procedure is necessary to preserve peace.

Germany, he said, showed the sincerity of her attachment to peace by signing the optional clause of the statute of the permanent world court at The Hague, which obligates all signatories to submit legal disputes to arbitration.

It seems probable, he said, that France will soon follow Germany's example, but he declared Great Britain may find it harder to do so, mainly because the international disputes in which she is likely to be involved concern maritime questions.

Borah Condemns Peace Plans Judging Nation as "Aggressor."

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 26.—World peace plans hinging upon the question of aggressor nations were condemned today by Chairman Borah of the Senate Foreign Relations committee as "unworkable."

Senator Borah, who has a resolution to declare war illegal as a basis for outlawing warfare, declared it is impossible to determine what nation is the aggressor.

This view is shared in part by President Coolidge and was brought forward following announcement by Senator Capper, Republican, of Kansas, that he would introduce a resolution to outlaw war and to prevent the United States from trading with countries which wage aggressive warfare.

"So far as I am concerned," Senator Borah said, "I would not support a peace plan which recognizes war as legitimate at any time or under any circumstances. If war has to come, it should come in contravention and in violation of peace plans and international law and not under their acquiescence, approval or protection.

"There never has been an 'aggressor nation' and never will be in the sense that it would be a workable basis for the operation of the machinery of peace. There is no practical way in an exigency to determine what nation is an 'aggressor nation.' Indeed, there is no way to determine, it seems, after the war is over.

"If you set up an arbitrary standard, such as treating that nation as an 'aggressor nation' which refuses to arbitrate, you may accomplish the very reverse of what you desire to accomplish. An evil disposed nation could very easily so present the proposition that it would be impossible for a nation to arbitrate. Such a standard is purely artificial and might very easily compel a nation to choose between complying with an artificial standard and taking sides against a just and moral cause. This standard substitutes formality for substance."

Editor Advocates Treaty of Unconditional Arbitration.

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, Nov. 26.—An article by Editor James L. Garvin in the Sunday Observer, dealing with disarmament, European war rumblings and the movement of Senators Borah and Capper for outlawing war, strongly advocates the conclusion of a treaty of unconditional arbitration between Great Britain and the United States.

Garvin says that Great Britain was ready for such a treaty 20 years ago, but that the Irish question then stood in the way. It now is down out of the way, he argues, and "we are as ready as then to conclude a treaty which would be epoch-making in the cause of peace."

Nurito Prescription Acts Like Magic, Making Bed-Ridden Sufferers Get Up and Dance

WE GUARANTEE IT

Nothing has so startled the community as the effect of Nurito, a physicina's prescription for rheumatism, neuritis, neuralgia, sciatica and lumbago. It is certainly a boon to humanity. Many won't believe such a thing possible as almost instant relief in even bed-ridden cases of excruciating pain. They say it must be a narcotic. But it isn't anything of the sort, and to prove it, get the regular package from us. Try it as directed and if it doesn't prove almost a miracle in driving away pain with two or three doses we will refund the price you paid for it.

CABINET STUDYING CANAL AIR DEFENSE

Post-Dispatch Bureau.
20-23 Wyatt Building.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 26.—The Coolidge Cabinet is making a study of the air defenses of the Caribbbean area and Panama.

This fact was disclosed at the State Department today when officials declined to discuss the application of the German-Colombian Aviation Co. for permission to establish an operating base in Panama on the ground that the Cabinet is considering the matter, which is entirely in the hands of President Coolidge.

An inter-departmental committee is now making a close study of all phases of the problem. Its conclusions will go first to the heads of the State, War, Navy, Postoffice and Commerce departments, and from them to the President.

The chief competitor of the German-Colombian Co., known as the Scadta Co., is the Pan-American Airways, Inc., now operating between Key West and Havana, with plans for an extension of aerial service to Panama within the next few months. The Scadta Co. is operating between Bogota, Colombia and the Atlantic seaboard of that country and plans to extend mail service to Panama, Jan. 1, provided the necessary permission is forthcoming.

Significance of Action.

President Coolidge's action in placing the entire problem of the defense of the Caribbean in the hands of a Cabinet committee, is considered especially significant at this time, due to recent moves on the part of Canada to consolidate British possessions in the western hemisphere.

Following the establishment of a Canadian steamship line of Government-owned vessels, operating between Halifax and the British colonies in the West Indies, F. C. T. O'Hara, deputy Canadian Minister of Commerce and Trade, took a special trip through the Caribbean countries in an effort to negotiate commercial treaties and move for a closer link-up between Canada and this important area.

Canadian Activities.

Canadian capital has already subsidized the "British Controlled Oil Fields, Ltd.," the company which is conducting the largest operations in Venezuela, and is also an important factor in Colombia and other Caribbean countries. Sir Henry Thornton, an executive of the Canadian National Railroads, was given a tremendous ovation of Mexico City this week when he went to undertake the reorganization of the Mexican National Railways for the Mexican Government.

Negotiations looking to the substitution of Canadian for English rule in British Honduras are actually under way.

PRISON DEATH LIST NOW 13

Two More Convicts Wounded During Meeting at Folso Die.

By the Associated Press.
FOLSOM PRISON, Cal., Nov. 26.—Gunshot wounds suffered by Frank A. Carlson and Aural Malakovich, convicts, in the siege of Folsom prison Thursay, caused their deaths today, bringing the death list resulting from the riot of the prisoners to 13. Two of those who died were guards.

Twenty-five convicts still were suffering from wounds and three of them are in serious condition. District Attorney Neil R. McAllister continued his investigation of the activities of the six convict ringleaders who sought to effect a wholesale delivery. He has announced murder charges will be filed against the six. Some of the convicts have admitted the break had been planned for some time, and that the plans were discussed daily.

$10,000 Paid for Killing 2 Robbers.

DALLAS, Tex., Nov. 26.—As a reward for the killing of two bank robbers, a check for $10,000 was mailed today by the Texas Bankers' Association to be divided among four officers who killed the two men when they attempted to rob the Citizens' National Bank of Odessa, Tex., recently. The association recently posted a standing reward of $5000 "for robbers killed while robbing a bank."

By the Associated Press.

MEXICO CITY, Nov. 26. — Delayed dispatches to El Universal from the State of Jalisco report that Federal troops under Gen. LAY TUTTLE MEMORIAL CORNERSTONE TODAY

Bishop F. F. Johnson to Officiate at Ceremonies at 2 O'Clock.

In a public ceremony at 2 o'clock this afternoon, the cornerstone of the Bishop Tuttle Memorial, which adjoins Christ Church Cathedral on Locust street, between Twelfth boulepard and Thirteenth street, will be laid.

Bishop Frederick F. Johnson of the Episcopal diocese of Missouri, successor of the late Bishop Daniel S. Tuttle, will officiate in the brief exercises. The structure will house diocesan headquarters and community activities of the cathedral parish, including educational and recreational facilities.

The steel and concrete framework of the first seven stories of the memorial building is about finished. Several additional floors and a spire will be added at some undetermined time in the future.

Following the death of Bishop Tuttle on April 17, 1923, a $500,000 fund was raised, of which $400,000 is being expended on the present structure, the rest being saved for an endowment for its upkeep. Protestants, Catholics and Jews contributed to the fund.

Bishop Tuttle was head of the Missouri diocese for 37 years and presiding officer of the church for more than 20 years. The memorial to him occupies the site of the former Schuyler House, which was erected in honor of the late Dean Montgomery Schuyler, rector of the cathedral for more than 40 years. An auditorium in the new building will perpetuate his name.

LINDBERGH TROPHY DISPLAY TO BE CLOSED WEDNESDAY

Historical Society Has No Funds to Supply Necessary Night Watchman.

Unless means can be found to provide a night watchman, the collection of medals and varied other relics of the Paris flight of Col. Charles A. Lindbergh, which has been on exhibition since last June at the Missouri Historical Society, in the Jefferson Memorial, Forest Park, will have to be closed next Wednesday.

The collection has attracted thousands of visitors, and the crowds on Sundays have continued particularly large. The historical society, a private organization of limited means, serving the public, cannot afford to employ a night watchman. The Police Department furnished as many as 14 policemen as guards to handle the throngs of visitors when the display was new, but these were withdrawn.

FOOTWEAR PAGEANT TO OPEN TOMORRW

3500 Shoe Merchants Expected to Attend Annual Fashion Show in St. Louis.

The annual St. Louis Pageant of Footwear Fashions, under the auspices of the St. Louis Shoe Manufacturers and Wholesalers' Association, will open at Hotel Statler tomorrow afternoon and continue with afternoon and evening performances, closing Wednesday night. Thursday will be held open to give merchants opportunity to inspect lines of footwear and do their buying. An attendance of at least 3500 shoe merchants from every part of the United States is expected.

Members of the St. Louis Manufacturers' Association have taken over Hotel Statler for the occasion and their new lines of shoes will be exhibited there exclusively. More than 300 lines of shoes manufactured outside St. Louis, however, will be on display at other downtown hotels, which already are filled to capacity and are refusing further reservations, according to Frank Mahler, secretary of the association.

The pageant will be held in the Statler ballroom, where 25 young women, selected for possessing feet of unusual fitting qualities, will display the spring styles in footwear on a runway. At each performance the mannequins will appear in three separate promenades. The first will exhibit shoes for street and sport wear; the second will display afternoon slippers and the third will be devoted to evening wear. Not only will correct footwear be displayed, but the models' entire habiliment will be of the latest fashion.

A large stage will be built at the east end of the ballroom and from this the models will enter the runway which will extend the full length of the room. Between each promenade special entertainment features will be provided, the attractions including Ruth Roye of the vudeville stage; Harry Delf, late star of Earl Carroll's Vanities; Carlo Restivo, accordion player, and a revue of 12 dancing girls recently with the Greenwich Village Follies.

Seven pages will precede each mannequin on the runway, bearing a standard announcing the name of the manufacturer whose shoes are displayed by the model. Children's footwear also will have a place in the pageant and will be modeled by seven little girls. The public will not be admitted to the pageant, as tickets are issued only to shoe men through the manufacturers' association.

BRAZILIAN DENIES CHARGE OF BRIBERY

Contradicts Hearst Story He Was Paid to Oppose U. S. Claim Against Mexico.

By the Associated Press.

RIO JANEIRO, Nov. 26.—Publication by Hearst newspapers in the United States of a charge that the Mexican Government had ordered the payment of $100,000 to Rodrigo Octavio, Federal Attorney-General and member of the Mexican-American Mixed Claim Commission presumably to influence his vote, caused a sensation in Brazil today. Don Rodrigo, who is Federal Attorney-General, denied the accusation as absolutely false. "The story is sheer fantasy," he said.

(The charge, published in Hearst papers, was accompanied by photostatic copies of alleged documents purporting to show that an order was issued to pay Octavio $100,000 for "services to Mexico" seven months before the Mixed Claims Commission voted two to one to absolve the Mexican Government of responsibility for the killing of 16 members of an American mining party at Santa Isabel.)

A dispatch from Mexico City quotes Jenaro Estrado, Foreign Secretary, as denying the charges of the Hearst newspaper. He said he considered it unbecoming for Mexico to engage in controversies with Mr. Hearst to prove the falseness of his papers' charges.

AGREEMENT EXPECTED ON U. S.-CANADA VISAS

Present Order Would Restrict Ingress of Foreign-Born Citizens of Dominion.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 26.—While immigration officials gave no indication of a further postponement of the Dec. 1 date for making effective the order which restricts the border crossing privileges of foreign-born Canadian nationals, in other administration quarters confidence was expressed today that a solution of the difficulty satisfactory to the Canadian Government would be found.

Under the present order foreign-born Canadians would be required to possess quota visas from the allotment made for the countries of their birth in order to pass back and forth across the border on the same basis as native-born Canadians.

Enforcement of the order was deferred until Dec. 1 as a result of conferences here, but it is understood that about 1000 Canadians of foreign birth who cross the border to employment in Detroit and other American cities would be affected unless some means of expediting the machinery by which they can obtain quota visas can be evolved.

The Washington Government is dealing with that problem now because some officials believe that this group is entitled to special treatment since they have enjoyed unmolested for three years the same right of free movement across the border as have natives of Canada.

Just how the situation is to be cared for in the interval between now and Dec. 1 is not apparent.

BROTHER OF ART NEWMAN HELD AS ROBBERY SUSPECT

Arrested at Carlinville in Company With Man and Two Women.

By the Associated Press.

CARLINVILLE, Ill., Nov. 26.—Warren Newman, 22 years old, of Gillespie, a brother of Art Newman, Southern Illinois gangster, now serving a life sentence in Chester penitentiary for the murder of Mayor Joe Adams of West City, was arrested early this morning with a man and two women, for alleged implication in a number of robberies in Central Illinois.

Sheriff E. M. Stubblefield, Deputy Sheriffs and police made the arrests following another confession by Frank Klazi of Benld, who was arrested a week ago in St. Louis. Klazi had previously confessed to a number of robberies and told of plans to rob the bank at Worden, Ill.

According to the authorities, the four arrested, if not participants in the robberies, were alleged parties to the plots and received portions of the spoils.

MOTHER!

Look at Child's Tongue if Sick, Cross, Feverish

Look at the tongue, mother! If coated, it is a sure sign that your little one's stomach, liver and bowels need a gentle, thorough cleansing at once.

When peevish, cross, listless, pale, doesn't sleep, doesn't eat or act natural, or is feverish, stomach sour, breath bad; has stomach-ache, sore throat, diarrhea, full of cold, give a teaspoonful of "California Fig Syrup," and in a few hours all the foul, constipated waste, undigested food and sour bile gently moves out of the little bowels without griping and you have a well, playful child again.

You needn't coax sick children to take this harmless, "fruity laxative;" they love its delicious taste, and it always makes them feel splendid.

Ask your druggist for a bottle of "California Fig Syrup," which has directions for babies, children of all ages and for grown-ups plainly on the bottle. Beware of counterfeits sold here. To be sure you get the genuine, ask to see that it is made by the "California Fig Syrup Company." Refuse any other kind with contempt.

NEW ORLEANS, Nov. 26.—Endor defeated a field of six to win the Shrewsbury Handicap, $1200 added, an all-age event at six furlongs, which was the main attraction of the card at the Jefferson Park track today. Gibbons was second and Orestes third.

Although the fifth was styled the feature race, it was in the final event of the afternoon that the crowd got its greatest thrill when Royal Oak upset all form to win and pay the big price of $120 for $2.

In all the other races on the program the favorites or second choice horses had the best of it. Tommy Tickle at virtually even money won the first, while Maradale came through in the second and paid about 2 to 1.

Shasta Lad downed George Groom, the favorite, in the third and the winner paid 4 to 1. In the fourth race another favorite romped home when Highland Chief led a band of eight to the wire.

The sixth race went to Gotham with Peterson up, while Clover Club was second and Babe K third. The winner paid $11.40 for $2.

By the Associated Press.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Nov. 26.—No more nonscouting football agreements for Harvard, William J. On the other hand, the director of athletics said, the system had created "many false situations and misunderstandings."

During the season just closed Harvard observed nonscouting agreements with Yale and Pennsylvania. The Crimson athletic authorities accepted the experiment somewhat reluctantly when it was proposed by Tad Jones, Yale coach. Next year Harvard will send out its trained football observers as in years past to study the gridiron methods of the opposition.

Saussele Starting His 42-Yard Runback of a Punt

Wilson's Two Touchdowns Give Army 14-9 Victory Over Navy

Retiring West Point Captain Carries Ball Total of 46 Yards on Six Successive Plays for First Score in Third Period — Middies Finish Strong — 76,000 Crowd Sees Game in New York.

By Alan J. Gould,
Associated Press Sports Editor.

NEW YORK, Nov. 26.—Rallying from a poor start, Army conquered the Navy this afternoon, 14 to 9, under the indomitable leadership of the blonde and battling cadet captain, "Lighthorse" Harry Wilson.

While a colorful, wildly yelling crowd of 76,000 looked on, Wilson pulled his wabbly team together between halves, came out to lead a charge that saw him twice cross the Navy goal line and then stand foremost in the defense that checked the desperate and dangerous closing spurt of the sailors.

Army's victory over a gallant Navy team that played superior football in all but the third period was a personal triumph for the veteran Wilson, playing his last year for the Army and his seventh against the Navy in a varsity career that began in 1921 at Penn State.

Navy Threatens Twice.

It was Wilson who plunged in and tackled with his forwards as they put up a stonewall defensive barrier in the first half, beaten back and once yielding a safety on a blocked kick, but also twice stopping the Navy at the threshhold of the goal line. Once the Middies were turned back with only five yards to go, but even more disheartening, in the second period, was the Navy thrust that was stopped by the Cadets only a foot short of a touchdown.

It was Wilson who came trotting out in the second half to lead a drive that turned the tide and clinched the game. "Lighthorse Harry" was a whirling dervish as he took a Navy punt on the latter's 46-yard line and dashed 18 yards, then carried the ball across the Middie goal in five successive dashes. Side-stepping and straight-arming, Wilson frequently dragged three or four tacklers along with him as he reeled off 28 yards to the goal line.

With the winning spark thus ignited, "Red" Cagle, fleet running mate of the Army captain, grabbed opportunity—in the form of an intercepted pass—and raced 36 yards to the Navy's four-yard mark. It took only two bucks by Wilson to put the ball over and Cagle's toe added the extra point for the second time.

It was just as well for the Army that they produced this second scoring punch, for they had been outplayed decisively by the midshipmen in the first half and in the final quarter they were menaced by a Navy come-back that netted one touchdown and threatened another before the last whistle blew.

This Navy touchdown, throwing the brigade of midshipmen into hysterical excitement as the end of the game neared, was accomplished by a spectacular forward pass. Hurled by "Whitey" Lloyd from near midfield, it was grabbed by "Ted" Sloane, former Drake end.

Taylor Injures His Hand, Title Bout Postponed

Fernandez to Take Terre Haute Boxer's Place Against Canzoneri Thursday Night.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Nov. 26. — Bud Taylor of Terre Haute, Ind., has injured his hand in training and will not be able to go through with the featherweight title bout against Tony Canzoneri of Brooklyn at Madison Square Garden next Thursday night, Matchmaker Jess McMahon made known today.

The winner of the bout would have been recognized as champion by the New York Boxing Commission despite the fact that Benny Bass is the titleholder in Pennsylvania by virtue of his victory over Red Chapman of Boston.

McMahon has engaged Ignacio Fernandez, a Philippine boxer, to replace Taylor against Canzoneri in the feature event.

BILL JOHNSTON AND MISS JACOBS RANKED FIRST IN CALIFORNIA

By the Associated Press.

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 26.—William M. Johnston of San Francisco, former national champion, and Miss Helen Jacobs of Berkeley, are ranked first in the men's singles and women's singles respectively, in the 1927 State tennis rankings released today by the California Lawn Tennis Association.

Miss Helen Wills of Berkeley, American and all-English champion, received no ranking as she did not appear in a California tournament.

John H. Doeg of Santa Monica, a Davis Cup team member, was ranked second in the men's singles and Mrs. May Sutton Bundy, also of Santa Monica, won second position in the women's singles.

SPARKLING OPEN FIELD RUNS BY SAUSSELE AND SAVAGE LEAD TO SCORES

Crowd of 11,000 Witnesses Intercity Championship Football Match at High School Stadium — St. Louisans Score on Touchdown, Field Goal and Safety.

By Jack Alexander.

A crowd estimated at 11,000 saw a popular St. Louis tradition shattered yesterday at High School stadium when Roosevelt High, local public high school football titleholder, defeated Schurz High, corresponding leader of Chicago schools, 11 to 0. It has long been a fixed idea here that the town is as far behind other cities in high school football as it is in the college game.

A school board policy of isolation extending over a period of 20 years or more has prevented comparisons with teams from other cities and the tendency has been to conclude that the prolonged slump, from which the two universities are just now arising, has been a reflection of activity in the high schools.

Yesterday's game was certainly a fair criterion from which to form a judgement. The opposing teams had been officially crowned leaders in their respective cities, that is, among the public schools.

As Good, if Not Better.

This being true, the obvious conclusion for spectators was that St. Louis high school football, as represented by Roosevelt, was not only as good as that of Chicago, but probably a little better.

The superiority of the local brand of football was not overwhelming. Both teams were strong defensively, but inconsistent on offense. Both fumbled frequently from over-eagerness and both elevens lacked actual scoring punch, as machines. Roosevelt four times lost possession of the ball when within scoring distance, twice on downs, twice on fumbles, and the Chicagoans lacked even enough power to get near the goal line. The farthest point in Roosevelt territory reached by Schurz was the locals' 45-yard mark.

Where the balance of power lay was in individuals, whose work stood out in bold and splendid relief. Schurz had its Gawlinski, whose "77" numeral, in the manner of Red Grange, was no meaningless scrawl. But where the Chicagoans had one Gawlinski, Roosevelt had a Ted Saussele, a Roy Savage and a Groepper. Roosevelt also had a superior punter in Barnes and a good passer in Moffatt.

After Graduation—Where?

Saussele gives promise of being as fine a broken-field runner as ever wore cleats in St. Louis. The tragedy is that he probably will not continue to wear cleats in St. Louis after he graduates in June. This is because of another musty local tradition that a star player gets more out of his football if he goes "away" than if he wears the red jersey of St. Louis U. or the green of Washington. Some fine stars like Jim Conzelman, Frank Ramacciotti and Joe Lintzenich have flouted this tradition and not regretted it. But it still persists.

Saussele running back a punt makes a picture which should be preserved for St. Louis gridirons. Yesterday he was in great form. One punt he chased back 42 yards. A few plays before that he had taken another kick and returned it 25 yards to midfield. Both these displays occurred before the first quarter was more than five minutes old.

Groepper Breaks Through to Block Punt for Roosevelt's First Score

Following his 42-yard runback, Saussele took the ball on an end run for 13 yards. A few plays later, he outjumped Schurz's secondary defense and grabbed a pass from Moffatt for 18 more yards. The ball was now on Chicago's 7-yard line but here the Roosevelt team failed, making only six yards on four plays and giving up the ball on the enemy's 1-yard line.

On his attempt to punt out from behind his own goal line, Gawlinski found himself covered by Roosevelt's fast right end, Groepper. The ball thudded off Groepper's chest and flew across the end zone for a safety.

Where Roosevelt had missed out on six points by an ineffective offense, its defensive had jumped in and salvaged two points.

The offense got another chance in the second quarter when Gawlinski fumbled and Feiter recovered for Roosevelt on Schurz's 5-yard line. Again the Roosevelt machine was not equal to the task of making distance in four downs, and gave up the ball. The third chance came toward the close of the second period, when Richter of Schurz muffed a lateral pass which was recovered by Roosevelt on the 15-yard line. This time the locals lost the ball immediately on a fumble and the half ended with Roosevelt leading 2—0.

Touchdown in Last Quarter.

Gawlinski found himself contending with a strong headwind which, combined with the charging Roosevelt defense, wrecked his punts in the third quarter. The net result was that Roosevelt finally got possession of the ball on the Schurz 29-yard line. The locals advanced it two yards and then lost again on a fumble, this time by Saussele.

The fireworks were saved until the last quarter when the Chicagoans started an extensive aerial game. Savage intercepted for Roosevelt on the enemy 40-yard line but efforts to advance the ball on rushing failed and Roosevelt also took to passing. Sahlin of Schurz intercepted a pass right away.

The Schurz quarterback again tried passing and it wasn't long

BLOCKED KICK AFTER TOUCHDOWN GIVES ROCKNE'S TEAM VICTORY

113,000 Persons See Game; Forward Passes Bring Both Tallies

Coach of "Fighting Irish" Sends His Regulars After Coast Team Scores Early in First Period and Aerial Attack Soon Produces Score.

By Charles W. Dunckley,
(Associated Press Sports Writer.)

CHICAGO, Nov. 26.—All California is sad and Drury tonight.

The Trojans from the University of Southern California, coming out of the West undefeated, lost a heart-breaking one-point football game to Notre Dame on Soldier Field this afternoon, 7 to 6, before 113,000 spectators, the greatest throng that ever witnessed a gridiron struggle in America.

The victory was a repetition of the Notre Dame triumph of a year ago when Rockne's ramblers snatched a 13-12 victory over the Trojans at Los Angeles.

The Trojans, in a smashing, irresistible attack, scored early in the first period, with Captain Morley Drury, their brilliant quarterback and candidate for all-American honors, tossing a forward pass to Russell Saunders that resulted in the touchdown. When Drury sent his toe crashing against the ball in an attempt to add the extra point, Chilly Walsh, the Notre Dame right end, hurled himself against the ball and blocked it, giving Notre Dame the break it needed.

Notre Dame Goes Ahead.

A few minutes later, in the same period, Notre Dame found its chance to score, opened up with its aerial shots, and tossed a pass across the goal line with Charley Riley, the little quarterback heaving the ball to Ray Dahman. Then with the Notre Dame line holding like a stone wall, Dahman stepped back and successfully booted a dropkick for the added point, giving Notre Dame its edge and, finally, victory.

Thereafter, for the remaining three periods the fighting Notre Dame team, with frequent shifts in the lineup, set up a defense that held the coast invaders in check, stopped the running attack of Drury, and twice nipped sorges that threatened their goal line.

Individually, the game resulted in a thrilling offensive battle between Drury and Christy Flanagan, Notre Dame's great halfback.

Last Game a Great One.

Flanagan, playing his last game for Notre Dame, overshadowed his previous sensational performances, splitting the line with his powerful thrusts and shooting around the ends for long gains. In the early stages of the battle Flanagan, faking a backward pass, smashed through the Trojans forward wall repeatedly.

Drury, a combination of Red Grange, Herb Joesting and Bennie Friedman, a little bit of each, carried the brunt of the Southern Californians' attack, playing himself almost to the point of exhaustion. Drury, carrying the ball four out of five plays in the first half, spent his strength before three periods were finished. He missed the aid of Harry Edelson, and Don Williams, in carrying the ball. Edelson was forced out of the game because of injuries and Williams was left home in California, nursing injuries.

Southern California's first touchdown was the culmination of a thrilling 25-yard dash by Drury around right end. He planted the ball on Notre Dame's six-yard line before he was upset. Then Edelson hit center for three yards and Notre Dame took time out to think over this sudden thrust. Drury bounded into left tackle for a yard, and then smashed into center, losing a few inches. With the Notre Dame line stiffened, Drury ran back and tossed a long pass to Saunders, who grabbed the ball as he raced across the line.

Riley Tosses 28 Yards Over Goal Line to Dahman for Notre Dame Touchdown

Drury's attempt to add the extra point, however, was a failure with the Notre Dame players swiftly charging into the kick and with Walsh successfully blocking it.

After the coast invaders scored, Coach Rockne immediately dispatched his first string backfield into the game, with Flanagan, Dahman and Riley taking up the burden.

Rockne Sends in Regulars.

Then California was placed on the defensive immediately, and Flanagan began hammering at the Trojan line. With the assistance of Collins, who started the game at fullback for Notre Dame, they cracked off two first downs starting from the California 45-yard line. Flanagan, in two thrusts, lugged the ball to California's 33-yard line. Then he plowed through center for seven yards with Collins smashing through the same spot for another first down, this time on California's 28-yard line.

After failing with one pass, Riley tossed the next 28 yards to Dahman who clutched the oval in his arms back of California's goal for the touchdown. Dahman kicked the goal, under the protection of the Notre Dame stone wall.

Twice later the Trojans, in desperation, came perilously near scoring with forward passes, but both times the shots over the goal line were incompleted and the ball was lost to them.

Narrow Escape for Riley.

In the second period, Lloyd Thomas attempted to shoot the ball to McCaslin inside the 15-yard line, but the pass was grounded. In the third period, Drury tossed a long pass across the goal line and Riley, the Notre Dame quarterback, appeared to have intercepted it, but he apparently purposely fumbled it to avoid having a safety scored against Notre Dame. Riley more deliberately risked a safety earlier in the second period, when he caught a punt a few inches from his own goal line and then circled behind his goal line to dart across the field away from tacklers, escaping out of bounds from a flock of Trojans on the five-yard line.

In the dusk of the late November afternoon and the game rapidly drawing to a close, the Trojans were desperately attempting to shoot a successful forward pass with Notre Dame, apparently the stronger, continuing its menacing driving attack.

Notre Dame had the ball on Southern California's 16-yard line and was threatening every second when the bark of the pistol ended the combat.

Record Crowd Attends.

The tremendous crowd witnessing today's game surpassed the record breaking attendance of 111,000 that turned out for the Army-Navy classic just a year ago. Although no championship, sectional or otherwise, was involved, no football game ever played in Chicago attracted so much attention. The seating capacity, stretched a bit since the Army-Navy game, was taxed to the limit, with thousands standing and other thousands on the outside, hoping to judge the tide of the battle by the roars of the crowd.

The weather was favorable to the Californians, accustomed to warmth and sunshine. The day was mild, but murky. As the game started, the sky was overcast with heavy grey clouds, carrying a threat of rain, but the sun peeped through when the second period started and was flooding the arena before the game was finished.

Squash Tennis for Women.

Progress of squash tennis and squash racquets in St. Louis as a popular sport is evidenced by the announcement of Jack Cole, instructor at the University Club, that a period would be set aside for women players four mornings each week. The plan is to continue the hour for the women players all winter.

105-Pound Winner of Valley Cross-Country Championship

WRAY'S COLUMN

"The Big Six."

THE Valley Conference of other days is now a thing of the past, in so far as football is concerned. Next year will see the rise of the "Big Six" schools, which seceded and left stranded the Oklahoma Aggies, and Grinnell, Drake and Washington Universities.

The Big Six is a logical group and none can blame the interested parties for shaking off the handicaps of schools not compatible in spirit or location.

The chances are strong, however, that financially, at least, the Big Six booted one, when they lopped Washington off the list. St. Louis is due to become a football center; and when it does, the Valley schools will probably find that outside of Missouri Washington is not interested in bringing them here for the larger receipts.

University faculties will reply scornfully that receipts are no object. To which it can be answered that the university that is not interested in receipts is not interested in the physical welfare of its student body. For it is from football receipts that the expenses of the physical department are drawn.

As yet the "Big Six" have no official name. Probably the schools that were dropped will consent to let the new group bear the name "Missouri Valley Conference." It would be the nice thing to do, since the name is meaningless when applied to the nondescript four that survive.

The Non-Scouting Rule.

FROM Lawrence, Kan., comes the story that Kansas' victory over Missouri was due to the fact that the Jayhawkers had the Missouri team scouted, in violation of Valley Conference rules.

If this report is true, it lends an importance to scouting that had not previously been attributed to it. It also means the death of the nonscouting rule since open inspection of enemy teams is preferable to secret violation of an agreement.

Coaches throughout the country are in accord on this point. They all prefer an open scouting arrangement, or an agreement whereby their plays are exchanged with those of the enemy before each game.

The spectator will always be sympathetic with the nonscouting theory, because it forces the defense and the attack of both teams to use brains and originality.

Looks Good for Tigers.

MISSOURI is expecting another great eleven, next year. Already it has reached out to book a contest with the New York University eleven, which again will have a stout eleven.

Missouri will lose nine members of its 1927 squad, among them Clark, Flamank and other aces. But there remains aplenty. For example, here is a lineup of holdover Tigers good enough to go into the fray with any team. The line will average very close to 200 pounds and the backfield is composed of players who already have achieved fame and who had much to do with the winning of this year's title:

Hawkins (194)	L. G.
Waldorf (188)	C.
Huff (190)	R. G.
Lucas (225)	R. T.
Hursley (182)	R. E.
Mehrle (160)	Q.
Rosenheim (158)	H. B.
Diemund (155)	H. B.
Horoye (190)	F. B.

As all played at various times with this year's varsity the eleven of next season will be able to duplicate the feats of this year's champions.

Too Much Is Enough.

DOG racing in St. Louis is entering its seventh successive month, with the Wellston track surviving and prosperous. For a long period of the time St. Louis supported two dog tracks. In that time there have been more than 200 racing days at the tracks and doubtless there has been handled not less than $15,000,000, probably more.

If the takeout is 10 per cent this yields $1,500,000 for the tracks, not counting admissions. That means a net profit to the two concerns operating here of about $900,000 or 400 per cent on their combined investment in six months.

That's going some, but it can't go far. The money won't hold out. It was continuous horseracing that killed the sport in St. Louis.

There is no reason to believe that continuous dog racing will fare any better.

Taxed to Death.

CANADIAN race tracks at Hamilton, Windsor and Ft. Erie may retire from the field, next year. The reason is the exorbitant tax imposed upon them by the Government. Race tracks in Canada pay $5000 daily and 5 per cent on the parimutuel machines.

One way or another this will doom the race track. If the tracks boost the "takeout" to help their revenues, it will drive the public away. If it pays the taxes the clubs will die of starvation.

Racing is a real revenue producer when it permits the jockey clubs to make money. When these can not prosper racing ceases—and the State's revenue with it. If the track is to live and take out a reasonable percentage from the pool, it can not afford to pay more than $2000 a day and an admission tax.

A tax on the pool by the State, then becomes a tax on the public.

BALMY BEACH WINS CANADIAN RUGBY TITLE

By the Associated Press.

TORONTO, Nov. 26.—Balmy Beach, Toronto, champions of the Ontario Rugby Football Union, today won the Canadian title by defeating the Hamilton Tigers, 9 to 6. Hamilton, champions of the Inter-Provincial Union, decisively defeated Queens University of Toronto, Inter-Collegiate champions in the Canadian semifinal last Saturday.

VIOLATION OF NON-SCOUTING RULE REPORTED

Kansas Coach, Now Resigning, Says He "Had Nothing to Do With It"—Missouri Said to Have Been Watched.

LAWRENCE, Kan., Nov. 26. — Published reports that Kansas had violated the Missouri Valley Conference rule against scouting brought a statement here today from Coach Franklin C. Cappon that he had nothing to do with alleged scouting of the Missouri-Ames game.

Both Cappon and Dean H. W. Arant of the athletic board asserted that revelation of scouting activities had no bearing on the resignation of Coach Cappon and his assistants announced last Wednesday.

Dean Arant said he had not heard of the scouting charges until after the meeting at which Coach Cappon tendered his resignation. Cappon was told at the time he could remain another year at Kansas if he desired, the dean said. The matter of scouting was not discussed at the meeting, Cappon said.

Coach Denies Complicity.

Other than to declare "I had nothing to do with it," Cappon refused to discuss reports that a group of Lawrence fans sent scouts to the Missouri-Ames game to bring back diagrams of Missouri plays for use in drilling the Jayhawkers preparatory to the annual Missouri-Kansas game. Missouri entered the clash with Kansas a heavy favorite but the Jayhawkers flashed a surprise and won, 14 to 7.

Dr. A. R. Kennedy, Lawrence dentist and former coach, who has been mentioned as one of three men sent to the Missouri-Ames game by Lawrence business men, refused to make any statement whatever on the subject.

Dean Arant, advocate of the conference rule against scouting, said no penalty was provided, the rule stating merely that "official and unofficial scouting shall be abolished."

Any scouting done during the season was without the knowledge or sanction of the Kansas Athletic authorities, he said.

Dean Arant added that Coach Cappon had told him that every Kansas game had been scouted for other teams but that he had insisted upon observance of the rule by the Kansas Athletic Department.

Little Concern at Columbia Over Reports of Scouting.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

COLUMBIA, Mo., Nov. 26.—Newspaper reports that University of Kansas authorities were planning to confess to Missouri Valley Conference faculty representatives the scouting of the Missouri-Iowa State College football game, which preceded Missouri's defeat at the hands of the Jayhawkers, brought little reaction here today. The conference has a rule prohibiting scouting, and the reported exposure at Kansas is the first intimation that all conference members were not living up to the agreement.

Dr. W. G. Manly, who is secretary of the Missouri Committee on Intercollegiate Athletics and secretary of the faculty representatives of the Missouri Valley Conference, said today that he thought it unlikely that Missouri would protest the game. He indicated that the Tiger institution probably would do nothing unless Kansas herself raised the question at the forthcoming conference meeting.

MISS UHLEN TAKES LEAD IN TENPIN MATCH WITH MRS. SUMMERS

Miss Ann Uhlen and Mrs. Marge Summers gave a good exhibition of bowling in the first five games of their special 20-game match which started last night at the Rogers alleys. Miss Uhlen took the lead by hanging up a total of 985 against her opponent's 840. Mrs. Summer's low score was due mainly to the large number of splits which she drew, 10 being chalked up against her, while Miss Uhlen drew six with two of them being converted into spares.

The scores:

Miss Uhlen, 190, 171, 223, 188, 213.

Mrs. Summers, 140, 200, 213, 141, 146.

Miss Uhlen has a lead of 145 pins going into the second block, which will be rolled tonight at the Delmar Recreation alleys starting at 6 o'clock.

The third block of five games will be rolled at the Rogers alleys on Saturday, Dec. 3, with the windup at the Delmer Recreation on Sunday, Dec. 4.

Y. M. H. A. CAGE TEAM BEATS FOURTH BAPTIST

Riley's Generalship Beat The Trojans, Says Rockne

"Irish" Touchdown Came on L ong Forward Pass After Defensive Backs Had Been "Sucked in" by Fake Buck; After That, "Safe" Game Saved Day for South Bend Team.

By Knute Rockne
(Notre Dame Football Coach.)

CHICAGO, Nov. 26.—Today is the third time that one of my teams has battled an eleven coached by Howard Jones. In 1921 Howard's Iowa team beat us 10 to 7 and last year Notre Dame beat his Southern California boys 13 to 12. Today, with thanks to Dahman's trusty toe, Notre Dame again beat Southern California, 7 to 6.

When we play in Los Angeles next year I hope either Howard Jones' boys beat us 20 to 0 or we win 20 to 0. Games like this are too hard on the nervous system.

The field was a little slippery but not bad. The weather, however, was typically Los Angeles and the Trojan boys must have felt at home. Instead of the chilly blasts which they must have been expecting, they had a typically California day except that there was no sunshine.

ROCKNE.

Both teams were minus the services of two very excellent players. Niemiec, one of Notre Dame's stars, was on the side line unable to play, while Howard Jones left Don Williams, one of his aces, back at Los Angeles, however, the excellent ball carrying shown by Flanagan and Drury was good enough to satisfy the appetite of any enthusiast. If it had been a dry field there is no doubt that both of these men would have contributed really long runs. Drury fell twice when loose on the open and so did Flanagan.

Drury opened up early in the game by ripping off tackle and around end to our 10-yard line, where he was held for three downs. On the fourth down, however, he dropped back and threw a beautiful pass to Saunders, who scored the only Trojan touchdown. The California kicker missed goal and this apparently minor incident lost the game.

Riley a Good General.

I will no doubt be critised by many of the experts for starting a second string backfield but I had my own reasons and I know of no particular reason for starting them. However, I am reminded of the time last summer when I had my tonsils out. When I told the local plumber I was going to have my tonsils out, he told me how foolish I was and said that it was the wrong thing to do, if he knew anything about it.

But enough of that. I immediately put Riley, Flanagan and Dahman into the backfield and Captain Smith chose to receive. The Southern California defense was overbalanced on the strong side to stop Flanagan, but Riley, with a fine choice of plays, sent Flanagan back through the weak side and over center on spinner and semi-spinner plays, alternating on plunges and the split buck.

When they reached the 30-yard line, however, they suddenly stopped. On the critical third down Riley called his numbers. The ball was snapped to him and he faked to Collins who drove into the line as if for a line plunge. The Trojan backfield was sucked up. However, instead of giving the ball to Collins, Riley hid it and, stepping back, threw a long pass to Dahman, who had slipped up the field unnoticed and was entirely uncovered.

With the score 6 to 6, Notre Dame lined up and Dahman kicked the ball clear between the goal posts for what proved to be the winning point. With the score 7 to 6 in favor of Notre Dame the Irish strategy was to play absolutely safe from then on, which they did. In the second half Drury who had been raising such havoc, slowed down perceptibly but even so, the Irish defense was tested to the utmost to stop him as well as this fullback Edelson, who is certainly a sweet plunger.

Dahman Played Great Game.

There were several very peculiar breaks. One in particular happened late in the third quarter. Dahman, who had been doing quite well all afternoon, was rushed on this particular occasion and he kicked short, giving the Trojans the ball just 25 yards from the goal line. Finding themselves stopped on straight football, Drury threw a nice pass which a California man bobbled into the hands of Notre Dame player who also juggled it and the ball then landed in the end zone. There was a furious scramble for the ball. However, the officials ruled and rightly so, that the pass was incomplete in the end zone and therefore a touchback.

It is hard to say who starred for Notre Dame besides Flanagan. Dahman played one of the best all-around games of his career. Quarterback Riley, with crippled knees, gamely went through the entire contest. Wynne was a power on defense and stopped Drury repeatedly. The entire Notre Dame line played a beautiful defensive game. Smith, Poliskey, Walsh and Fredericks vieing with each other. Little Smith, a 165-pound guard, was the first man down on every punt and for his weight is one of the greatest guards the game has ever known. Drury, Edelson, Hibbs, Boren, Moses and Heiser played great football for Southern California.

It was a remarkably clean game and the officialling was all that anyone could ask. Any time an intense game goes on and the work of the officials is not noticeable, it means that the officials are doing a crackerjack job.

Wilson's Two Touchdowns For Army Beat Navy, 14-9

as he slid across the goal line to complete the most thrilling play of the game. The Middies had the ball on Army's 28-yard line at the time but Lloyd's tremendous heave covered almost half the length of the field.

Although it was the means of their principal tally, the aerial game of the Middies was seldom a real threat. Contrary to expectations, it was the Navy's running game that caused the Cadets the most trouble, repeatedly upsetting the vaunted and veteran West Point forward wall.

Army Line Holds.

Led by Joe Clifton of Paducah, Ky., who was well supported by Ransford and Lloyd, the Navy's rushing attack continually menaced the Army in the first half and regained its stride once more in the final quarter. Clifton darted, bullet-like, through big holes in the soldier line but he found this barrier impenetrable, when its back was to the wall. A 15-yard penalty, as they held the ball on Army's five-yard line, broke up the first big Navy attack but, in the second period, it was unable to cross the Cadet goal line in five thrusts from the three-yard mark.

This was the most heroic defensive stand of the game. Twice Clifton plowed into the massed forwards, barely making a yard each time. Lloyd took a turn at tackle with only a foot to show for his plunge, then Clifton made the final thrust, only to be piled up in the swirling mass with the goal inches away.

A Brilliant Spectacle.

The game, a brilliant but not as spectacular a pageant as it was a year ago in Chicago, was witnessed by the largest crowd it has ever attracted in the East, as great an assemblage as ever saw a football battle in New York.

Secretaries Wilbur and Davis, Mayor Jimmy Walker, high officers of both branches of the service mingled with thousands of fans, forming backgrounds that had their most colorful features in the grey-coated corps of Cadets and the blue-clad brigade of Midshipmen. Cheers roared and echoed from one side of the field to the other as the rival admirals and generals of the future vied for vocal honors.

But the Cadets had the last cheer and turned loose their spirit of celebration in a snake dance that was interrupted only long enough to uproot the goal posts.

RITOLA AGAIN IS VICTOR IN CROSS COUNTRY

Millrose A. A., by Placing Three Men Among First Four, Noses Out Finnish-American A. C.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Nov. 26.—Willie Ritola, deep-chested distance ace of Finland's Olympic team, shot over the six miles of the Van Cortlandt Park cross-country course to his fifth national senior A. A. U. championship today, but the Finnish monopoly of team honors was broken for the first time in six years.

By the narrow margin of one point, a well-balanced Millrose A. A. outfit nosed out Ritola's Finnish-American A. C., placing three men among the first four finishers.

Taking the lead near the halfway point, the Finnish carpenter won as he pleased in 29 minutes, 27 1-5 seconds, just one-fifth of a second slower than the course record he set in 1925.

Titterton Runs Second.

Although they could not come within 200 yards of beating the flying Finn, Frank Titterton, gray-haired mechanic; Johnny Bell, sprightly student for the priesthood, and Verne Booth, lanky traveling salesman and intercollegiate champion in 1923, came trooping over the line in that order for the next three places for Millrose. Ben Merembeck, of the University of Pennsylvania, and John Romig, former intercollegiate champion at Penn State, were fifth and sixth, running for the Meadowbrook club, Philadelphia.

The Millrose score of 49 points was gained with its second, third and fourth, a fifteenth and 25th place.

Besides Ritola's first, the Finnish-American title defenders placed eighth, ninth, fourteenth and eighteenth for a total of 50. The Meadowbrook club was third with 69. The others finished as follows:

Shanahan Catholic club, Philadelphia, 77 points; New York A. C. 113; Dorchester (Mass.) club 115, and Central Y. M. C. A. New York, 157.

Until today the reign of the Finns had been unbroken since it began in 1922. Ritola has won every year since then except 1924 when he did not run. This was the first triumph since 1919 for the Millrose A. A.

Protests were filed after the race against several runners on technical grounds and will be ruled on later.

BETHLEHEM OUTCLASSES NEW YORK GIANTS IN LEAGUE SOCCER GAME

BETHLEHEM, Pa., Nov. 26. — Bethlehem Steel Soccer club defeated the New York Giants here this afternoon in an American Soccer League game by the score of 2 to 0 and immediately afterward started on a train journey to Fall River where tomorrow they are slated for another league game.

The score by no means indicates the superiority of the Bethlehem who monopolized the play to both the first and second half and it was only due to poor finishing that Bethlehem did not amass a greater score.

The league champions seemingly had no trouble whatever in advancing the ball to the vicinity of the Giants' goal but seemed inferent with their parting shots. With no one on hand to bar the goalis.

In spotting the players for the first eleven, athletes who have been on the side lines owing to injuries have been set back for rating on the second or third teams. Misfortune was theirs, of course, and the fault was not with them. However, it is only fair to give credit to the athletes whose good fortune it was to go through the season uninjured, giving their best services to their teams all the way.

Stars Out With Injuries.

Among the injured stars who, at their best through the season, would have been first team candidates hard to displace where Joe Holzinger, powerful halfback of the Kansas Aggies; Clark, nimble Missouri back and Flamank, the 200 pound Missouri fullback and captain; Haskins, fleet Oklahoman; Norris, Oklahoma tackle and captain, and Don Cooper, swift-moving back of the Jayhawkers. What a job would have been the task of picking the backfield had all these stars gone uninjured through the season!

A summary of the selections shows only five schools represented on the first eleven, six on the second, eight on the third. Nebraska lands five first team places, Missouri, three; Iowa State, Oklahoma and Kansas, one each. Kansas gets three second-team positions, with Iowa State, Missouri and the Kansas Aggies winning two each; Oklahoma and Nebraska, one each.

Oddly enough the summary of the selections brings out consistencies as well as inconsistencies.

Ray Lang, Western A. A. The coming bout will mark the third meeting of Lang and Costello. Lang represents the Tower A. C., while Costello is a member of the South Broadway boxing team.

By C. E. McBride,

Football and Basketball Official for Missouri Valley Conference.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Nov. 26.—The annual all-star elevens of the Missouri Valley Conference again are offered to the followers of the gridiron sport for whatever they may be worth and for the last time, as another year will bring a new and smaller organization, perhaps two of them. These elevens, as heretofore, have been selected after a cardul study of the opinions of coaches, directors, officials and football writers.

In spotting the players for the first eleven, athletes who have been on the side lines owing to injuries have been set back for rating on the second or third teams. Misfortune was theirs, of course, and the fault was not with them. However, it is only fair to give credit to the athletes whose good fortune it was to go through the season uninjured, giving their best services to their teams all the way.

Stars Out With Injuries.

Among the injured stars who, at their best through the season, would have been first team candidates hard to displace where Joe Holsinger, powerful halfback of the Kansas Aggies; Clark, nimble Missouri back and Flamank, the 200 pound Missouri fullback and captain; Haskins, fleet Oklahoman; Norris, Oklahoma tackle and captain, and Don Cooper, swift-moving back of the Jayhawkers. What a job would have been the task of picking the backfield had all these stars gone uninjured through the season!

A summary of the selections shows only five schools represented on the first eleven, six on the second, eight on the third. Nebraska lands five first team places, Missouri, three; Iowa State, Oklahoma and Kansas, one each. Kansas gets three second-team positions, with Iowa State, Missouri and the Kansas Aggies winning two each; Oklahoma and Nebraska, one each.

Oddly enough the summary of the selections brings out consistencies as well as inconsistencies. For instance, Missouri places eight men on the three teams, indicative perhaps of the strength of the Tigers through the season's play. Nebraska, however, places five men on the first team to Missouri's three. How could that be, a Missouri rooter might inquire, when the Tigers defeated Nebraska? Easy enough, the Nebraska rooter would reply, pointing to the record of first downs and yardage gained in the game to illustrate his argument.

It's the Man That Counts.

However, in this regard it should be made plain that the players of these mythical all-star elevens are selected for their individual merit, regardless of the team they played on. Naturally, however, the teams that are "up there" throw their stars into the spotlight more than the teams that are low in the standings.

Kansas places four men on the three elevens, but not one on the first team. Kansas Aggies win only four places, but one of them is a first team position. Oklahoma gets three places, a man on each team, while Oklahoma Aggies get two and Drake and Washington each come in for one, Grinnell being the only team to go without placing a man.

Each of the three elevens represents an all-around strength that any all-star team naturally would carry. Kicking, passing, receiving, end-running, line plunging and a sturdy defensive play, both along the line and back of it—it's all there on each team.

Western Eleven Scores Touchdown to Knot Count in Final Quarter.

By the Associated Press.

PORTLAND, Ore., Nov. 26.—Scoring a touchdown in the final period when the game seemed hopelessly lost, Oregon State Agricultural College battled Carnegie Tech of Pittsburg to a 14-14 tie here today.

The Oregonians were the first to score when Melvin Whitlock, halfback, crashed through tackle in the first few minutes of play and ran 47 yards to the Carnegie 15-yard mark. From there the Aggies rushed the ball over in a series of short smashes off tackle and guard. The march began on the State 38-yard mark.

The crowd had hardly ceased cheering when the Pittsburg Tartans evened the count. The team from the East downed the kickoff on its own 23-yard line, and two plays later, Harpster, quarterback, tossed a lateral pass to Moorhead, halfback, who broke through the field to sprint 71 yards for a touchdown.

The second period was scoreless, although Carnegie had the advantage over the State College in yards gained and on the exchange of punts.

Carnegie's second score came at the opening of the last half when Harpster's splendidly placed boots forced the Staters back close to their own goal line. The Oregonians were penalized 15 yards for roughing, placing the ball on their own four-yard line, and from there, Harpster rammed through for the score.

Carnegie was penalized 15 yards for roughing, giving the State team first down on the Tartans' 20-yard line. Line crashes by Luby, half, and Maple, quarter, rushed the ball to the Carnegie 10-yard line. Whitlock, Aggie halfback, then playing end, scored on a deceptive double lateral pass from Maple to Twitchell.

Cleveland Club To Function Under 'General Manager'

Bradley to Make Appointment Tonight of Executive and Business Chief.

By the Associated Press.

CLEVELAND, Nov. 26.—Alva Bradley, new president of the Cleveland American League baseball club, announced tonight that he would name a "general manager" to take over the duties formerly executed by E. S. Barnard, former club president and now president of the American League, at a dinner to be tendered local sports writers tomorrow night.

The "general manager" will have presidential duties formerly executed by Barnard, but will not have the title of president now held by Bradley. He will be the active executive and business manager, a new office for a major league team.

Bradley said that little has been done toward selecting a team manager to succeed Jack McCallister, who was unconditionally released as one of the new president's first executive actions.

SEVEN HELD ON CHARGE OF SELLING BOGUS FOOTBALL TICKETS

TOPEKA, Kan., Nov. 26.—THE death toll in the ranks of football players in the United States during the 1927 season was set at 15 today in a report of statistics compiled by George E. Masters, manager of a Topeka Newspaper Clipping Bureau.

Illinois and Texas led in the fatalities, with three deaths each attributed to injuries received by players. Two were reported in Pennsylvania and one each in Kansas, Colorado, Oklahoma, Nebraska, New Jersey, Wisconsin and Michigan.

before Saussele h snagged one of his flips and cut through the Schurz team for a touchdown, running 20 yards. The try for extra point by rushing, failed.

Still conceiving the forward pass to be his only salvation, the Schurz field general resumed throwing them after the next kickoff. Savage again came to the fore here, intercepting a pass on the Schurz 44-yard line and dashing 24 yards before being tackled hard on the 10-yard line. But again instead of gaining, the Roosevelt backfield was thrown for losses and on fourth down Savage dropped back and placed a perfect placement effort between the uprights for a field goal, bringing the score up to 11. Savage's kick, from the placement to the goal posts was about 34 yards.

Drake Finishes Strong, Defeats California, 25-6

Nesbitt Is Star of Bulldogs' Victory Over Bruins of Southern Branch.

By the Associated Press.

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Nov. 26.—The football team from Drake University, Des Moines, Ia., and the Bruins of University of California, southern branch, scrambled and fought on even terms for two periods today, then the Southerners' defense crumbled under the Iowa drive and Drake won, 25 to 6.

SPORT SALAD

by J. C. Kofoed

Out of Luck.

THERE was a man in our town,
Who yearned for a career
Upon the operatic stage,
To rassel Meyerbeer.
Instead of which, upon a truck,
He rasseled coal and coke;
For he, alas was out of luck
Because he didn't smoke.

But he was not the kind of guy
To give up in despair;
So he concluded he would try
To give the truck the air.
Instead of having vain regrets,
A thought to him occurred:
He started smoking cigarettes
And warbled like a bird.

Whatever That Is.

The following "ad" under head of servants and waitresses wanted, we clip from the London Chronicle: "Nippies: Smart girls required as Trippies will be trained to become Nippies. Good salary paid whilst training."

Give us the low-down on that, will you, Watson?

DON'T be a Tripple all your life,
It's bound to drive you dippy;
Good wages earn the while you learn
To be a first-class Nippie.

We take it that Trippies and Nippies have to do with the serving of food. In view of which we should think "Tippies" would be more appropriate.

After you have heard the bedtime story, tune in on the "Mean Old Bed Bug Blues and be wafted to slumberland by the latest lullaby.

Too True.

THE skeeter's music gets your goat,
His singer leaves a welt;
The bed-bug doesn't sing a note
But he makes his presence felt.

Quite So.

All the taxi companies have agreed on a 25-cent flag pull. Indicating that the cab owners are all pulling together.

See where a lease on the northwest corner of Sixth and St. Charles was sold for $4,000,000. And 50 years we could have bought that corner for a song. But we couldn't sing or sign a note.

"Original Portrait of Laclede Exhibited."

And it cost only $750, which is the beauty of it.

The portrait of the founder of St. Louis may be seen at the Jefferson Memorial along with the trophies of Lindbergh, the man who put her on the map.

Laclede and Lindbergh were a great pair. One founded the city and the other blew the spirit into it.

ST. LOUIS WOMEN WIN HOCKEY GAME FROM URBANA

Miss Wilcocks Scores Three Goals as Mound City Girls Take Tournament Match, 8 to 2.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

EVANSTON, Ill., Nov. 26.—The St. Louis Women's Hockey Club today defeated Urbana by the decisive score of 8 to 2 in the Intercity Women's Hockey tournament in the Northwestern University Stadium. St. Louis Girl Athletes had previously lost to Chicago No. 1 and Madison, Wis., in earlier games of the tourney.

The St. Louis girls led at the half 3 to 1, playing aggressive hockey and keeping the ball in Urbana territory most of the game. The absence of Miss Long as goalkeeper for the St Louis eleven depriced the Brown team of one of its stellar performers, although the playing of Miss Max in front of the net was an important feature in the low score of the Urbana team.

Miss Wilcox topped the scoring efforts with three goals. Her teammates, Misses Chaplin and Gordon, tallied two goals apiece, with Miss Webb, left inside, accounting for the eighth St. Louis score.

Goalie Groblen, of the Milwaukee club, played goal keeper for Urbana. Chicago No. 2 won, 4 to 1, from Milwaukee in an earlier gaem today.

DR. PELTZER COMING TO AMERICA WITHOUT BOARD'S PERMISSION

BREMEN, GERMANY, Nov. 26.—DR. OTTO PELTZER is going to America on the steamship Bremen without obtaining the permission of the National German Athletic Board which has forbidden his entering any American or Australian events.

The champion sprinter was refused the board's sanction on the ground that he might over exert himself and fail to be in condition for the Olympic games in Amsterdam in 1928.

Dr. Peltzer declared that his journey was for the two-fold purpose of studying physical training methods at American universities and other athletic centers and to acquaint himself with American training and contest methods, preparatory to entering the Olympiad.

Referring to how he came to be an athlete, Dr. Peltzer, who is a schoolmaster, declared that one of his chief reasons was his desire to gain influence over German youth, as he feels they respect sportsmen most.

SORTIE EQUALS TRACK RECORD IN WINNING BOWIE CLOSING FEATURE

SCHWARTZ'S STAR 2-YEAR-OLD IS EASY WINNER

Has Advantage of Two Lengths at Finish of Mile and 70 Yards—20,000 Attend.

By the Associated Press.

BOWIE, Md., Nov. 26.—The curtain on the eastern racing screen was rung down here today and 20,000 race enthusiasts journeyed to the Prince George track to witness a special race program which was featured by the Endurance stakes, for 2-year-olds. It was contested over the mile and 70-yard route and the colors of A. C. Schwartz, the New York sportsman, were carried to victory by his sterling little colt Sortie, which was perfectly ridden by Fritz Weiner.

The colt ran the distance in 1:43, equaling the track record. The start was good and Girl Friend, coupled with Sortie, dashed to the front, with Solace second and Sortie third. Girl Friend held her lead to the far turn, when Solace moved into the lead but was joined by Sortie. As the field swung into the stretch Sortie dashed to the front and won by two lengths. Centaur was second by five lengths over Toro. The race was worth $10,875.

Charm Wins for Arlington.

Edward Arlington added another purse to his list when Charm ran in his silks and scored by a nose in the first race after leading all the way. He paid $10.10 for a $2 ticket. Rundale landed second and Memory third positions. Charm jumped away to the lead and appeared to be going easy but in the last sixteenth she tired and just lasted to win by a nose. Rundale took the place by a length and a half.

The Rolling Plains Stable's Sandy, carrying 140 pounds, won the second race, a five and a half furlong sprint and created a new track record for the distance. It was a sparkling performance and stamped the colt an excellent weight carrier. Polish, a 2-year-old was second, with Poly third. Poly was the favorite and suffered a lot of interference. The field ran well bunched to the stretch, where Sandy came with a rush on the outside, gaining the purse by a nose from Polish, who beat Poly a nose for the place.

Coe's Herodian Victor.

W. R. Coe wound up his eastern season with a victory when his colt Herodian led home a good field in the third event, a mile and a sixteenth gallop, for 3-year-olds and upward. Rucilla was second and Rolls Royce third. War Eagle ran a miserable race finishing many lengths back.

Herodian took up the running at the far turn and won by a head. Aucilla took the place by half a length from Rolls Royce.

DISPLAY—Greatest Horse of the Year

Display Has Great Chance To Pass Zev as World's Greatest Money Winning Horse

Colt Has Won $195,171 for Walter J. Salmon and Is Being Pointed for the $85,000 Coffroth Handicap.

By Clement Glaub.

Display, owned by Walter J. Salmon, and champion handicap horse of 1927, has a great chance to pass Zev as the world's leading money winning horse, should he start in the $85,000 Coffroth Handicap, at Tijuana, next spring. In three years on the turf, he has won $195,171 in stakes and purses. Zev's winnings totaled $313,639.

Display came into the limelight late this year when he won the Washington Handicap at Laurel, the Baltimore Handicap and Pimlico Cup at Pimlico. He is one of the best distance horses in the country, having proved this when he took first money in the mile and a quarter Washington and again when he won the Pimlico Cup Handicap at two miles and a quarter.

According to Tom Healey, the Salmon colt will be shipped to Tijuana shortly after the close of the Bowie meeting. The objective will be the $85,000 Coffroth Handicap, to be run March 18, and he is also entered in a number of handicaps at the Mexican track.

Handicappers all over the country think well of Display and have given him top weight in most of the handicaps on the Maryland tracks, forcing him to concede weight to such good horses as Chance Play, Princess Doreen, Jock, Edith Cavell, Bostonian and Edisto.

Best at Long Distance.

This remarkable race horse has won most of his races at distances of more than a mile and a sixteenth. He owns victories over Crusader, Mars and Black Maria at one mile and a quarter, defeated Edith Cavell, Edisto and Wandering Minstrel at a mile and a half, and beat Handy Mandy, holder of the American mile and a half record, at two miles and a quarter.

He is a 4-year-old home-bred colt and is by Fair Play-Cicuta by Nassovian. He started racing as a 2-year-old early in 1925 but did not show any form and was relegated to Salmon's second string stable, which then raced in Canada. In that year he started 12 times and won seven races. He earned $15,555 for his owner in 1925. Late in the year he showed promise of developing into a good horse and Salmon transferred him to his Eastern division, which raced on the Metropolitan and Maryland tracks. He struck his stride at Empire City and won a number of 2-year-old races.

The following year was his best. Among his victories were the historic Preakness Stakes, which had a value of $53,625, and the Latonia Championship at Latonia. He started 19 times in 1926, but won only three races. His winnings for the year were far ahead of his 1925 performance. The two stakes he won, coupled with the Niagara Stakes at Fort Erie, swelled his winning total to $104,420.

This year has been Display's busiest season. So far he has started 25 times and won seven races. He was second the same number of times and was third three times. By winning the Pimlico Cup Handicap Nov. 12, Display increased his 1927 winnings to $75,196. Among his conquests during the early part of the season were the Toronto Cup at Woodbine Park and the Ontario Jockey Club Cup. He also placed second in the Jockey Club Gold Cup at Belmont when the winner was disqualified.

A Consistent Runner Recently.

During the past month and a half Display has won four races and was second once. He started six times. Before that he was second three times and third once.

In winning the Pimlico Cup Handicap at Pimlico, Display turned the tables on the good Man O' War filly, Edith Cavell, which took Display's measure in Bowie Handicap. In the latter race Edith Cavell won by a half a length from the Salmon star at one mile and a half, but at the longer distance the Man O' War filly was no match for Display. The colt, as usual, started slowly, but worked his way up on the outside. He passed Edith Cavell at the mile post and then went on to win under a mild drive from Handy Mandy. Display turned the two miles and a quarter in 3:56 1-5. Edith Cavell, which won the event last year, holds the track mark for that distance. Her time for last year's running of the cup was 3:52 1-5.

At Laurel Display took the measure of W. R. Coe's good filly, Black Maria, W. M. Jefford's Mars and Glen Riddle Farm's Crusader. He was given weight by each of the horses and came from behind to win by a head from Black Maria. The race before that he won from Bostonian. Jock and a few other good handicap horses at one mile and a sixteenth.

Early in August, Display was shipped to Saratoga. He did not win a race at that track, but finished close up to some of the best handicap horses in the East. In the Jockey Club Gold Cup at Belmont Park, Display finished third to Brown Bud and Chance Play, but was placed second when the winner, Brown Bud, was disqualified for fouling.

Johnny Maiben His Rider.

In all his engagements in the East, Display has been ridden by Johnny Maiben, who has given the colt some good and bad rides. Maiben's worst ride was in the Bowie Handicap. He rode Display wide on all the turns and allowed the colt to drop too far behind the leaders. In spite of this bad horsemanship, he closed with a great rush and was overtaking the winner with every stride.

Display is intended for Salmon's Stud farm and will be sent there after the running of the Coffroth Handicap and his record indicates he will stand at the head of the stud.

Five Principia Teams Played 29 Games, Won 13

Academy Squads Were Defeated in 12 Contests and Tied Four.

By Davison Obear.

The five football teams at Principia Academy participated in 29 games during the past season. This number exceeds the 1926 record of 21 games. In the 29 contests played, Principia teams scored 13 victories, were defeated in 12 games and the four remaining contests each resulted in a tie score. The five teams scored a total of 225 points as compared to 313 points counted by the opposing elevens.

Alfred E. Marquard returned as coach of the varsity team after an absence of one year. The team won four of its six games and the season as a whole was considered satisfactory. The schedule was the most difficult one in football history at Principia. The two defeats were at the hands of teams representing Kemper Military Academy and Wentworth Military Academy, both of whom were considered above Principia class.

Six Regulars as Nucleus.

At the start of the season Coach Marquard had only six regulars from last year. For the first time in many years there were at least three promising candidates from among the new students. The material from the second academy team of last season also looked encouraging.

In its first game the Academy defeated Soldon High, 9 to 0; Kemper then came to Taylor Field and gained a 38-to-0 victory. Principia won its Dad's day contest from the Western Military Academy eleven, the score being 12 to 6. Cleveland High was defeated, 12 to 0, in the next contest. Coach Marquard's players journeyed to Lexington, Mo., and met defeat at the hands of the powerful Wentworth Military Academy team. The score was 55 to 7. The final game of the season ended in a pleasing surprise. Jefferson City Junior College was defeated, 10 to 0. The visitors had held the Kemper M. A. outfit to a 6-to-0 score, and with a 32-point advantage on comparative score expected to win from Principia by at least several touchdowns.

Class B Team Undefeated.

The fourth or Class B team at Principia was undefeated during the season. Coached by J. M. Laughlin, the team won five games and tied the sixth contest. The team rolled up a total of 111 points to 12 counted by opponents. Coach Carey Browne's third team participated in five contests, winning two, losing two, and gaining a tie in one game. The second Principia eleven won two, lost four and tied one game while the Class C or fifth team lost four games and scored a tie in the remaining contest. George Kilbourne was coach of the second squad while Robert Fisher directed the Class C team.

HOT TIME TIES TRACK RECORD AT LEXINGTON

Yeddo, Sired by Man o' War, Is Second in Au Revoir Handicap, Feature of Closing Day.

By the Associated Press.

LEXINGTON, Ky., Nov. 26.—The 1927 racing season in Kentucky ended here today, with the Au Revoir Handicap, as the headline event.

In winning the race, which was run over the futurity course, Hot Time tied the track record of 1:08 4-5. Yeddo, sired by Man O'War was second, Barbara was third. The winner was ridden by J. Bollero and owned by the Joliet Stable.

D. M. Grabner's Dr. Maxon, outclassed the field in the first race and came down to take the heat from Chesterbrook. The latter and Blue Granite fought out for the place. Jockey Earl Pool got his mount off on top and added a length to his lead at every post and was six lengths in front at the wire. In the second race, for maiden 2-year-olds, non-winners, Chum from A. Kane's stable, graduated from the maiden class. The winner suffered some interference at the start but moved up gradually and was three lengths in front of Patsy H. at the finish. Jack Rabbit showed.

The third race went to Petruchio in an affair for 2-year-olds. The Belle Isle Farm stable's colt, well up throughout the journey, took the race from Runaway Princess by a length, who was half a length in front of Old Fellow, at the end. F. Chiavette rode the winner.

Running the mile in 1:37 2-5, within two-fifths of a second of the track record, William Penn, won the fourth, a handicap for 2-year-olds by a nose and Typhoon took the place away from Irish Pal by a neck. The C. T. Worthington colt was ridden by S. Stretton. Nick Cullop was the only other starter.

Tommy Tickle, from an outside position, broke slowly, but moved into lead with a rush and, holding on well, after slight shaking up, won well in hand. Bright Spangle raced prominently for the entire trip and held on gamely. Cherry Brook was away slowly, moved up strong and, saving ground on the stretch turn, but weakly ridden near end. Nine Sixty, raced in closest pursuit, hung on well, but was not good enough. Chief Sabbatius, into lead at once, had much speed to stretch, impeded Amy A. sharply when tiring. TATE BRADY TO PLAY FULLBACK FOR WELLSTONS IN SOCCER FEATURE

FEATURE

HUSKY FRESHMEN TO JOIN BILLIKEN TEAM NEXT YEAR

Willets, Center, and Joseph, in Backfield, Two 200-Pounders, Graduate From "Frosh."

By Jack Alexander.

Weight and experience—the missing elements in the 1927 football squad of St. Louis University—will be supplied next season, partly by this year's freshman team and partly by the flight of time.

Coach Mathews will have his first string lineup almost intact when he starts work next fall. Eddie Jordan and Eddie Feld, backs, and Erwin Crecelius, guard, alone will be missing. Each has played his three years.

The remainder of the squad will be back, hardened and wised up by the past season and not unlikely a few pounds heavier. An athlete of college age gains weight naturally from one season to another.

Heavy Men Coming Up.

From this year's freshman squad a few heavy boys will come up to the varsity. A 200-pound center, Forest Willets, former Central High player, will be hard to keep out of a job. Willets is not only big, but during the past freshman season showed that he had lots of fire and ability. In 1926 he was chosen center on the all-star public high school eleven.

Another promising local product is Frank Sutemeier, 180-pound guard, who formerly played on the Christian Brothers High team in the Prep League. Leslie Roberts, 168 pounds, played guard at Roosevelt High School. Stafford is a good looking tackle weighing about 170 pounds.

John Stillieck, 185-pound tackle from Belleville High, will be a welcome addition to the line if he can make the grade. That about clears up the weight addition to the line. A couple of light ends will make things interesting for the lightweights now holding down the jobs. They are Stringfellow, of Leland (Miss.) High School, and Ford Brown of Marshalltown, Ia. Stringfellow weighs 160 and Brown 165.

200-Pounder for Backfield.

In the backfield a heavy youngster who gives a lot of promise is "Firpo" Joseph, who weighs around 200 pounds. Joseph, a product of Toledo (O.) was one of the frosh stars during the past season and with a little hustle can make the varsity next year.

Harlan Gazelle of Leland (Miss.) was another frosh ground gainer. Gazelle has possibilities which ought to come out under the wand of Mathews but he is light, weighing only 162.

Saul Nardorf from Plainfield (N. J.) High School is already a slick and elusive back, but his weight is only 155. However, with men like "Firpo" Joseph and Joe Lintzenich in the backfield, there is room for a flyweight or two. Lintzenich, it is believed, will recover from his knee injury and play next season.

STAR RETURNS WHEN REGULARS SUFFER HURTS

Nolan and Hitchcock Out With Injured Knees — Tablers Meet Morgans in First Game.

By Dent McSkimming.

As a result of injuries to several of his regular players, Manager Tate Brady finds himself confronted with the necessity of playing left full back for his Wellston Club against the Ben Millers in the second game of the St. Louis Soccer League double-header at Sportsman's Park.

Brady retired as an active participant two years ago, but recently Jimmy Nolan and Walter Hitchcock, the regular fullbacks, have suffered knee injuries and the club will be further weakened through the absence of Halfback Danny Schirwan.

Schweppe Out of Game.

The Ben Millers will have to get along without the services of Center Halfback George Schweppe. An abscessed tooth has developed into a serious infection. Heidenry will probably play in Schweppe's place.

Billy Foley's club, with several regulars absent, was held to a 2-2 score by the St. Josephs College team in an annual Thanksgiving Day game at Webster Groves last Thursday.

Manager Harry McCarthy threatens to introduce today another new fullback in Eddie Lee, who was a teammate of Jim McCarthy, Nick Haidy, Benoist and others on the Champion Killarneys in the Municipal League last season. The Tablers must be at their best to beat the Morgans, for the latter club has been strengthened materially. Johnny Marre will be available to use his regular right halfback. Jose Rodriguez, for he has an injured right ankle. Phelan and Bill McCarthy will play fullback with a possibility of Andy Hack getting in for one half.

Tommy White Coming Back.

It was learned yesterday that Tommy White, who played halfback for the Ben Millers for several seasons, will be released after today's games and will be signed by the Wellstons. White will help Brady's club, but the Ben Millers have a surplus of backfield material and could not give him active duty.

Seek Peewee Fitzgerald.

Leo "Peewee" Fitzgerald, the brilliant inside left forward of the Ben Millers of three years ago, is said to be giving an attentive ear to offers from one of the St. Louis Soccer League teams to return to the game after a long vacation. It is not likely that the Ben Millers will let him go to a rival club for nothing. Billy Foley can use Fitzgerald and if "Peewee" refuses to play with his old teammates he may be offered in trade.

By Walter Davenport.

DEAR PATSY: A fellow by the name of Hymie Fogarty come in to the gym yesterday while I was hanging around doing a little shadow boxing waiting to see if the Dorgan A. C. had a fight for me in the near future. He says you would know him and that he was thinking of going in to the wrastling racket.

He says he got the contracts of two wrastlers from a fellow who owed him a hundred and forty bucks and was broke. One of the wrastlers is Big Johonnus the Bohemian Bouncer and the other is Willy Loopchock of Mauch Chunk, Pa.

"If you are going into the wrastling racket you will have to have more haulers than just two," I said. "You can't go around the country wrastling two boys all the time even if you do change their names every hundred miles. You got to have at least ten wrastlers to get anywhere like Jack Curley."

"Before you hand me out a lot of advice on how many wrastlers I need," he said, "let me ask you something. Have you got two hundred bucks you want to invest in my stable? That is what I want to know. Listen.

"This guy who owed me the hundred and forty bucks," he said, "told me he didn't have the jack and as far as he knew was not going to have it at any time in the future. He said he was very sorry that I was not going to get the jack but that he was going to do what was right and give me Big Johonnus and Willy Loopchock who were a couple of good wrastlers if he did say so myself. He said he would not part with them if it wasn't a case of doing the right thing to a fellow like me who let him take a hundred and forty dollars which he couldn't pay back.

Emancipation Don't Go.

"SO THE next thing I know," he said to me, "I owned a couple of wrastlers which after I looked them over I decided to set free. I told Big Johonnus he was a free man and could go around wrastling where he wanted to and would not have to split a nickel with me or anybody else because he did not have any manager any more.

"But Big Johonnus can't speak the language so he takes me by the coat and we find Willy Loopchock. I told Willy the same thing. I said, 'Willy you and Big Johonnus here are a couple of free men from now on. You and him can go out wrastling every night as far as I am concerned and you get the whole purse and don't have to split a nickel with nobody because you ain't got no manager any more.'

"'Is that so,' said Willy. 'Listen. 'Spider Cohen was our manager and give us to you because he owed you a hundred and forty bucks. That makes you our manager. In our contract you took off Spider Cohen it says you got to feed us and find us a room to sleep in between bouts and you are to get anywhere like Jack Curley.'

"'Sure,' I said, 'but I do not want any of your jack. I am turning you loose.'

"'Is that so,' said Willy. 'Well you ain't turning me and Big Johonnus here loose either. Also we are both pretty hungry and would like to hit the hay too because Spider Cohen was flat and could not afford any groceries or a room for us which is why we told him to turn us over to somebody he owed money too. Now Johonnus and me know a restaurant where they keep on feeding you until you stop and we haven't et since Thursday. Come on.'

"'Well,' I said, 'I hope you and Big Johonnus eat hearty. If I was you I would lay in a couple of flocks of hams after which you will be wanting to come around and call me Abraham Lincoln or something for setting you free. Eat heavy.'

"With that," Hymie said to me, "I was about to go on about my business when Big Johonnus takes me by the coat. Willy Loopchuck wanted to know what I thought I was doing.

"'Listen,' said Willy, 'when we eat we take our manager with us so that the man can have somebody to hand the check to. We are your wrastlers and between bouts we eat on you, see.'

"Well," said Hymie Fogarty to me, "these birds et until they busted their shoe laces which set me back fourteen dollars in a dump where two dollars would buy a truck load of beef stew. So you can see what I am up against. I am coming down here to you like a honest man asking you to take a share in my stable of wrastlers, Big Johonnus and Willy Loopchuck, for two hundred bucks."

"Listen," I said. "I am sorry but I would not give two hundred bucks for two hundred wrastlers much less two earthquakes like you had wished on you."

A Desperate Man.

"WELL," he said, "I got another proposition. I know your manager, Patsy O'Brien, like a brother and I know he would say yes if he was here. Let me park my two wrastlers in your gym here until I can get a match for them which will bring in a lot of jack after which I will pay you for storage. I am a desperate man. I got to park these bozos somewheres and the cops won't let me stake them out in the park. Besides I got a hunch this Big Johonnus is going to do something more than take me by the coat unless I get him and Willy Loopchuck bedded down somewheres. They can sleep in the basement or anywheres. Besides you can use them for sparring partners. Johonnus would make a swell sparring partner. You could hit him with everything you got and he would not mind it because he would not know it."

So Patsy I give in. Big Johonnus and Willy Loopchuck are now down in the basement of the gym now sleeping off a load of delicatessen Hymie Fogarty bought from a dealer who went broke and is selling off a lot of old stock.

Maybe you will be a little sore at first but when all is said in done as they say you can't let a man stand out in the rain night after night even if he is a wrastler. They are nice quiet boys and as far as I can see we will not have any trouble with them unless it is with Big Johonnus' wife who is been looking for him for two months now and has been threatening to sue somebody for taking her husband away from his good job in a cracker bakery in Philadelphia. Willy Loopchuck says he can handle her and that he will do all the talking if she shows up. The reason Willy knows all about her is that she is his sister and she kept house for both him and Big Johonnus before the boys took up wrastling and wandered off as they say.

Let me know if you can get me a couple of fights as the cash is running a little low and if Hymie Fogarty don't get his wrastlers a couple of bouts he will not be able to come through with the storage money on his stable and we can't let them starve to death in the basement of the gym.

Yours truly,
K. O. FRISBIE.

Only Hoofers Needed Now.

DEAR FRISBIE: If Big Johonnus and Willy Loopchock are in my gym when I get back I am not going to try to control myself at all. What are you trying to do, turn the place into a museum? The only thing you need now is a couple of hoofers out or work and you could almost charge admission.

I don't know any body named Hymie Fogarty but I know what he has done. He has unloaded a couple of tons of wrastlers on us which is a smart trick. Also he seemed to know just who to pull the trick on. If ever a prizefighter had advantage taken of him it was you.

Let me tell you what to do. You go out and find Big Johonnus's wife and tell her where her husband and her brother are. See that she gets them. Don't get her mad. She might refuse to take them. Let me know when they are gone. I am not coming back until they are.

Your Manager,
PATSY O'BRIEN.

PENALTIES GIVE BOSTON COLLEGE VICTORY, 6 TO 0

Holy Cross Makes 62-Yard Drive and Has Ball on the Four-Yard Line When Final Gun Barks.

By the Associated Press.

BOSTON, Nov. 26.—Thirty yards, worth of penalties on two plays for unnecessary roughness and not enough seconds in a minute cost Holy Cross the decision against Boston College and sent the Worcester collegians down to a 6 to 0 defeat in the twenty-fifth annual gridiron joust between the two Jesuit institutions here today.

The lone Boston touchdown came with startling suddenness at the fag end of the fourth quarter after 50 minutes of scoreless battling, and seemingly after Holy Cross had worked out of a bad hole. Blondy Ryan, the Worcester quarterback, intercepted a Boston College pass on his own 15-yard line and struggled back with the ball for 11 yards.

The rangy purple quarterback then unleashed his own forward passing attack, but his first toss was incomplete and his team was set back 15 yards for unnecessary roughness in the line. Again Ryan passed, again it was grounded and again Holy Cross was set back 15 yards for rough line play.

The second penalty landed the ball less than a yard from the purple goal line and for the fifth time in the afternoon Ryan dropped back into his own end zone to kick out of danger. But the ball never struck his toe. Charlie Murphy, Boston College right end, was on top of the kicker before he could swing his leg. The ball disappeared under a thrashing tangle of players and when Referee Vic Schwartz reached the bottom of the heap he found the ample form of Warren McQuirk curled around the leather. Boston took too much time lining up for the kick and was ruled out of the chance to try for the extra point.

For the remaining four minutes of play it looked to 35,000 frenzied spectators as if that goal line delay might cost the Maroon and Gold the game, for Holy Cross staged an exhibition of sheer grit and fight from the following kick-off that carried them 62 bitterly contested yards to the Boston four-yard line, where the final whistle halted the fray with the tying touchdown and possible winning point almost within the Purple's grasp.

Except for one pass, Ryan to Karpowich, and a 5-yard offside penalty against Boston College, the Holy Cross advance was made by bruising line and tackle thrusts.

The Call of the Outdoors

By ALEC MERMOD

THE duck hunters have had an unusually good season so far and it bids fair to last for some time, but the quail shooting has not been up to expectations. This does not mean that there are very few birds in the country (though they are scarce enough at best) but farming conditions have been changing during the past few years and quail have changed their habits to quite an extent, so that they are hard to locate, and when the covey is flushed the scattered birds take to the thickest brush and, as a rule, will not lie well for the dog.

The writer spent last week-end near Hermann, Mo., and hunted on farms where conditions seemed ideal for a good quail crop, plenty of ragweed in good stuble, plenty of ever-running water, timber on all sides and a cane patch close by; besides these favorable natural conditions, this land is miles off the highway and has not been shot over this season, yet the birds were scarce and were found much closer to the timber than is usual at this time of the year.

Hunters Should Arrange for Planting.

THOSE who have visited the Farrelly preserve near Jonesburg have found plenty of birds and are well pleased with the future outlook. The writer spent one day last week lookin over part of the leased ground to determine just where to locate the game sanctuaries and found some ideal spots for turkey and guinea fowl.

As stated before, this is not a money-making proposition, but simply the desire of a sportsman to preserve and propagate game and at the same time have some shooting while the wild life increases. While doing this a closer relation between the farmer and hunter is being established, which will be of vast benefit to all concerned.

Now is the time for the hunters to arrange with their farmer friends to plant small patches of cane, kaffir or cowpeas next spring so the birds will have plenty of food the following winter. While hunting it will be an easy matter for the sportsman to locate spots in the corners of the fields close to the timber and on ground which is not easily worked by the farmer for regular crops. Do this while shooting is fresh on your mind, if you postpone it till spring you will never get back to the farm, and another year will go by with nothing accomplished along this line.

Hunting "Permits" Are Worthless.

IN the weekly bulletin issued by the Game Department hunters are warned that permits to hunt are worthless. A hunting license must be carried by any one who is hunting, so do not put off getting your license till the last minute. If you are a hunter buy your license as soon as they are issued the first of the year, even if you do not expect to do any shooting, for it is the money from the sale of licenses that supports the department, which in turn protects the game that is already in our woods and fields, and is restocking the places where game is scarce.

I have a suggestion to make to sportsmen who are better talkers than I am and who make a more presentable appearance in their hunting togs. When in the country passing the district schools drop in and ask the teacher to allow you to address the scholars for about five minutes. Give the youngsters a talk on the importance of protecting wild life, offer a small bounty on hawks, ask them to locate the quail nests in the spring and to mark the location in such a way that the driver of the mower will be able to cut around this nest without disturbing the mother bird. Impress on the minds of the boys the importance of observing the law. I am satisfied that these talks will do a vast amount of good, for the school boy has a good memory, and he is not naturally inclined to do harm when he sees a good reason for doing otherwise. In addition to the bounty offer a prize to the boy turning in the largest number of hawk heads during the season.

Fishing Reported Good.

EDUCATION is going to do more for the cause than anything else, so do not neglect an opportunity to win over the small boy, for he will soon grow up.

The open weather we have enjoyed this month has been fine for the fishermen, who report splendid catches of bass and crappie in nearly all the nearby streams and lakes.

The Game Department reports the arrest of several law violators, and further states that a big force of deputies has been sent to patrol what is known as Irish Wilderness, a tract of 140,000 acres, situated in districts 32, 34, 35 and 36, where it is reported that deer are being killed regardless of the law. It is believed that a few arrests and convictions carrying a jail sentence will soon put a stop to this illegal killing.

Cabinet Dinner To Open Capital Social Season

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 26. — Washington's official social season will be launched formally next week when President and Mrs. Coolidge on Thursday evening give the first of their State functions—the dinner to the Cabinet.

Retaining much of the original form that has been in effect since the days when George Washington entertained at the President's house in New York City, the State entertainments at the White House are unostentatious but beautifully planned. Each first lady of the land lends some special individuality to the occasions.

During her regime as mistress of the White House, Mrs. Coolidge has introduced a custom of inviting about 100 additional guests for the musicale which follows the dinner. Invitations to many Senators and their wives and other high ranking personages in Washington's official life for the reception and concert were issued a week or 10 days ago.

While the Marine Corps Band always in recent years has presented a program preceding, during and just after the dinner, well-known musicians and singers deem it a high honor to be asked to take part in the musicale. The guests gather and seat themselves on the small gold chairs in the east room.

The Vice President and Mrs. Dawes who are the ranking guests of the dinner, have not yet arrived in Washington but are expected early next week.

Other feature events of Washington's society program are the entertainments of the Cabinet. Secretary of State and Mrs. Kellogg have issued invitations for a number of dinner parties, the first of importance to be held in the Pan-American Building on Saturday evening, Dec. 3.

On the following day, the first Sunday evening dinner given by a Cabinet member in many years will be that of Postmaster-General and Mrs. New in honor of the Ambassador of Great Britain, Sir Esme and Lady Isabella Howard.

Another notable affair of this first official week of the social season will have an appeal to the younger set. It is the debut tea of Miss Alice Brooks Davis, Saturday afternoon, given by her parents, Secretary of War and Mrs. Davis. Miss Davis already has been initiated into the debutante set, having attended the debutantes' ball at the Mayflower Hotel a few nights ago. She constantly has been entertained and feted since returning from a summer in Europe.

The visit of a distinguished official of a foreign Government, Governor-General of Canada and Viscount Willingdon and Viscountess Willingdon, also will be the incentive for a number of colorful and notable affairs. They will be in Washington Dec. 6 and 7 and will call upon the President and Mrs. Coolidge, marking the first time a titular ruler of a British Dominion has visited the White House and as a part of the exchange of formalities they will be the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Coolidge at a dinner. During their stay in Washington they almost literally will take possession of the Canadian Legation as guests of the Minister and Mrs. Vincent Massey, and will figure in a number of entertainments there, one of which will be a reception on Dec. 7.

Prime Minister Mackenzie King of Canada paved the way for the visit of the Governor-General, recently spending several days as the guest of Minister Massey and being entertained at the White House by Secretary Kellogg and at the Legation.

Home-made Remedy Stops Cough Quickly

Finest cough medicine you ever used. Family supply easily made. Saves about $2.

You might be surprised to know that the best thing you can use for a severe cough, is a remedy which is easily prepared at home in just a few moments. It's cheap, but for prompt results it beats anything else you ever tried. Usually stops the ordinary cough or chest cold in 24 hours. Tastes pleasant—children like it, and it is pure and good.

Pour 2½ ounces of Pinex in a pint bottle; then fill it up with plain granulated sugar syrup. Or use clarified honey, instead of sugar syrup. Thus you make a full pint—a family supply—but costing no more than a small bottle of ready-made cough syrup.

And as a cough medicine, there is really nothing better to be had at any price. It goes right to the spot and gives quick, lasting relief. It promptly loosens the inflamed membranes that line the throat and air passages, stops the annoying throat tickle, loosens the phlegm, and soon your cough stops entirely. Splendid, too, for bronchitis, hoarseness and bronchial asthma.

Pinex is a highly concentrated compound of Norway pine extract and palatable guaiacol, famous for healing the membranes.

To avoid disappointment ask your druggist for "2½ ounces of Pinex" with directions. Guaranteed to give absolute satisfaction or money promptly refunded. The Pinex Co., Ft. Wayne, Ind.

Scintillating with the glint of stolen gold from gay Autumn leaves, this color is bright and festive in tone. Harmonizes beautifully with Stroller and others of the tan family.

Gunmetal No. 2
A dark steel with a somewhat brownish tinge, is suggested by Drecoll for those costumes which require a gunmetal without that deliberate gray overtone.

Caresse
Dust-like brown with a hidden glint of green. For wear with black Shoes and those dark grayish-brown suedes. Worn with black under artificial light it changes and looks like sheer black with an olive cast.

Bronze
A quiet gray to perfect the Oxford and mode gray ensembles and to harmonize with the new gunmetal Shoes in both patent and opalescent kidskin.

These Colors with a French accent and many others equally chic, are created by Drecoll, the famous Parisian couturier, exclusively for Luxite Hosiery. Every color designed to harmonize with the season's mode. Luxite Hosiery shades are authoritatively correct—coming as they do from one of the world's greatest stylists.

You can find these smart French Hosiery colors at our new Luxite Section in a wide range of styles and sizes. Sheerest chiffons, beautifully textured service weights, smart Hose for the street and evening wear, all fashioned with characteristic Luxite excellence. Styles in every popular price range from

YOUR ST. LOUIS

How Well Do You Know It?

Smith & Davis Mfg. Co.

The SMITH & DAVIS MANUFACTURING COMPANY was established in 1871, by the late Messrs. Horatio N. Davis and J. G. Smith. They started the manufacture of bed springs in a small building at Second and Cherry Sts., which quarters they soon outgrew and moved to a commodious building on Twenty-Third and Lucas Avenue. These quarters proving inadequate, they built and moved into a substantial building, in 1893, on the northeast corner of Twentieth and Locust Sts., and in 1926 moved in the modern daylight factory they now occupy at 3900 Chouteau Ave., south of the viaduct, where they have excellent railroad facilities furnished by the Missouri Pacific and the Frisco. In the fifty-six years that the business has been in existence, it has always had the reputation of the highest business integrity and has been one of the outstanding figures in the industrial life of St. Louis.

Every day this space will be devoted to some one particular manufacturing plant or industry which is contributing to the rapid growth of St. Louis.

QUART OF WATER CLEANS KIDNEYS

Take a Little Salts if Your Back Hurts, or Bladder Is Troubling You

No man or woman can make a mistake by flushing the kidneys occasionally, says a well-known authority. Eating too much rich food creates acids, which excite the kidneys. They become overworked from the strain, get sluggish and fail to filter the waste and poisons from the blood. Then we get sick. Rheumatism, headaches, liver trouble, nervousness, dizziness, sleeplessness and urinary disorders often come from sluggish kidneys.

The moment you feel a dull ache in the kidneys, or your back hurts, or if the urine is cloudy, offensive, full of sediment, irregular of passage or attended by a sensation of scalding, begin drinking a quart of water each day, also get about four ounces of Jad Salts from any pharmacy; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast, and in a few days your kidneys may act fine.

This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for years to flush and stimulate the kidneys; also to help neutralize the acids in the system, so they no longer cause irritation, thus often relieving bladder weakness.

Jad Salts is inexpensive; makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink which everyone should take now and then to help keep the kidneys clean and active and the blood pure, thereby often avoiding serious kidney complications.

Great Federal Water Power And Waterways Projects Likely To Be Authorized by Congress

Administration Behind Boulder Dam Plan as Soon as Seven States Reach Agreement—Government Operation of Muscle Shoals for 10 Years to Be Demanded—St. Lawrence Project Also Coming Up.

By RAYMOND P. BRANDT,
Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.
WASHINGTON, Nov. 26.

"SUPER" power, "super" holding companies and "super" publicity will be subjects of searching investigation by Senate committees during the next session of Congress.

A water power battle is at hand. On one side are the public utilities interests, grouped under the banner of the Joint Committee of National Utilities Associations, which has already established a "super" lobby against all forms of Government regulation, ownership and operation. On the other side are the Progressive Democrats and Republicans, led by Senator Thomas J. Walsh (Dem.), Montana, the investigator who uncovered the oil scandals; Senator George W. Norris (Rep.), Nebraska, who has defeated all the moves to turn Muscle Shoals over to private interests, and former Gov. Gifford Pinchot (Rep.), Pennsylvania, an active advocate of national conservation.

Four legislative projects will supply the issue for the combat. These are the proposed building of Boulder Canyon Dam on the Colorado River, the proposed Government operation of Muscle Shoals, the St. Lawrence River Development, and the Walsh resolution to investigate the financing of public utilities companies. All will be opposed in one way or another by the power interests. The battle cries on one side will be "Government Ownership," "Government Regulation" and "Conservation of Natural Resources"; on the other, "No Government Interference in Private Business" and "Government Ownership Is Bolshevistic, Inefficient and Paternalistic."

Prospect Good for Boulder Dam

What will be the outcome? At present it looks as if the Boulder Canyon Dam project will be authorized, provided the seven interested states—California, Arizona, New Mexico, Utah, Nevada, Colorado and Wyoming—can reach an agreement at their next conference beginning Dec. 2. Likewise, it is almost certain that the Senate will pass the Shipstead resolution authorizing the President to appoint a commission to begin negotiations with Canada for the St. Lawrence development. Both projects have the indorsement of the administration.

There is no such unanimity of opinion about Muscle Shoals. A majority of a joint Congressional committee last session recommended that the Secretary of War be authorized to lease the property to the Muscle Shoals Power Distributing Co., representing 16 public utilities companies in the South. A minority recommended that it be leased to the American Air Nitrates Co. and the American Cyanamid Co., but this committee reckoned without Senator Norris, who is in favor of Government operation.

Furthermore, the Senate Agriculture Committee has recommended that for the next 10 years the Government should operate the plant and sell the power, giving preference to the distribution to states and municipalities. This proposal, which has Norris' approval, will be pressed. No one can say with any degree of certainty what the outcome will be.

Walsh Purposes to Head Inquiry

Senator Walsh says that his resolution for investigation of the financial structures of the power interests will be passed despite the efforts of the power lobby. Walsh wants to conduct this investigation.

The power interests are trying to divert the inquiry to the Federal Trade Commission, which, like the Tariff and the Interstate Commerce Commissions, has been "packed" with men with a "big business" viewpoint. With Nelson F. Nugent and Huston Thompson the only investigating body it used to be, gone, the Trade Commission is not.

Walsh's optimism seems to be well founded. Unless the power lobby develops unforeseen strength, his resolution will pass. Walsh says that he does not expect anything like the sensational disclosures that came from his investigation of the oil leases and that he is only paving the way for a program of Government ownership. He merely wants to ascertain who is getting the benefit from the tremendous consolidations now going on in the public utilities industry and how the abuses, if any, can be corrected.

From the Walsh investigation, the country at large may be able to learn how "super" holding companies can make as high as 145 per cent annually on their investment, and how $12,500,000 strategically placed can control a billion dollars worth of utilities properties.

The power lobby with its "super" publicity will undoubtedly attempt to discredit the investigation and its findings with the cry that the whole inquiry is "political." Walsh became used to that cry when he was uncovering the corruption in the oil leases.

The Walsh investigation and the legislative skirmishes over the three definite power projects have a "political" aspect, but not in the sense meant by the power group. If the fight becomes intense, there is every likelihood that the struggle will be continued into 1928 and that hydro-electric power will be a factor in the presidential campaign.

Seven-State Pact on Dam Probable

A final agreement on the Boulder Canyon Dam project is expected from the conference of states. The measure was kept from coming to a vote in the last session of Congress by a filibuster led by the Arizona Senators, Ashurst and Cameron. Since then considerable progress has been made in harmonizing the differences arising from the claims of the individual states. Much was done in that direction at a meeting of the seven Governors at Denver last August. Recently, Gov. George Henry Dern of Utah reported to President Coolidge on the results of this meeting and the prospects of the December conference. The President indicated that he would support the required Federal legislation.

Although this is a sectional project, the Nation as a whole is interested in it, financially as well as politically. The primary purpose of the dam is to protect the 60,000 residents of the Imperial Valley of California from flood.

The other purposes the dam would serve are: To create a 20,000,000-acre-foot storage reservoir which would supply Los Angeles and its environs with domestic water; to make possible an all-American irrigation canal, connecting the Imperial and Coachella valleys (the present canal runs into Mexico and has been a constant threat to friendly relations), and lastly, to build a complete hydro-electric power plant to take advantage of the 1,000,000 horsepower that could be generated at the dam.

The whole project would necessitate a Federal appropriation of $125,000,000. Under the present plans, this amount would be paid back within 50 years from profits from the power plant.

Power Lobby Fought Bill by Johnson

Last session the power lobby fought this bill, as introduced by Senator Hiram Johnson (Rep.), California, because of the proposed disposal of hydro-electric power. As a matter of fact, the bill gave the Government a choice among three ways of disposing of the power: (1) By contracts for the sale of power for "delivery at the switchboards to municipal corporations, political subdivisions and private corporations"; (2) by contracts for the lease of producing units of the power plant with the right to generate electrical energy, and (3) by contracts of lease for the use of water for generating the hydro-electric energy.

Under the last option, the private companies, not the Government, would build the generating plants. The cost of the project to the Government would thereby be reduced from $125,000,000 to $72,500,000.

Only under the first course would the Government operate the plant. Under the second the Government would build the plant but lease it to private companies. Under the third, the plant would be built and operated by the private companies, with the Government leasing the water rights to the companies.

The power lobby feared the bill because Secretary Work of the Interior Department has expressed his preference for the first method. Opponents of the bill apparently believe that his successor might hold the same view.

Another plan has been advanced by the power lobby—some of the most active of whom are Senators. This plan, they declare, would give all the main objectives of the Johnson bill, namely, flood control, irrigation and water for domestic use. They would erect a low dam at Mohave Canyon, 100 miles below the Boulder site, at a cost not to exceed $15,000,000, and would leave the development of the power resources of the Colorado River in the hands of private companies.

Twenty-four applications for permits to develop this power have already been filed with the Federal Power Commission, including that of the Southern California Edison Co., to build six dams at various points on the river with an installed capacity of 4,500,000 horsepower. A New York company wants to build a dam of its own at Boulder Canyon to develop 1,600,000 horsepower.

Under this plan, the private companies would get the use of the water free. They would have to pay for it under the Johnson bill. Therein lies the reason for their opposition to the Johnson bill.

Muscle Shoals Misrepresented

These opponents have made much of what they call "the great failure" of Muscle Shoals, the Government owned and operated hydro-electric plant with an installed capacity of 325,000 horsepower, about one-third the capacity of the proposed Boulder Dam plant. By harping on the "failure" legend, they have convinced some people that this plant is a "white elephant," which demonstrates that the Federal Government cannot successfully operate a great hydro-electric organization.

As a matter of cold statistics, the Muscle Shoals plant for the first nine months of the present year has received $917,515 from the sale of electricity at the plant at the absurdly low price of 2 mills per kilowatt hour. At one cent per kilowatt hour, this same energy would have brought in more than $4,000,000.

Why can't the Government get more than 2 mills per kilowatt hour? Because the constant agitation over disposition of the plans permits only short-term contracts with the Alabama Power Co., the only organization which, at present, has the distributing facilities in that territory. This low price is the reason why the Senate Agriculture Committee has reported out a bill authorizing the Secretary of War to enter 10-year contracts with distributing companies at a reasonable rate, and failing to get a reasonable return, to build Governmental distributing lines.

Cheap Fertilizer Involved in Issue

The question of cheaper fertilizers has always been mixed up with the Muscle Shoals problem. Many Congressmen are indirectly helping the power group by demanding that the plant be used for the manufacture of nitrates for fertilizer. But since the passage of the national defense act of 1916 authorizing the construction of Muscle Shoals "for the production of nitrates and other products for munitions of war and in the manufacture of fertilizers and other useful products by water power," experiments have disclosed that nitrates can be extracted from the air cheaper by steam power than they can be manufactured with the use of hydro-electric power.

Senator Norris is undoubtedly the best informed man in the Senate on the problem of Muscle Shoals. He advocates the permanent Government operation of the plant for the purpose of generating electricity. In order to make cheaper fertilizers available to the farmer, he says, let the Government use the profits from the sale of power for the erection of fertilizer plants where the latest and most efficient methods can be used. He has been successful in his effort—in the beginning, a practically single-handed effort—to keep Muscle Shoals out of private hands. He can be counted on to continue his fight.

During the Muscle Shoals skirmishes, the activities of the power lobby, particularly those of the General Electric Co., which controls the Alabama Power Co., were openly attacked on the floor of the Senate. This led to the Norris resolution for investigation by the Federal Trade Commission of the alleged power trusts, and indirectly to the resolution Senator Walsh will reintroduce at the beginning of the next session.

Norris Inquiry into Pyramiding

The Norris solution for investigation of the General Electric Co. was opposed by the power lobby, but the Nebraska Progressive was able to secure its adoption in a revised form by offering it as a "rider" to a resolution calling upon the Federal Trade Commission to make an investigation of the so-called tobacco trust.

Norris was seeking to ascertain how the General Electric Co. was able to dominate the power field by interlocking directorates and

Chicago Lake-to-River Canal, Link From City to Ocean, To Be Completed in 1930

Dream of More Than 100 Years to Become Reality in About 30 Months—With 9-Foot Channel in Mississippi River Established, Cargoes Can Go to New Orleans From Lake Ports.

By WILLIAM F. ALLEN,
Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.
CHICAGO, Nov. 26.

IN 1816, the Indians who owned Northern Illinois ceded to the United States Government a strip of land 20 miles wide through the valleys of the Chicago, Des Plaines and Illinois Rivers with the understanding that a canal connecting Lake Michigan with the Illinois River be constructed.

In about 30 months the job will be done.

After a century of looking yearningly southward to the sea, Chicago soon will watch its barges of commerce ride out the Chicago River, into the Chicago drainage canal, thence into the Des Plaines River, on into the Illinois, out upon the Mississippi, southward past St. Louis and on to the Gulf of Mexico and the world.

Dream of More Than 100 Years to Come True

Two more locks and dams in the Des Plaines remain to be constructed. Then the Illinois waterways, a dream since Albert Gallatin, Secretary of the Treasury first broached it in 1808, will have reached reality. Chicago and the State of Illinois will have achieved at a cost of $20,000,000, a towboat-barge shipping facility identical with that which St. Louis has had—and used only partly—since 1917.

Chicago hopes that the waterways will be a 9-foot channel, to match other arms of the spreading Mississippi system—the nine feet in the Ohio from Pittsburg, the nine feet in the Mississippi from Cairo. It is ready to put its shoulder, side by side with St. Louis, to shove through the next Congress appropriations that will make the Illinois River a nine-foot stream and convert the Mississippi from Grafton, north of St. Louis, south to Cairo, from a six-foot to a nine-foot channel. For Chicago is preparing to move big cargoes. It has made its locks big enough to handle a towboat and 10 1000-ton barges.

If Chicago can retain its privilege of taking, as now, 8500 second feet of water from the Great Lakes and pouring it down its new waterway, it will need only that the Federal Government dredge the shoal places of the Illinois River to establish nine feet.

Decision by Hughes an Aid to Program

Chicago rejoices in the recent decision of Special Master Charles E. Hughes that it undoubtedly can now and until 1929 take the necessary 8500 second feet. It wants Congress to renew that privilege at its expiration. Chicago learned long ago from its Great Lakes shipping experience that the larger the cargoes, the cheaper the cost and it wants large cargoes on its new waterway.

Virtually all of the $20,000,000 has been spent and is being spent in the 63-mile stretch in the Des Plaines and upper Illinois between Lockport and Utica. The fall of the Des Plaines and Illinois in that 63 miles is 140 feet. The task has been to convert swift rivers unsuited for commerce into smoothly moving, easily navigable streams. This is being accomplished with five locks and dams which will reduce the 140-foot slope to a 14-foot slope, providing simultaneously the necessary navigable depth for the distance. Each lock has 600 feet of usable length and a width of 150 feet.

Thirty months is not too far ahead to interfere with visualization of how Chicago will utilize this facility. The State is expecting that private capital will provide the operating fleets. Indeed, several large corporations, notably the International Harvester Co. and the Illinois Steel Co., already have made known their intention to have towboats and barges ready for the opening. It is a cheap way to the sea for their exports.

Second Dam Built Two Miles From Joliet

The first four miles of new course will be the Chicago River. The next 36 miles will be the Chicago drainage canal with a depth of 21 feet and a width of 160 feet. That brings the cargo to the end of the canal, and its entry into the Des Plaines River at Lockport. There has existed the first impediment to a natural channel to the Gulf, a plunge of the river in swift rapids. The first of the five dams had smoothed out the way here. It is complete and ready for operation.

The second lock and dam will be at Brandon road, two miles below the city of Joliet. Work on that was begun within the last two weeks. It involves shutting in the river with retaining walls for the entire length of its course past the city and the building of five bridges.

The third lock and dam will be at Dresden Island, 15 miles downstream from Brandon road and just below the confluence of the Des Plaines and Kankakee Rivers to form the Illinois. The site for this construction recently was acquired.

The fourth lock is virtually completed, three miles below the city of Marseilles. The fifth lock, just below Starved Rock, is in process of construction—about 65 per cent complete.

William F. Mulvihill, superintendent of the Division of Waterways for the State, is sure that no more than 30 months will be required for the closing work. All the litigation which for some time slowed the improvement has been cleared away. There remains ahead only swift construction.

Illinois and Chicago still are disturbed, however, over what Congress may do with the southern section of the waterway, between the last State lock and dam near Starved Rock and Grafton, where the Illinois empties into the Mississippi and with that section of the Mississippi between Grafton and Cairo.

$3,500,000 Needed for 9-Foot Channel

The State and its shippers have their determination set for a nine-foot channel. To get that channel, two things are required of Congress. The first is that the State be permitted to take a sufficient amount of water from the Great Lakes. The second is that

How the Lakes-To-The-Gulf barge route will connect Lake Michigan with New Orleans and the Gulf of Mexico.

Congress Expected to Appropriate $3,500,000 So Waterways Project for New Channel in Illinois River—Fleet of Barges and Towboats Planned to Operate on New Water Route.

Congress appropriate approximately $3,500,000 to take the shoals from the lower Illinois. That section of the new waterway has been maintained as a seven-foot channel. Chicago thinks that if there can be taken regularly from the Great Lakes 8500 second feet of water and if Congress provides money for dredging, the nine-foot channel can be maintained.

There seems to be little difficulty about the $3,500,000. Congress already has gone on record as authorizing a nine-foot channel. The next step is a specific appropriation to make it actual. Waterways advocates are finding themselves in increasing favor in Washington, and Chicago is quite sure the next Rivers and Harbors bill will have its $3,500,000 as one of the items.

It would be foolhardy, of course, to empty a nine-foot channel in the Illinois into a six-foot channel in the Mississippi; so there remains the necessity of an appropriation for a nine-foot channel between Grafton and Cairo. In that, Chicago will have the wholehearted support of waterways advocates in St. Louis, who long have recognized that the six-foot channel, particularly between St. Louis and Cairo, has hampered very greatly the barge shipping of St. Louis industries.

Other Lake Cities Oppose Diversion

In the matter of diversion necessary for a nine-foot channel, Chicago has encountered bitter opposition from other lake cities, notably Detroit and Milwaukee, who assert that the water Chicago is taking and wants to continue to take very seriously threatens their harbor improvements.

Chicago long since discarded the retort courteous and is hitting from the shoulder in reply. Mulvihill, who prior to his connection with the waterways project drafted the bill that created the sanitation district and knows the diversion controversy intimately, sketched the controversy to date.

"In the beginning Chicago, for purposes of carrying its sewage through the drainage canal, was permitted to divert 4167 second feet of water," he said.

"I may say in passing that Illinois and Chicago have spent far more than this closing $20,000,000 on this project. The drainage canal, which becomes part of the waterway cost $60,000,000, so our investment is $80,000,000.

"The rapid growth of the city of Chicago soon rendered this amount of water insufficient for sewage requirements. It had been necessary for the city to divert between 8500 and 10,000 second feet in the interest of public health. Our present permit—for five years, expiring in 1929, is 8500 cubic feet, granted by the Secretary of War. Various bills have been introduced in Congress from time to time to fix the amount of diversion, but Congress has not acted. It will act probably soon. At least it will be asked to terminate at once the controversy, with proper regulation.

Water Is Lowered, Lake Cities Assert

"Some lake cities have complained that this is affecting their harbor improvements adversely. The difference between the 4167 cubic feet of diversion and the 8500 to 10,000 necessary for health and to establish a nine-foot channel from the greatest lakes to the sea is a matter of only a few inches in the level on the lakes; at such points as Detroit, about 5 1-2 inches.

"Moreover, the city of Chicago has posted its $1,000,000 bond as evidence that it is ready to pay its share of the cost of regulatory works in the eastern outlets of the Great Lakes as a partial compensation of the five inches of lowered lake levels chargeable to the Chicago diversion.

"Now as to the benefits of this new highway for freight. The Illinois waterways is perhaps the most important project for the development for the improvement of inland navigation now under construction in the United States. Its completion will permit profitable navigation between all ports on the Great Lakes and to and from all river points in the Mississippi Valley. Shippers can load barges at Duluth and unload them at New Orleans for export. Minnesota, Wiscon-

LETTERS FROM THE PEOPLE

Illinois Miner Criticises Union.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

WALTER NESBIT, secretary-treasurer of the Illinois miners, recently thanked the Post-Dispatch for its attitude toward the recent strike. As a member of the miners' union and an admirer of the Post-Dispatch I also tender my thanks. However, I disagree with Mr. Nesbit when he speaks of the exploitation of the workers by the employers and their allies, unless he includes himself and his colleagues on the district board at Springfield in the latter category.

While the miners and their families were starving themselves to keep the flag of their union flying, Mr. Nesbit and his brother officials were drawing their salary and expenses from the union funds. All they could pay the members of the union was the magnificent sum of $3 for the six months' strike. If that is unionism, all for each and each for all, I have another name for it. May I remind Mr. Nesbit of the old saying that those who live in glass houses should not throw stones.

Poor Bookkeeping at Columbia.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

REFERRING to your editorial, "Bogus Checks at Columbia," those overdrafts are due more to bad business methods on the part of the students than they are to lack of integrity. College boys in this part of the country seem to lack knowledge of the simplest sort of bookkeeping. During the fall I held one of these Columbia "bogus" checks for several weeks. I learned later that when the boy wanted to learn what his balance was, instead of adding up his own figures he inquired at the bank, which gave him the balance as it appeared on its books, regardless of outstanding checks. He was working hard paying for his education and it was some time before he could get the money together to make the outstanding checks good.

Although a number of the boys live beyond their means, I am convinced the error is as often in their heads as in their hearts. Some of the allowances to the boys who go from the poor Ozark country to Columbia are woefully small; and as a general thing my sympathy is with them. GEORGE R. ROBINSON.

A Single-Taxer's Solution.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

I AGREE with "Justus" in his advocacy of a per capita or poll tax, but not, perhaps, in the method of assessment or collection. I do not agree with his statement that thousands pay nothing because they do not pay directly. Under the catch-as-catch-can method of taxation the great burden of taxation rests almost entirely on them.

Every member of society is equally benefited by good government and each should pay equal amounts to support government. When you ask your grocer the price of flour or your clothier the price of a suit, he does not inquire into your financial affairs. He tells you the price and it is the same whether you have much or little of the world's goods. That is why business is successful. The Government taxes its subjects according to their respective abilities to pay. These in turn shift the burden on those who apparently pay nothing. That is unjust. The per capita tax is the thing, but how apply it? Let me offer a solution.

In every community there is a fund which grows with the growth of the community. This fund is the joint property of each man, woman and child. As individuals we may own much or little of the world's goods, but as members of society we are equal owners of this fund. This fund is the result of the growth of the community and is made up of the rental value of the land irrespective of improvements. To take this fund for public purposes and abolish every form of taxation would bring about that condition which Justus seeks by means of a poll tax; viz., equality in matters of taxation.

New Market Lacks Showmanship.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

I NOTICED your article about the Union Market. In my visits to St. Louis I used to go to the old market, not to buy, but to see. However, I always bought something. I made one visit to see the new market. It was enough. I was disappointed, for the street fair, the spectacular novelty had been taken out of it. It had been made into a perfect, cold business fact. The jungle had been cleared and in its stead a business monument had been placed. The change was good and great as a correction, but a failure as an attraction. A street fair prospers on sales that a regular merchant could not make. People like such method of contact and play the game with delight. But there is no game to play in your new market. It is like doing business at a bank or postoffice.

AN OUTSIDER.

Van Buren, Ark.

CONVERTS TO THE BOND ISSUE.

In a recent letter to the Post-Dispatch Theodore Gary, former chairman of the State Highway Commission, reiterated his position that the 7640 miles of State system roads can be completed without an additional bond issue and without increasing the automobile registration fees or the gasoline tax.

That is true. But the time element must be considered. It is a vital point. Mr. Gary does not altogether dodge it, though he does not, in our opinion, candidly meet it.

It is this time element which the Automobile Club of Missouri is stressing in its support of a bond issue for $120,000,000. The club says that, if the proposed bond issue is authorized in the 1928 election, the State system of roads can be completed in four years. Mr. Gary challenges that assertion. He says that, if the proposed issue is ratified next year no funds from those bonds will be available before 1930. He then concludes that, instead of four years, it will take six years to complete the system. The job, he says, can be finished in that time from present resources without any more bonds.

In short, Mr. Gary declares that the voting of $120,000,000 next year will not expedite the work of completing the State system at all.

We believe Mr. Gary will be hard put to it to defend that position. The status of our Highway Department's finances, as analyzed by the Automobile Club is this:

By the end of this year the original $60,000,000 of bonds will be exhausted.

During the last three years—1925, 1926 and 1927—the Highway Department has spent, or committed, an average of over $20,000,000 a year for construction. The system is now about 60 per cent finished. To complete it in four years it will be necessary for the Highway Department to maintain its present scale of operations. It simply cannot do that unless more funds are provided.

Unless fresh funds are provided, the Highway Department will have for construction purposes, after this year, about $8,000,000 a year, or about one-third of its present construction budget. That means, obviously, that henceforth construction will proceed about one-third as fast or three times as slow as at present. That means that the State system will be completed, not in six years, as Mr. Gary implies, but in 12 years.

This 12-year program of necessarily curtailed operations before the State system is completed, as shown by the Automobile Club's accounting, is also the judgment of the Highway Commission.

Such, then, is the difference between the pay-as-you-go plan, of which Mr. Gary is the recognized champion, and the new bond-issue plan sponsored by the Automobile Club.

To be sure, Mr. Gary has retreated a considerable distance from his original pay-as-you-go position. He acknowledges in his letter to the Post-Dispatch that "a reasonable bond issue for the following purposes might have merit." Space will not permit a discussion of the purposes he enumerates at this time, further than to say that some of the proposals he advances have been tried elsewhere, with unhappy results.

As to the availability of funds from a bond issue authorized next year, which Mr. Gary postpones to 1930: The Highway Department is now an experienced concern. As such, could it not—if the bond issue carries next year—immediately prepare its plans to resume full-scale operations in March, 1929, when the Legislature will have adjourned after having taken the necessary legal steps to make the required amount of new bond money available?

We believe it can. And we believe that the Legislature will attend to this matter, too. A mandate from the people of Missouri in the authorization of $120,000,000 roads bonds will reflect a public sentiment which no Legislature would ignore.

Missouri wants an adequate road system, as the experience of traffic developments with their new requirements, makes imperative. And wants it now. The job calls for money, courage, vision. Missouri is abundantly equipped with all three.

THOSE NAIVE RUSSIANS.

For a long time it has been evident that when it comes to naivete the statesmen of the new Russia have it all over their foreign brethren. They have proved this by claiming that they are not in favor of world revolution while openly flaunting membership in the Third International, which everybody knows is in favor of little else. But they never proved their naivete so convincingly as in the interview on Russian-American relations which Premier Rykoff has just given the Associated Press.

The chief reason for recognizing Russia, say friends of this action, is to provide the Soviets with long-term credits in order to revive their industries and stimulate trade. The Russian Premier does not rehearse this, but he really does not need to. It has been drummed in constantly for some years. His contribution to the question consists in offering to discuss settlement of the debt owed America by the Kerensky regime. With regard to the debts owed us by the Czars, however, the Premier declares that Russia will not even recognize them in principle.

Russia, in other words, would be pleased to have American recognition in order to borrow more money. But she admits that she will not pay any of her older debts and probably only part of her newer ones. For the privilege of expanding the loans of a self-confessed defaulter, therefore, the United States would have to assume the expense of legation, Ambassador, charge d'affaires, first secretaries, second secretaries, charwomen, door openers and the other expensive paraphernalia which accompany diplomatic recognition.

We predict that when the next Congress appreciates the full import of the words of the naive Premier, it will allow the subject of Russian recognition to spend another winter in the snow.

UP THE MISSOURI.

Patience has its rewards, and the people up the Missouri river have had lots of it. They have staunchly supported the barge line upon the lower Mississippi from the day it was launched, realizing that only from this trunk line could the branches grow.

Now they are to have their reward. The next extension of the service is to be from St. Louis to Kansas City. The War Department has allotted $70,000 for immediate improvements upon the Missouri below Kansas City, and the business men of that city have raised a fund with which to help buy the craft necessary to institute the service. In this latter respect they are following the example of business men upon the upper Mississippi, who proved their faith by helping the Government put barges and boats on the upper river.

It will likely be found that the Missouri is not so difficult as it is thought to be. Old rivermen have not forgotten that when there was money in steamboating the Missouri the boats regularly ran as far up as Fort Benton. It was upon one of those trips that Mark Twain discovered the Missouri to be the only river in the world out of which the wind can blow dust.

PROSPERITY—NOT SO GOOD.

Irving Fisher, professor of economics at Yale, takes sharp issue with the loose generalizations about American prosperity. The country is rich. It had an earned income of $90,000,000,000 in 1926, its most prosperous year. Some people made a lot of money. The majority did not.

Statistical bureaus and individuals of high standing are quoted by Prof. Fisher to show that the big majority of the American people are having a hard time making ends meet. The "poorest class," which numbers 76,000,000, had an income in 1926 of less than $460 per person. The individual income in another group of 93,000,000, which combines the "poorest" and "lower middle" classes, was $500.

To that vast majority, Prof. Fisher observes, the statement made by President Coolidge in his Philadelphia speech, that "the test which now confronts the nation is prosperity," has little meaning. Worse than meaningless was the balderdash of the president of the National Manufacturers' Association recently about "the abnormally high wages and lower living costs" of the "so-called working classes."

When 93,000,000 of our population of 117,000,000 have incomes slightly above the "minimum of health and decency," we are still a long distance from the silken sloth of Cypria.

In this discussion of the unequal distribution of our wealth Prof. Fisher is the economist, without bias or emotion, concerned only with realities. He was less convincing when, as a prohibitionist, he declared dogmatically that prohibition was saving the country $5,000,000,000 a year.

Who got it? The captains of industry who financed the Antisaloon League? Were they for prohibition for revenue only and are they now getting handsome returns on their investments? Anyhow, we have Prof. Fisher's own word, that the people prohibition was designed to help are not sharing in the profits.

To prevent confusion, Russia and Poland might try putting serial numbers on their quarrels, unless it is the same one all the time.

JACKSON DAY.

There was a time when Jackson Day meant as much to Democrats as Dec. 25 means to children or Jan. 16 to zealots of the dry millennium. But that was in good old days, when the fundamental principles of the Democratic party still existed outside the perfervid oratory of national conventions. By 1920 those days were so far past that the Democrats, in a sudden, unaccountable fit of honesty, decreed that Jackson Day dinners should be no more.

The plan of reviving this annual event, which Clem Shaver, chairman of the national committee, has just announced, will be greeted with applause and wailing. That is, it will be greeted with applause by the public, and wailing by the politicians. And both receptions will be actuated by the very best of reasons.

Andrew Jackson was a victorious General and a man of honor, but his chief contributions to his country rest on neither of these facts. He will be remembered partly because one of his first presidential acts was to free the country from the tyranny of bureaucracy and to establish democracy. When he entered the White House, he found the Government dominated by a bureaucracy of constantly increasing numbers and expanding powers. It was his task to set things right. Being a soldier and hard-boiled, he showed succeeding generations of Americans the only method of doing so. He fired jobholders. He may have been harsh and merciless, but he satisfied a great need. When he was through, the country was restored to its original plan, and the all-powerful bureaucracy was an unpleasant memory.

Which is surely reason enough why the public should cheer upon hearing that the Democrats are going to restore old Andrew to respectable standing. And reason enough, too, why the same news will cause wailing among Democratic politicians, who, like their Republican contemporaries, regard the firing of their jobholders as they would a red-hot poker.

That endless chain to force Mr. Coolidge's renomination is no stronger than its weakest link, and its weakest link is Mr. Coolidge's ambiguous "do not choose." Is it ambiguous or shambiguous?

DOG RACING AND DOGS.

While some human beings are disposed to frown upon dog racing, it is not so certain that dogs do so.

Horse racing has worked wonders for horses, and dog racing is doing something for dogs. Since the introduction of dog racing into England the breeding of Irish greyhounds has been immensely stimulated, as the breeding of racing dogs has been stimulated everywhere by the appearance and rapid spread of this new sport. Nor is this all. Racing dogs have to be trained, and so many trained dogs are a considerable investment. It is therefore necessary to combat the diseases of dogs in a more business-like manner than has prevailed hitherto. The dog doctor, who becomes highly skilled in the matter of keeping the dogs well and up to the racing mark, is inseparable from every dog racing track.

This is a gain for dogs. Their prior relation to medical science was nothing of the sort. Dogs were sent to veterinaries as a rule, or perhaps oftener they were treated out of books. Diagnosis was as a rule most unscientific. It is well illustrated by the anecdote of the lady who got a book on dog diseases when her dog was ill. She found thirty-four diseases were defined, and that her dog had symtoms of all of them.

Nothing like that with racing dogs. Their tongues are kept pink, their coats lustrous. If one of them yawns, as you have seen dogs do, the doctor is called. As to the morals of dog racing—well, dogs will think of themselves first, thank you.

The MIRROR of PUBLIC OPINION

This column is designed to reproduce without bias the latest comment by the leading publicists, newspapers and periodicals on the questions of the day.

RADIO ON THE FARM.

From the Topeka Capital.

ACCORDING to a survey by the Department of Agriculture there were last spring 1,252,126 radio sets on farms as compared with 2,186,622 for the entire country two years ago. Undoubtedly urban radio sets have increased more rapidly than farm, but farm patronage of the radio is enormous and also increasing. Most farmers are amateur mechanics and most urban users are not, and the farm sets are probably kept in working repair better than many in the cities. Since farmers are such constant users of radio, the department has sought to find by a questionnaire what they like in programs. The results are as might be expected. In radio as in the automobile, the primary consideration on the farm is practical utility. Replies to the department questionnaire show overwhelmingly that the principal aim of the farm radio user is to get market reports up to the minute, advice from experts on care of live stock, seed and feed more particularly, and the weather reports. In the matter of amusement or entertainment, the farmers vote for old-time sentimental songs and classical music in preference to monkey music or jazz. Political talks and news are also popular on the farms. Farmers are utilitarians because they have to be and not because they are inherently more materialistic or less idealistic than other people. There is one feature of the farm replies that is worthy of notice, and that is the emphasis upon the reports of Old Prognostications. City people haw-haw a good deal at the weather predictions, adhering to a traditional weather service idea that is out of date. The weather reports are good. They probably are 90 per cent correct, as the Weather Bureau claims, instead of 99 per cent incorrect as the man on the street imagines. If the weather reports had not been found to be good in actual experience the farmers would not care for them on the radio. As entertainment features, certainly, they cannot be held to rank high.

THE SOUTH'S TEXTILE INDUSTRY.

From the Buffalo Express.

A DISPATCH from Boston contains the news that the directors of a New England textile company have decided to close their Lowell plant and to move part of the machinery to Anderson, S. C., and there erect a new mill.

This would seem to indicate that the South's textile industry continues to grow at the expense of New England. South Carolina, according to the World Almanac for 1927, had 5,295,000 cotton spindles in 1926, an increase of 20,000 over the preceding year. North Carolina in the same year was second to Massachusetts in the number of spindles and South Carolina third.

In respect of the tendency of the textile industry to move southward from New England, there may be significance in the World Almanac's statement regarding South Carolina: "Much child labor is employed." Of the same industry in North Carolina it says: "A striking feature has been the very large migration of residents of the mountains to the cotton mill towns, where they remain as operatives, whole families accepting employment, including children."

STATE UNIVERSITY AND POLITICS.

From the Kansas City Times.

POLITICS has no place in the management of the University of Missouri, or in any other State educational institution.

For that reason, Dr. Stratton D. Brooks, president of the university, will receive widespread public support in his opposition to State consolidation and budget measures now proposed. The proposed laws had strong support in the last Missouri Legislature, and a fight to obtain their enactment undoubtedly will be renewed in the next General Assembly.

Possibly those interests which are sponsoring the consolidation and budgetary laws have not foreseen the demoralising effect they might have in the administration of the State's largest educational institution. The effect of these measures, as pointed out by Dr. Brooks, would be the transfer of financial control of the university from Columbia to politically-controlled appointees in Jefferson City. The board of curators now in charge of the university, free from political domination, would become mere figureheads.

Dr. Brooks also disclosed the danger of a politically-controlled central purchasing agent supervising the buying of supplies and the letting of profitable contracts for the university.

The people of Missouri have implicit confidence in the integrity of the board of curators, which now administers the business affairs of the State University. It would be disastrous for the university to enact a law transferring the present powers of the board to persons who might be more concerned with building a State political machine than in the welfare of the school of which every Missourian is justly proud.

BARGE LINE EQUIPMENT.

From the Minneapolis Tribune.

SHIPPERS and traffic experts of the upper Mississippi Valley have shown that they are in dead earnest in their agitation for an adequate channel depth and adequate carrying equipment for the river between New Orleans and the head of navigation. Not enough equipment exists on the river today, and not enough has been projected to take care of the cargoes available. A vast aggregate of freight has been refused carrying accommodation on the lower river because of lack of equipment, and the same condition exists or will exist next year on the upper river. The further the situation develops the more apparent it becomes that the large vision about the usefulness of the river is the correct vision. This vision encompasses a channel depth through the whole length of the Mississippi sufficient to take care of craft of nine-foot draft so that cargo transfers from barges of greater to lesser draft may be obviated. It will cost millions to turn this forecast into fact, but the venture seems to be justified by the widespread looking of shippers to the Mississippi as a saver of transportation costs.

WHY IS A BLUE LAW.

From the Chapel Hill Weekly.

CHIEF JUSTICE PIERSON, in constructing these blue-law statutes before the Civil War, declared that it was not the intention of the law to enforce morals upon an individual, but to prevent the cacophonous and pandemoniac revelry of unsanitry persons from jarring on the somnolence or religious meditations of others.

IF THE WEATHER PERMITS.

OUR USUAL CUSTOM, as we [illegible] the evening's supply of cigarettes, is to ponder some weighty problem. [illegible] we mused, do the song writers invariably choose June and September in preference to other months? The magic of the [illegible] is not confined to two months of the year. October is a lovelier month than September. May is a fairer child than June. A good fire has its possibilities in November. The entine day is in February. What psychology causes the choice of these two months? We were about to give up the problem in despair when absently we began to run over the names of the months. January—[illegible]ing is out of the question. February—January. March—well, starch rhymes with it, but we fail to see the connection with the tender passion. April, July, August, November and December may be thrown in column of squads. May—say, you may pray rhyme with it. But consider June. Spoon, moon, soon, boon, runs, [illegible] —even prune. The possibilities are infinite. Every prospect pleases and rhyming is a style. September is a perfect rhyme [illegible] remember, and when the song writers are not growing lyrical over the present [illegible] they are remembering the last one. [illegible] writing has variety, only slightly hampered by a singleness of theme and the lack of rhymes for August.

Probably it is the absence of [illegible] from a sucker list that accounts for the fact that we never have seen an oil well described as "gushing like the morning grapefruit."

Let those who will sing of the [illegible] was theirs with the first they adore,
A bliss that is stored with our memories
sweet, but a bliss unrestored:
For time, that old cheat, will not ever turn us the days of our youth.
When beauty was seen through [illegible] lenses, and anything pretty was [illegible]
Ha' done, then, with singing, the days of our youth and the joys of the [illegible]
Why mourn o'er the acting, no matter how merry—the curtain is rung?
Let's sing of the thrill we may have to so often the cup we deplore—
The glass of cold water the morning after follows the night gone before.

As often the party makes merry, as often
we wake with a head,
A tongue that is covered with fuzz and a burning desire to be dead;
The lights that were bright all are dimmed,
and the eyelids are aching for sleep.
The quips that were funny seem [illegible]
but not so the reason we weep;
Oh, many the times that the maddened deplore that they ever were born,
But none with such singular fervor as those of an alcoholed morn!
'Tis then we resolve to do better as [illegible]
est of boons we implore—
The glass of cold water the morning after follows the night gone before.

the pyramiding of common stock holdings. His amendment also instructed the commission to investigate the expenditures of the General Electric Co., public utilities companies and others "to influence or control public opinion on the question of municipal or public ownership."

The Attorney-General, however, held that the funds of the commission could not be legally expended for this portion of the inquiry.

The Trade Commission reported back to the Senate last year that while the General Electric did not have a monopoly in the electric utilities field, it controlled a larger percentage of production than any other group in the country. The only other groups that came anywhere near the General Electric in extent of operations were listed as the Northeastern Power Group, the Insull interests and the North American group. The four organizations controlled 41 per cent of all the light and power production in 1925, the report disclosed.

This report further disclosed the amazing possibility of pyramiding as practiced by the power groups. It is this phase of the investigation that Senator Walsh wants to continue.

The Trade Commission blew sky-high the contention of the power group that the consolidations were predicated on a desire to protect the small investor and to obtain greater efficiency by the pooling of properties. The commission obviously was convinced that the promoters were interested in getting as large a rate of returns as possible on the funds personally contributed by themselves.

The commission supposed an instance in which 100 local power companies, with an aggregate investment of $1,000,000,000, had combined to form a new $1,000,000,000 corporation, whose earnings were limited by local public utilities commissions to 8 per cent on the total investment, or $80,000,000 annually.

The capital for the new company might be raised in the following manner. (Securities on the left, annual fixed charges on the right):

$600,000,000 in 6 per cent bonds, $36,000,000.

$200,000,000 in 7 per cent stock, $14,000,000.

$200,000,000 common stock, held by promoters.

$1,000,000,000, fixed charges, $50,000,000.

In this instance $30,000,000 would be left, out of the $80,000,000 the company is permitted to earn, for dividends on the common stock. The promoters would get 15 per cent instead of 8 per cent on their investment.

But if the promoters should form a holding company to take over their common stock, the $200,000,000 might be provided for in the following manner:

$100,000,00 in 6 per cent collateral trust bonds or debentures $6,000,000

$50,000,000 in 7 per cent preferred $3,500,000

$50,000,00 common stock, held by promoters.

Fixed charges..... $9,500,000

In this case, of the $30,000,000 received by the holding company as dividends on the common stock of the operating company, $20,500,000 would be left for distribution among the promoters owning the common stock of the holding company. They would receive 41 per cent annually on their investment of $50,000,000.

How "Super" Company Works.

Now, suppose the promoters organized a "super" holding company to raise the $50,000,000, for the common stock of the intermediate holding company. In this case the intermediate holding company would be divided into 10 holding companies, and the "super" holding company would represent the consolidation.

The financing would be as follows:

$25,000,000 in 6 per cent bonds $1,500,000

$12,500,000 in 7 per cent preferred $875,000

$12,500,000 in common stock, held by promoters.

Fixed charges..... $2,375,000

The $20,500,000 received by the "super" holding company on its common stock in the subsiying holding companies would be used to meet the fixed charges of the "super" company. After these charges had been met, $18,125,000 would be left for division among the promoters holding the common stock of the "super" company. Their total investment would be only $12,500,000. They would receive 145 per cent annually on their investment, notwithstanding the fact that the earnings of the underlying operating companies might be limited to 8 per cent. They would hold the voting privileges of the entire pyramid and would control a billion dollar property.

Those are the facts that Senator Walsh wants to bring before the public.

Insull's "Super-Super" Company.

The Trade Commission's hypothetical pyramid has, as a matter of fact, been outdone by actual pyramiding throughout the country. The writer has just returned from New England, where he was able to study the financing methods of the Samuel Insull group, the third largest power organization in the nation. To the hypothetical pyramid of the Trade Commission, Insull has added what can only be called a "super-super" holding company.

$200,000,000 in 7 per cent stock, $14,000,000.

In this instance $20,000,000 would be left, out of the $80,000,000 the company is permitted to earn, for dividends on the common stock. The promoters would get 35 per cent instead of 8 per cent on their investment.

They would hold the voting privileges of the entire pyramid and would control a billion dollar property.

Those are the facts that Senator Walsh wants to bring before the public.

Insull's "Super-Super" Company.

The Trade Commission's hypothetical pyramid has, as a matter of fact, been outdone by actual pyramiding throughout the country. The writer has just returned from New England, where he was able to study the financing methods of the Samuel Insull group, the second largest power organization in the nation. To the hypothetical pyramid of the Trade Commission, Insull has added what can only be called a "super-super" holding company.

The Insull "super" holding company is the New England Public Service Co., which controls nine subsidiaries in Maine, Vermont, New Hampshire, New York and Canada, serving 421 communities. One of these subsidiaries, the National Light, Heat & Power Co., controls five operating companies. Another, the Central Maine Power Co., is the result of 28 or 40 consolidations.

The Insull "super-super" holding company is the Middle West Utilities Co. of Chicago. It is significant that Samuel Insull is chairman of this company and chairman of the New England Public Service Co., and that Martin J. Insull, his brother, is chairman of the Central Maine Power Co.

The balance sheets of the Middle West company are not available to the writer, but the "consolidated earning statement" of the New England company discloses that the Insull group hold virtually all the common stock and thus the voting power in the nine subsidiaries. This statement shows that for the last calendar year the dividends on common stock paid to outside holders and proportion of undistributed earnings to outside holders amounted to only $6179, while the total earnings accruing to the New England company totaled $2,258,649.

Attacked by Prof. Ripley.

The Insull financing of the New England utilities was cited by Prof. William Z. Ripley of Harvard in his attack on newer stock manipulations, particularly of utilities securities. Prof. Ripley described what had happened to the Boothbay-Harbor Electric Light Co., which had been absorbed by the Central Maine, the New England Public Service and the Middle West Utilities companies.

Hydro-electric power development has been an issue in Maine politics for years. In a political fight against the Insull interests, former Gov. Percival P. Baxter quoted the Ripley article in this wise:

"Prof. Ripley's little Boothbay Harbor Co. became bound up with five others in Illinois, three in Indiana, three in Kentucky, two in Oklahoma, one in Texas, one in Missouri, one in Michigan, two in Nebraska, two in Virginia, one in Wisconsin, one in Tennessee, and so forth until 39 subsidiaries in some mysterious way were joined in what I term unholy wedlock. It incidentally should be recalled that previous to this scrambling the Central Maine itself had absorbed from 38 to 40 companies before becoming involved in the maze of Insull operation.

"I am unable to follow the ramifications of such finance; my brain cannot grasp its intricacies. Is its foundation secure? How can the average owner of securities know whether his investment is on bed rock of security or at the top of this Eiffel Tower of modern finance?

Walsh Purposes to Find Out.

The answer is that Senator Walsh intends to give the security holder and the power consumer ample opportunity to find out about this Eiffel Tower financing, not only of the Insull group but of he General Electric, the North American, the Northeastern Power, the Consolidated Gas, the Standard Gas and Electric and the other large groups that dominate the power field.

A digest of the Federal Trade Commission's report was published in the Post-Dispatch when it was issued, but it received little other publicity. It is a 272-page book, filled with prosaic looking charts and dull figures. Walsh can be counted upon to put life and color into the technical testimony that will come before him. The small security holder and the domestic user of power at least will be given an opportunity to learn what is back of these great mergers.

The power companies are content to go on without this sort of publicity, although they declare they welcome further investigation by the Trade Commission.

In the report to the security holders of the Central Maine Power Co., the Insull interests said: "The year 1926 showed a marked improvement in the understanding of our business by the public." Walsh is insisting that the public shall be further enlightened.

Power Lobby Out in Open.

For the first time, the power lobby has come out in the open to fight the Walsh resolution and the proposals to authorize Government development of super power. The head of the lobby is George B. Cortelyou, once private secretary to President Roosevelt and now head of the Consolidated Gas Co. The director of the Washington bureau is Josiah T. Newcomb, a former State Senator of New York. Newcomb is paid to be the "contact" man with the Washington correspondents. He is the author of a booklet called "The Power Trust Myth" which has just been sent to the correspondents. In this he attempts to ridicule Senator Norris and the Government operation of Muscle Shoals. The Newcomb bureau is housed in elaborate quarters in the most expensive office building in Washington.

The name of this lobby is "the Joint Committee of National Utility Associations," but beyond the fact that it represents the National Electric Light Association, the American Electric Railway Association and the American Gas Association, it is difficult to ascertain just what individual corporations are involved in it and the amount of money they represent.

Cortelyou, as chairman of the Joint Committee, told the American Electric Railway Association recently that the National Utilities Associations represented a combined invested capital of approximately $17,500,000,000. This figure is not far below the gross national debt which, on June 30, 1927, stood in round numbers at $18,500,000,000, Cortelyou declared.

"It is more than the loans and discounts of all national banks. It is exceeded by the capital investment of but one other industry the steam railroads," he added.

It is significant that the electric power interests have been joined by the electric railroad lines and the gas interests. All three are fighting for the right of unlimited exploitation—unlimited exploitation in the field of finance and unlimited exploitaton of natural resources.

The battle lines have been drawn. The fight will start as soon as Congress convenes.

Will Help Farm Incomes.

The great agricultural region tributary to Illinois waterways, and in some measure dependent on it for future relief, now is burdened by high taxation and high cost of living and finds a poor market, at unsatisfactory prices, for its surplus products. A large part of the present financial trouble of the farmer is due to the high cost of transportation. The best thought of the nation, in and out of Congress, has so far failed in devising satisfactory ways and means of aiding the farmers. President Coolidge and members of his Cabinet have recommended the early completion of our inland waterway projects as one of the practical ways of aiding the farmers and other producers, and at the same time helping thte dealers and consumers.

"The surplus grain belt of the United States is nearly 1000 miles further from the open seas than other great grain exporting sections, aside from Canada. This puts the American farmer at a great disadvantage in competing with other countries in foreign markets. The cost of this long haul to tidewater is also keenly felt by the manufacturers and merchants of the mid-continent.

"The entire nation contributed to the building of the Panama Canal. The use of the Panama Canal has greatly reduced the cost of haul from coast to coast and has given an advantage of from $300 to $1000 a car load to those able to avail themselves of it. To relieve this economic handicap, the whole country should now aid the development of the cheapest possible means of transportation for the Middle West."

2 MEN AND BOY, STRUCK BY AUTOS, DIE OF INJURIES

Fred Bickel and Frederick C. Lane, Each 74, and Webster Holloway, Negro, 12, Succumb in Day.

Two 74-year-old men and a Negro boy died yesterday from injuries suffered in three separate accidents in which they were struck by automobiles. They were Fred Bickel, 1439 North Eighteenth street; Frederick C. Lane, 3520 Lindell boulevard, and 12-year-old Webster Holloway, 1618 Carr street.

Bickel was knocked down on Nov. 11 on Cass acenue near Seventeenth street by an automobile driven by August Goessling, secretary-treasurer of the National Paper Co. He suffered fractures of the skull, left arm, leg and four ribs, and internal injuries.

Lane was hit by a taxicab driven by Joseph Warren, 2753 Russell boulevard, at Lindell boulevard and Theresa avenue, last Tuesday, suffering fractures of the skull, leg and ribs.

The Holloway boy, according to witnesses, ran against the side of an automobile driven by Edward C. Haverstick of 4919 Forest Park place, at Eighteenth and Olive streets, last Sunday. He died at People's Hospital of fractures of the spine, skull and shoulder. Bickel and Lane died at City Hospital.

PET STOCK EXHIBITS AT POULTRY SHOW HERE

Many Features Added to Mississippi Valley Exposition at Coliseum Dec. 29-Jan. 2.

Everything from black minorcas to milk goats will be shown at the fifty-fourth annual Mississippi Valley Poultry and Small Stock Exposition at the Coliseum, Dec. 29-Jan. 2. With a record number of entries, and the many added exhibition features, the attendance at this year's show is expected to set a new mark. The Winter Garden show in New York is the only one at present excelling the Coliseum exposition in paid attendance.

The show is designed essentially for the backyard farmer and the wide variety of events include just about every hobby the average man pursues. There will be exhibits of all varieties of poultry, pigeons, rabbits, cats, cavies (guinea pigs), dogs, cage birds, milk goats and nursery products, including fruits, trees and flowers.

According to Charles Key Cullom, 411 Washington avenue, secretary of the Mississippi Valley Poultry and Small Stock Association, which promotes the show, the St. Louis zoo is considering an exhibit.

It is planned to enlarge the show into a mid-winter agricultural exposition next year if a building large enough can be secured.

Eight poultry and pet stock organizations will be in convention while the show is in progress, including:

American Cornish Club, Blue Andulasian Club of America, Cat Fanciers' Association, St. Louis Rabbit and Cavy Breeders' Association, United White Minorca Club, S. C. Black Minorca Club, and R. C. Black Minorca Breeders of the United States and Canada.

It is planned to merge the Black Minorca organizations at the conventions here.

A banquet in the Coliseum, starting at 10 p. m., Saturday, Dec. 31, will be held for the exhibitors, judges and their friends.

SPECIAL SERVICES WILL MARK 74TH ANNIVERSARY OF CHURCH

The Rev. Dr. Clarence E. Macartney Will Address Congregation of Westminster Presbyterian.

The seventy-fourth anniversary of the Westminster Presbyterian Church, at Union and Delmar boulevards, will be celebrated with special services today. Commemorative addresses will be delivered at 11 a. m. and 3:30 p. m. by the Rev. Dr. Clarence E. Macartney of Pittsburg, Pa., a former moderator of the General Assembly of the Presbyterian church.

In former years when the church stood at Grand and Washington boulevards, it was known as the Grand Avenue Presbyterian Church, but its original name had been Westminster, so when it was removed the old name was restored. As Westminster Church, in the early 40's, it stood at Broadway and Locust street. In 1849 the congregation was merged with another and the church, erected at Eleventh and Pine streets, was called the Pine Street Church. It was removed to Grand and Washington in 1880. In its entire history it has had but six pastors, including the present pastor, the Rev. Dr. William Crowe.

Michigan Man Seeks Son.

J. August Johnson of Ironwood, Mich., has broadcast a request that anyone who has heard of his son, Walfred A. Johnson, thought to be in St. Louis, telegraph him of the fact. Young Johnson, who is 18 years old, is described as six feet tall, slim and slightly stooped. He left Ironwood on Nov. 3. He was seen in Waterloo, Ill., Nov. 16 and was reported to have gone to St. Louis from there.

CHURCHES OBSERVE HEALTH SUNDAY TODAY

Special Services Held in 300 Edifices As Part of Annual Campaign.

Today, Health Sunday, marks the opening of National Health Week, and will be observed throughout the city under the auspices of the Tuberculosis and Health Society of St. Louis as the initial event of its annual Christmas health campaign and seal sale. Special services will be conducted in more than 300 churches. An educational program to broadcast the message of health promotion and disease prevention will be carried on during the week.

Health Week was inaugurated 13 years ago by the National Tuberculosis Association and the American Red Cross. More lately, Health Week has been observed as part of the national Christmas seal campaign, and prevention of tuberculosis in addition to promotion of general health has been its purpose.

Mayor Miller has issued a proclamation for Health Week. The observance of Health Sunday has been indorsed by the Church Federation of St. Louis. Archbishop Glennon, St. Louis District of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, St. Louis Clericus, Christian Ministers' Association, St. Louis Methodist Ministers' Association, Presbyterian Ministers' Association, Baptist Ministers' Conference and the Circle of Evangelical Pastors.

Story hours in Sunday schools and public schools will be a feature of Health week. The Story Tellers' League will tell health stories today in more than 50 Sunday schools and will conduct story hours next week in city, county and incorporated district schools, under the direction of Mrs. Georgia McAdams Clifford, president. League members will be dressed as "health gypsies."

Luncheon clubs will co-operate with talks and movies at their luncheons. Mothers' clubs, factory groups, parent-teachers' associations and other groups have also been scheduled for talks and movies this week.

The local Christmas health campaign and seal sale is making progress, according to Byron Moser, treasurer of the Health Society.

INSECTS' DAILY LIFE SHOWN

Collection in Paris Museum Enables Study in Natural Habitat.

By the Associated Press.

PARIS, Nov. 26.—"Go to the ant, thou sluggard," is possible for every lazy Parisian now, for the ant and every other sort of insect may be seen at work in his natural habitat at the Jardin des Plantes.

A vivarium, where insects, lizards and small reptiles live in miniature forests, enclosed in glass, has been established. It is the fulfillment of the idea of Jean Henri Fabre, the French naturalist, who always urged that science should have such facilities for studying the insect world in its work and play. From all the French colonies there are being brought live specimens which most entomologists heretofore have seen only pinned in glass cases. So far as possible, each creature is given its native surroundings and a close imitation of the climate in which it thrives.

ALFRED CLIFFORD WILL BE BURIED TOMORROW

Funeral at 10 a. m. From Residence of Pioneer Steel Man, Dead at 82.

The funeral of Alfred Clifford, 82 years old, a pioneer Middle Western steel manufacturer, who died of the infirmities of age at his home, 22 Westmoreland place, early yesterday, will take place at the residence at 10 o'clock tomorrow morning. Burial will be in Bellefontaine Cemetery.

A St. Louisan since 1869, Mr. Clifford is survived by his widow, the former Mrs. Elizabeth Johnston Anderson, whom he married in 1893. His first wife, who was Miss Mary Francis Morton, married him in 1877 and died in 1890. Their children surviving are Mrs. Edith C. Saxton, Mrs. Marion C. Blossom, Mrs. Wilbur C. Jones and Olive M. Clifford of St. Louis, and Arthur M. Clifford of Pasadena, Cal.

Mr. Clifford's steel plant in St. Louis was combined with others in 1900 to form the American Steel and Wire Co., of which he became chairman of the board of directors. The following year this company was absorbed by the United States Steel Corporation, on the board of which Mr. Clifford served until 1916, when he retired from active business.

HOW TO DARKEN GRAY HAIR

Makes One Look Younger

Men and women who used to be called Grandpa and Grandma are now setting the styles by darkening their gray hair at home.

For instance, J. A. McCrea, a well-known Californian, recently made the following statement:

"Anyone can prepare a simple mixture in five minutes, that will darken gray hair, and make it soft and glossy. Merely take a half pint of water, add 1 ounce of bay rum, a small box of Barbo Compound, and ¼ ounce of glycerine.

"These ingredients can be bought at any drug store at trifling cost. Apply to the hair twice weekly with a comb. It does not color the scalp, is not sticky or greasy and will not rub off."

Why Not Look Young as Long as You Can?

Your friends guess at your age by glancing at your hair. If it is gray, they think of you as getting old. Why not keep it youthful and attractive when it is so easy? Nothing adds the appearance of old age to a woman's years so perceptibly as gray hair.

You can neglect your hair and allow it to turn gray and faded, or you can quickly and unfailingly restore its color by using FARR'S GRAY HAIR RESTORER. You should know FARR'S GRAY HAIR RESTORER—not only by its national reputation, but as thousands of other refined women know by personal experience.

POEM SET TO MUSIC FOR EVEREADY HOUR

Vachel Lindsay's "Daniel" Will Have Place Next Tuesday Night on KSD.

Vachel Lindsay's poem, "Daniel," as set to music by Harvey Enders, will be the feature of the Eveready Hour program to be broadcast Tuesday evening through KSD at 8 o'clock.

Wilfred Glenn, basso of the Eveready Revellers, will first recite the poem itself, then sing it.

"Daniel," one of Vachel Lindsay's most famous poems, describes truly Lindsayian fashion, the release of the prophet Daniel from the lion's den. With the musical setting in modern jazz rhythm, the rendition produces an effect similar to that achieved by the same poet's "Congo."

Three Broadway shows listed among the current successes will provide the musical selections for the Eveready group, which includes the Eveready orchestra; Virginia Rea, soprano soloist, and the Eveready Revellers.

A vocal and instrumental selection from the "Ziegfeld Follies of 1927" will be given, and Miss Rea and Lewis James of the Revellers will sing a duet from "The Connecticut Yankee." George M. Cohan's "The Merry Malones" will furnish a selection for two pianos.

With a brand-new tune, "Oh, Lucindy," and three other songs, the Revellers will occupy a large part of this Eveready Hour.

The orchestra will introduce a new tune by Irving Berlin, "The Song Is Ended."

House-Current or battery?
—whichever you say

NOW you can have your choice between two kinds of Atwater Kent Radio.

One of them is the new House-Current set. It uses the new A. C. tubes. It draws all its electric power from your house lighting circuit.

Whenever you snap the switch of the receiver, you are just as sure of getting even reception from your radio as you are of getting a steady light when you switch on an electric bulb.

The other kind of Atwater Kent Radio is the battery set. Everybody knows how it works. More than a million of these sets are in use. All models have been still further improved so that today they are better than ever.

Either kind of set can be installed in any approved console designed for Atwater Kent Radio.

Either kind gives you top performance at a low price—for careful mass-production in the largest radio factory gives you a saving that would be impossible if only a few sets were made.

EITHER KIND—House-Current or battery—is right around the corner at an Atwater Kent dealer's, ready for you to see and try today.

BALKITE HOUR

Of course you want an AC electric receiver. For its convenience. Now you can have it, without the uncertainty of untried apparatus, and without sacrificing quality of reception.

Simply by adding Balkite Electric "AB" to your present radio set. Balkite Electric "AB" replaces both "A" and "B" batteries and supplies radio power from the light socket. It contains no battery in any form. It operates only during reception. It makes any receiver an electric set.

This method makes possible the use in electric reception of standard sets and standard type tubes. Both are tried and proved, and give by far the clearest and truest reproduction. With this method there is no waiting for tubes to warm up. No difficulty in controlling volume. No noise. No AC hum. No crackling or fading of power. Instead the same high standard of reception to which you are accustomed.

In this method there is nothing experimental, nothing untried. It consists of two of the most dependable products in radio—a standard set and Balkite. And if you should already own a radio set, the cost of equipping it with Balkite is only a fraction of the cost of a new receiver.

By all means go to AC reception. Its convenience is the greatest improvement in radio. But be as critical of an AC receiver as you would of any other. That your AC receiver be a standard set equipped with Balkite Electric "AB." Then it will be as clear and faithful in reproduction as any receiver you can buy.

Two models, $64.50 and $74.50.
Ask your dealer.

'TALES OF HOFFMAN' ON KSD WEDNESDAY NIGHT

National Grand Opera Ensemble to Sing Famous Work by Offenbach.

"The Tales of Hoffman," a fanciful opera in four acts, words by Michael Carre and Jules Barbier, music (posthumous) by Jacques Offenbach, will be broadcast through KSD next Wednesday evening, beginning at 9:30 by the National Grand Opera ensemble, under Cesare Sodero.

"Les Contes des Hoffman" (Tales of Hoffman), was produced at the Opera Comique, Paris, in 1881, but 10 years earlier (1851) at the Odeon, in comedy form.

In the prologue Hoffman, a young poet, is in Luther's tavern, Nuremburg, telling the company of his three unhappy love affairs. As narrator he plays his way through the following operatic scenes:

The first act shows Hoffman in the magnificent home of Dr. Spalanzani. Spalanzani has invented a mechanical doll—Olympia — with the aid of a hypnotist—Dr. Coppelius. Hoffman has fallen in love with Olympia, believing the doll to be real, since it sings "The Bird Song" and dances with him when "wound up." The doll is smashed by the jealous Dr. Coppelius and Hoffman's awakening ends the scene of Ideal Love.

Giulietta, a famous beauty, holds her court in a palace on the Grand Canal, Venice, (Act Two) when Hoffman is introduced. Hoffman falls in love with Giulietta, through the influence of a magic ring. To gain the key to her boudoir, Hoffman kills Giulietta's patron, Schlemil, in a duel only to find the faithless Giulietta departing in a gondola with the dwarf, Pittichinaccio, as the strains of the well-known barcarolle, "Night of Love," are heard from the water.

The third, and most tragic scene, that of Hopeless Love, finds Hoffman in love with Antonia, invalid daughter of Crespel, a musician. Antonia is forbidden to sing, but she manages to sing at her clavichord for Hoffman, a love song in which he joins. The malignant Dr. Miracle—seeking to kill Antonia as he killed her mother—persuades her to sing more, conjuring up a plea from her dead mother—the Voice—and aided by the magic strains of his violin. Her father and Hoffman enter as Antonia, despite warnings, sings herself to death. Hoffman is accused of murder by the frenzied father as Dr. Miracle gloats over the success of his plot.

A short epilogue—the tavern scene again—finds the "Tales"

BROADCAST DEPICTS JOHN BROWN'S RA

Incident That Helped to Precipitate the Civil War Basis of Radio Playlet.

As the sixty-eighth anniversary of his death approaches, the National Players, on Tuesday evening will re-enact in the "Great Moments in History" broadcast the "Execution of John Brown."

Brown was executed Dec. 2, 1859. The broadcast version of this historic event begins as Brown and a small band start from Kennedy Farm to raid the Harper's Ferry Arsenal. The arsenal was captured, wires cut, and all outside communication cut off. A Baltimore & Ohio train arrived and Brown, at first, refused to let it go on. Then, he decided that the news should be spread as he hoped the slaves would revolt and join him.

At the next stop, the train conductor telegraphed to the President, the Secretary of War and other officials. The Secretary of War ordered Col. Robert E. Lee and a detachment of Marines under J. E. B. (Jeb) Stewart, both of whom were then in the United States Army, to Harper's Ferry. They stormed the arsenal, captured Brown, who was tried and found guilty of treason, murder and inciting slaves to rebellion.

'TALES OF HOFFMAN' ON KSD WEDNESDAY NIGHT

National Grand Opera Ensemble to Sing Famous Work by Offenbach.

"The Tales of Hoffman," a fanciful opera in four acts, words by Michael Carre and Jules Barbier, music (posthumous) by Jacques Offenbach, will be broadcast through KSD next Wednesday evening, beginning at 9:30 by the National Grand Opera ensemble, under Cesare Sodero.

"Les Contes des Hoffman" (Tales of Hoffman), was produced at the Opera Comique, Paris, in 1881, but 20 years earlier (1851) at the Odeon, in comedy form.

In the prologue Hoffman, a young poet, is in Luther's tavern, Nuremburg, telling the company of his three unhappy love affairs. As narrator he plays his way through the following operatic scenes:

The first act shows Hoffman in the magnificent home of Dr. Spalanzani. Spalanzani has invented a mechanical doll—Olympia — with the aid of a hypnotist—Dr. Coppelius. Hoffman has fallen in love with Olympia, believing the doll to be real, since it sings "The Bird Song" and dances with him when "wound up." The doll is smashed by the jealous Dr. Coppelius and Hoffman's awakening ends the scene of Ideal Love.

Giulietta, a famous beauty, holds her court in a palace on the Grand Canal, Venice, (Act Two) when Hoffman is introduced. Hoffman falls in love with Giulietta, through the influence of a magic ring. To gain the key to her boudoir, Hoffman kills Giulietta's patron, Schlemil, in a duel only to find the faithless Giulietta departing in a gondola with the dwarf, Pittichinaccio, as the strains of the well-known barcarolle, "Night of Love," are heard from the water.

The third, and most tragic scene, that of Hopeless Love, finds Hoffman in love with Antonia, invalid daughter of Crespel, a musician. Antonia is forbidden to sing, but she manages to sing at her clavichord for Hoffman, a love song in which he joins. The malignant Dr. Miracle—seeking to kill Antonia as he killed her mother—persuades her to sing more, conjuring up a plea from her dead mother—the Voice—and aided by the magic strains of his violin. Her father and Hoffman enter as Antonia, despite warnings, sings herself to death. Hoffman is accused of murder by the frenzied father as Dr. Miracle gloats over the success of his plot.

A short epilogue—the tavern scene again—finds the "Tales" ended, and the drinkers applauding Hoffman, who sinks into a drunken stupor.

KSD "MOON MAGIC" PROGRAM

"Alice, Where Art Thou?" by Ascher, will be played by a string trio in the Moon Magic hour to be broadcast through KSD tomorrow evening, beginning at 9:30.

Other selections in this program are Jules Massenet's "Clair de Lune," Brams' beautiful cradle-song, "Wiegenlied," and "Le Cygne," by Saint-Saens.

The Maid of the Moon will sing "Night and the Curtains Drawn," by Ferrata, and "Waiting," by Wright.

CROSLEY DEALERS MEET TO DISCUSS MERCHANDISING

Seventy-five Crosley radio distributers and dealers were guests Tuesday night at a dinner meeting at Hotel Claridge, at which advertising and merchandising of Crosley radio sets and speakers were discussed. William Mackle, executive secretary of the St. Louis Radio Trades Association, introduced F. L. Ray, territorial representative for the Crosley Radio Corporation of Cincinnati.

Among other things, it was pointed out that the Crosley corporation does much to stimulate interest in radio through its own super power station, WLW, at Cincinnati. Also, Powel Crosley, president of the Crosley corporation, sponsors the Crosley Moscow Art Orchestra hour, which is broadcast by KSD and allied stations every other Sunday afternoon.

Crosley believes that radio manufacturers and dealers should play a larger part in broadcasting. In this connection he recently advocated a monthly super broadcast, sponsored by the radio industry as a whole.

Among those who spoke during Tuesday night's meeting were L. P. Harris, sales manager of the Benwood-Linze Co., Crosley distributer, and R. J. Lickiss, sales manager of Geller, Ward & Hassner, also a Crosley distributer.

The orchestral background is furnished by two flutes, two oboes, two clarinets, two bassoons, four horns, two trumpets, strings and clarinet, kettledrums in the composer's score.

The first movement opens cheerfully leading to a second slower song, in the form of a canzonetta (little song), probably of folk origin. The third is a rondo based on two themes of Russian character. From the first theme in A-major by the solo violin it moves to F-sharp minor by the oboe and

For Best Tone Quality.

To get the best tone quality from a receiver, a good amplifier must be installed in the circuit. This means a unit capable of reproducing all the musical frequencies from 30 cycles, so as to take in the low notes of piano and orchestra, to at lease 6000 cycles, so as to include the noticeable high notes and also the so-called harmonics and overtones, which are the things that distinguish one musical instrument from another—a sort of tone or shading proposition.

You can "trickle charge" too — with this charger

WITH Rectigon, you can keep your "A" battery on its toes, all the time. Ordinarily you can replace, with Rectigon's "trickle" rate, all the current your set uses in a day's operation. Then, when you spend an unusually long time at the dials, draining the battery, you don't have to go to the charging station — just shift the leads over to Rectigon's high-rate terminal. It will charge your wet "B", just as easily.

~~$18.00~~ Now $14.22

RECTIGON
Rectigon is simple and safe, has no moving parts, uses no acids or chemicals. Will do no harm if you tune in or if the house current fails while you're charging. Rectigon will pay for itself with the first few charging station fees it will save. At your dealer's.

RECTOX
for trickle charging only
Attach it permanently to your wet "A" to replace the power as fast as you use it. Charges at either ½ or ¾-ampere rate. No liquids, no moving parts, no trouble. $11.50.

Besides Rectigon and Rectox for better battery charging, Westinghouse also makes Micarta panels and tubing for better insulation, and radio testing instruments for better reception.

FLORIDA STATIONS SEEKING MORE FAVORABLE TREATMENT

The Florida State Chamber of Commerce and the cities of St. Petersburg and Clearwater are fighting for radio parity with other states.

The commission granted station WFLA at Clearwater, Fla., a frequency of 590 kilocycles and an increase in power from 500 to 750 watts for 60 days. This action annulled the order that WFLA share a channel with station WDBO at Orlando, Fla. The Clearwater station and a new $40,000 broadcasting studio at St. Petersburg are jointly being assigned the call letters WSUN. Both are municipally owned.

WOR CONTINUES AS KEY STATION IN COLUMBIA CHAIN

Change in Control of Broadcasting System Not to Affect Any Links in the Network.

Reports in New York are that control of the Columbia Broadcasting System, which recently established a network of stations in which KMOX is the St. Louis link, has been acquired from the Columbia Phonograph Co. by the United Independent Broadcasters, Inc. Jerome H. Louchheim of Philadelphia, Pa., president of the Keystone State Construction Co., is president of the United Independent Broadcasters. Dr. Leon Levy, president of the Universal Broadcasting Corporation, of Philadelphia, Dr. Levy is secretary-treasurer of the Columbia System which operates station WCAU in that city, and active in the new control.

It is understood that Maj. Andrew White, who recently was elected president of the Columbia Broadcasting System, will remain as administrative head of the chain.

Purchase of the Columbia System, it is stated, is in no way to affect WOR, the key station at Newark, N. J., or any link in the chain, which, incidentally, does not own any of the stations affiliated with it. It is said also that the musical organizations used by the chain will be enlarged and the chain's scope broadened.

WOR has been authorized by the Radio Commission to use 3500 watts power.

FADA Radio

The old-time resemblance

A slow motion picture enables you to appreciate better the technique of a good tennis player. A speech, being slower than music, emphasizes in detail the fine points of Fada Harmonated Reception. Hear a good speech over Fada and you will be amazed at the cameo clearness of every syllable, the sharp, sibilant s's, the full, firm f's, the crisp consonants, the resonant vowels. Fada Harmonated Reception masters not only all the fundamental notes of the musical scale, but also the more elusive overtones. And it reproduces perfectly not only the broad vowels of the orator, but also the more difficult s's and f's which are the stumbling block of ordinary radio. But remember that only a Fada Receiver with a Fada Speaker gives you genuine Harmonated Reception. Hear this sensational betterment of radio wherever you see the Fada Dealer sign.

OPERETTA BY HERBERT IN KSD'S PHILCO HOUR

"Sweethearts" to Be Revived in Broadcast Next Saturday Evening.

"Sweethearts," an operetta by Victor Herbert, will be broadcast in the Philco hour through KSD Saturday evening, beginning at 8 o'clock.

The book is by Harry B. Smith and Fred de Gresac. "Sweethearts" was produced in the New Amsterdam Theater, New York, in 1913, starring Christie MacDonald.

The story is of Sylvia, an infant of mystery who is found in a tulip garden by Dame Paula, known as Mother Goose, who conducts the White Geese Laundry.

Some of the principal numbers in the operetta are "Sweethearts," "Pretty as a Picture," "In the Convent They Never Taught Me That," "The Game of Love," "I Don't Know How to Do It," "The Cricket on the Hearth."

A Battery Brief.

Be sure to keep dust off the tops of dry batteries. The accumulation of dust on their upper surfaces often leads to the gathering of moisture, thus forming a high resistance leakage for the slow discharge of the battery, and a source of noise.

Chain Broadcasting on 17 of 25 Cleared Waves

Stations Allied With Red, Blue and Columbia Networks Fare Best—Commission Says Listeners Want Chain Programs.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 26.—One thing may spoil the Radio Commission's new plan to clear 25 channels for distance reception after Dec. 1, according to experts.

It is the fact that almost all of the stations which will receive clear waves are connected in some way or other with a broadcasting chain.

"What is the use of clearing 25 channels for good distance reception if large groups of stations operating on them are going to broadcast the same program?" the experts ask.

The commission appreciates the problem it has on its hands in connection with chain programs, and indications are that something will be done about it before many weeks have passed. But in its final decision, the commission will be guided by what it believes are the wishes of listeners.

How Commission Views It.

Already the commission is beginning to check up to find out how many stations which have received exclusive waves are hooked-up for chain programs and the number of hours of simultaneous operation. Meanwhile the commission makes this statement regarding chain broadcasting:

"From certain quarters comes an occasional complaint that several stations with clear channels are broadcasting the same programs. The cross section of many thousands of fan reports, however, indicates plainly a distinct and pronounced demand for these programs. The radio act gives the commission no censorship authority. The stations it elects to occupy prominent places on the dial must have in each instance a demonstrated individual record of public service. It is a natural coincidence, therefore, that many of the same stations are sought by the respective broadcasting chains.

"Should a marked repetition of programs result from efforts to clear a pathway for popular stations, and evidence be presented to the commission that for this reason certain stations were not operated in the maximum interest of listeners, their position would thereby be weakened in favor of other broadcasting stations qualified to give the necessary diversity of programs to the public.

"The broadcasters, up and down the line must reconcile themselves to the idea of contributing their bit toward the betterment of general radio reception. Newcomers who knowingly complicated the present difficult problems of the Commission can look for no assurance of better treatment."

One Aspect of Channel Clearing.

Observers believe that unless changes are made, the allotting of wave lengths may be aired in Congress.

Of the 25 channels that have been cleared, 17 are used by stations that use more or less programs from the National Broadcasting chain, and four use programs from the Columbia chain.

Here is the picture as experts see it:

491.5 meters—WEAF, New York (N. B. C. chain).
479.5 meters—WSB, Atlanta, Ga. (N. B. C. chain).

Better "B" Power —At Lowest Cost!

IT'S truly surprising the way radio fans who once have used Sterling "B" Socket Powers will never use anything else. "There is such improved tone quality, with a Sterling," they say.
The reason is the exact power regulation in Sterling "B" Units. Just enough power—not too much, and not too little—enables the Sterling to impart tone quality supreme to practically every 4 to 8 tube set, to Radiolas, or to Victor and Brunswick radiophonograph models.

The Hoover Sentinels Male Quartet will sing "Stars of the Summer Night," and "The Mulligan Musketeers." The orchestra will play Borowski's "Adoration" and Chaminade's "Scarf Dance," in a fox-trot arrangement.

WSAI DECLARED TO BE VICTIM OF MISTAKE

Order That It Share Time With WOS, Jefferson City, Mo., Causes Commotion.

Considerable commotion has been caused in Cincinnati by the order of the Federal Radio Commission directing station WSAI, in that city, to share time with WOS, at Jefferson City, Mo.

As WSAI has a 5000-watt transmitter and has ranked with listeners as one of the leading stations in the United States, the order caused considerable surprise.

"When inquiry was made at Washington," says the Cincinnati Enquirer, "the commission stated that WSAI either would have to arrange an amicable time agreement with WOS or the commission would do so itself after the order went into effect Dec. 1.

So pleased was WOS with the edict that it proceeded to stipulate the hours it would use, advising WSAI that Monday, Wednesday and Friday would be acceptable to it.

"When Admiral Bullard, chairman of the commission and custodian of the affairs of the Ohio district, could be reached, he explained that since WSAI used only two evenings a week, the arrangement with WOS had been ordered.

"When it was explained that WSAI had been using six evenings a week for more than four years, and in the last year had used several hours on Friday evenings, the Admiral expressed surprise and stated that he had been informed by telegraph that WSAI used only two nights a week.

"He said, however, that since the misunderstanding had arisen, WSAI might appeal formally and the commission would reconsider its order.

"Now that the commission has been correctly informed of the circumstances, WSAI must send representatives to protest formally to the commission, which probably will weigh the evidence and decide that a mistake has been made and WSAI will continue to be on 830 kilocycles without interference from WOS."

HOW AC TUBES DO AWAY WITH NEED OF BATTERIES

Only a Small Stepdown Transformer Required to Use Kellogg Type —Must Rewire Old Sets.

The part that AC tubes, by the use of which batteries and eliminators are eliminated, except for a small step-down transformer, are to play in radio bids fair to be so important that an explanation of what AC tubes do and how they do it should interest listeners.

Especially interesting among AC tubes are the Kellogg tubes for the reason that they include a power tube as well as ordinary amplifying and detector tubes.

The cathode or electron-emitting element of the Kellogg AC tube corresponds to the filament of the ordinary DC tube except that instead of being heated by direct application of current, the cathode is heated by an internal heating element which uses alternating current direct from the house lighting circuit. Since the heater element of the Kellogg AC tube takes only three volts, it is necessary to use a small step-down transformer on the line between the 110-volt light socket and the tube.

Alternating current to heat the tube is fed through the top instead of through the base, thus segregating it entirely from the rest of the tube circuits. The cathode proper has only one lead which is connected to the negative filament terminal at the base of the tube. Kellogg AC tubes have standard UX bases, thus permitting standard tube sockets to be used.

The Kellogg AC tube cannot be successfully used in so-called DC sets unless the circuit has been carefully rewired by a radio expert and it will not operate in some cir-

The Kellogg AC tube cannot be successfully used in so-called DC sets unless the circuit has been carefully rewired by a radio expert and it will not operate in some circuits at all. Consult an expert service man before attempting to change over any DC set.

The type 401 Kellogg AC tube, used for detector and amplifier, has the following general characteristics:

Heater voltage—3.0 volts. Heater current—1.0 amp.
Plate voltage	45*	90	9.0	12.0
Neg. grid bias	0	6.0	9.0	12.0
Plate current (milliamperes)	9060	13300	11700	10500
Plate imp'd'nce
Amplification factor	10.0	10.0	10.0	10.0
Mutual conductance (micromhos)	1100	750	850	952
Power output (milliwatts)		25	75	165

*For use as detector only using grid leak and condenser detection.

The values given for output represent undistorted output or output of negligible distortion. These values are for optimum load resistance or a load resistance of approximately twice the tube impedance.

The average characteristics of the 403 Kellogg AC tube follow:

Heater voltage—3.0 volts. Heater current—1.5 amps	135	180
Plate voltage	135	180
Negative grid bias	27	40
Plate current (milliamperes)	15	20
Plate impedance (ohms)	2500	2500
Amplification factor	3.0	3.0
Mutual conductance (micromhos)	1200	1200

*The values given for output undistorted output or output of negligible distortion. These values are for optimum load resistance or a load resistance of approximately twice the tube impedance.

COOLIDGE ON KSD FRIDAY

From 1:30 to 2:30 next Friday afternoon KSD is to broadcast the ceremonies at the dedication by the State of New Mexico of a tablet in the Washington Monument at the national capital. President Coolidge and several Senators are scheduled to speak, and the U. S. Marine band is to play.

Using Two Speakers.

Because of the vast difference of human ears, it is well to employ two loud-speakers. One speaker can be of the old-time horn type, which has marked sharpness, and the other of the modern cone or mellow type. Both loud-speakers are shunted by a variable resistance, so that either one may be reduced in volume to any desired degree.

Keep condensers clean; noises may "collect" there with dust after the set has been in use a long time.

Hetrodyning and cross-talk is due to unselective sets which are unable to separate stations to eliminate one station when another is desired.

PROTESTS DELUGING FEDERAL RADIO BOARD

Stations Shifted From 300-500 Meter Band Call Members of Congress to Help Them.

By THOMAS STEVENSON.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 26.—Members of the Federal Radio Commission are bracing themselves against a storm over the wave length changes effective next Thursday, which are designed to clear 25 waves for distance reception.

Pressure, of an intensity unlike anything ever before experienced in connection with radio, is being brought upon the commission in behalf of stations adversely affected by the changes.

Senator Tries Pressure.

Many stations transferred to less desirable places are doing everything in their power to prevent the commission from carrying out its plan.

Other stations, which will not have clear channels, are demanding why? They declare they are "as good, if not better, than many of the stations that will have clear waves," therefore, why the partiality?

On arriving home at midnight one of the commissioners received a telephone call from a very prominent Senator.

"I want you to give a clear wave to," said the Senator. "The station is owned and operated by particular friends of mine, and I want them to receive good treatment."

"I'm very sorry, Senator," replied the commissioner, "but I cannot see that the station you mention is entitled to a clear wave. It is undoubtedly a good local station, but it does not begin to measure up to many high-grade stations, some of which even will not receive clear waves because there are not enough to go around. However, there is nothing to prevent the station from presenting its claim to the commission. We will call a hearing and decide what is best to the public interest, necessity and convenience."

The Senator became angry. "You'll hear more from me on this matter," he said in conclusion.

Congressmen Make Threats.

Guards at the entrance of the Department of Commerce Building, in which the Radio Commission is lodged, have not seen so many Senators and Representatives in a long time.

Some of the Congressmen accept the explanation of the commission, wish it well, and declare they will co-operate to the fullest extent in the interest of "better radio."

Others refuse to see why some particular station should be shunted aside so some other station may receive increased benefits.

Undoubtedly, they will make trouble in Congress when that body convenes in December, or, at least, they say they will.

But only a small part of the flare-back is coming from Congressmen. Governors of states, broadcasting station owners, civic chambers of commerce, bankers and others are keeping busy the telephone and telegraph wires leading into the Radio Commission headquarters.

The commission also is receiving a literal flood of congratulatory messages from radio listeners. Most of the listeners indicate that they are not sure what it is all about, but are positive present conditions are so bad that anything is bound to work an improvement.

SINGLE ENGINE IN CAR BUILT FOR 200 M.P.H.

Frank Lockhart Said to Depend on Efficiency and Streamlining to Beat Seagrave.

Details are beginning to leak out of the 200-mile per hour racer that Frank Lockhart is building, in competition with the 36-cylinder car under construction in Pennsylvania, to try to beat the record of 203 m. p. h. made by Maj. Seagrave on the Florida beach.

Whereas Seagrave's car had two 12-cylinder engines, and the Pennsylvania giant is to have three 12-cylinder airplane motors, Lockhart's is understood to be merely an adaptation of the eight-cylinder cars that have been raced on the American speedways the past four years. Greater power and efficiency from a single straight eight engine, and streamlineing carried to the ultimate extreme, are said to be factors on which Lockhart is depending to beat the time of the Seagrave giant.

The 36-cylinder racer, which is being built by J. E. White of Philadelphia is to cost $36,000 and is expected to develop 1200 horsepower, or half as much again as the power of Seagrave's freak Sunbeam.

The contrast between the two American cars will be wide. The White car will use three great aviation engines which normally turn the shafts at comparatively low speeds. The car itself will be massive, and will in all probability weigh more than the four tons at which Segrave's "Sunbeam" tipped the scales.

Lockhart will use one small racing engine built by himself. It will turn over presumably at the same speed as the 91-inch racers that he has used on the track this season and last, which is 7000 r. p. m. Lockhart's car will be only wide enough to permit him to squeeze his body into it, which will be about 25 inches. The youthful pilot, whom Barney Oldfield has called the greatest driver the world has ever seen, will depend solely on scientific body design and a high-compression, supercharged power plant, plus efficient power transmission, to attain his speed. It is figured that he will depend on approximately one-fifth of the power that the "Triplex" car will have under its hood.

This season Lockhart is said to have put six miles an hour more speed in his Miller racer, rebuilt by himself, than any other driver. He has been able to do this by tanifolding to get the gas into his cylinders properly.

A year ago he made 171.02 miles an hour on the dry bed of Muroc Lake, in California, beating Tommy Milton's previous mark of 156.4 miles an hour at Daytona Beach in 1919.

The secrets of the new Lockhart speed car are still rather closely held. However, it is known that it will be small in comparison with the White and Segrave monsters.

Lockhart has not announced as yet where he will make his record attempt, but it will be either on the Daytona Beach course or the dry bed of Muroc Lake.

The "Triplex" car as it is being built at Philadelphia, by J. M. White and Robinson, his mechanic, calls for 1500 horsepower as compared with less than 1000 which the Segrave "Mystery S" was credited with. White's huge power plant is expected to travel only 12 miles at the most; that is the power it is expected to develop will be so great that the chassis will not stand more than 12 miles of running behind the terrific force that will propel it. By enormous reserves of power, White expects to overcome the head-on wind resistance caused by the onrush of the car.

At 200 miles an hour, it is estimated that Maj. Segrave's car expended one-half its total horsepower in overcoming wind resistance, and at this rate the Triplex is expected still to have tremendous horsepower in reserve.

KENTUCKY MAMMOTH CAVE TO BE MADE NATIONAL PARK

The Kentucky State Highway Commission, meeting at the State Capitol in Frankfort, has given its hearty indorsement to the effort now under way to make the Mammoth Cave area a National park. This effort is to be developed in a State-wide drive, in which $2,500,000 is to be raised through public contribution.

The fund is to be used to purchase the area and present it to the Federal Government for perpetual maintenance and development as a National park.

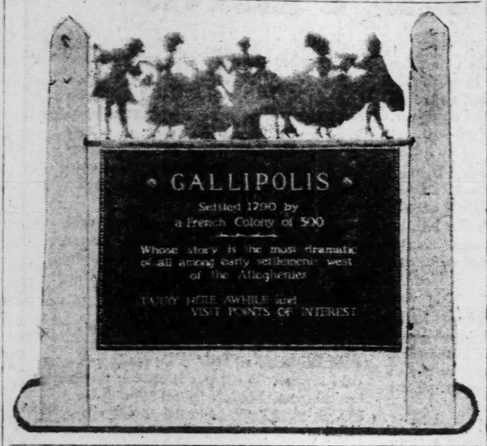
New Type of Signs Illinois May Use on Its Highways



Plaques May Supplant Illinois Road Markers

Bronze Plates With Gold Lettering and Mounted on Concrete Posts to Commemorate Interesting Points, Urged.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

BLOOMINGTON, Ill., Nov. 26.—Central Illinois city and country roads may soon be given distinctive markers, calling attention to places of historic interest, beauty spots, state and local public institutions and other points worthy of a visit by motor tourists.

While the urban pavements and rural highways are marked by the State Highway Department, showing mileage, junction points, warning notations and other customary information, it is felt here that there should be something additional.

It is likely that markets similar to those adopted by several cities in Ohio, and also Massachusetts, will be installed in this section of the State, and several samples of the type in vogue in those states are now under consideration here.

Thoughts of old English inns, with the quaint signs and greetings at the hospitable entrance, are aroused when the tourist by motor sees the markers that have just been installed at Marietta, Gallipolis, Springfield, Zanesville and other cities of Ohio.

Residents of Central Illinois are desirous of capitalizing transcontinental traffic, pouring over its concrete highways, by installing signs that will attract attention and invite a halt, as has been done so successfully in Ohio and New England states.

It is argued that a municipality has a selling problem, the same as a storekeeper or manufacturer, and must take steps to invite the ever increasing throng of motor tourists and casual visitors, as well as the prospective manufacturer, to stop and see what the community has to offer. By attracting the attention of chance visitors through attractive road signs, they may be induced to halt with the result that permanent residents and valuable mercantile or industrial establishments may be won.

It is proposed to erect bronze plaques with letters of gold, upon concrete posts on the principal streets of country boulevards, where they will be plainly seen by passing drivers. It is felt that such signs will not only contribute to civic beauty but inspire a desire to visit the institutions referred to.

THREE GOOD MOTOR ROUTES TO FLORIDA

All-Weather Highways by Way of Washington, Vincennes or Memphis.

When leaves have fallen and the weather man talks casually of blizzards, the migrating motorist turns his thoughts to Florida—with its sunshine and soft breezes, and green palms—which seems to mock winter.

There are three feasible routes the motorist may take southward. One is through Memphis, another by way of Vincennes and a third east across the United States to Washington, thence down the Atlantic seaboard to Daytona, Palm Beach, or any of the myriad other resorts.

Route Via U. S. 40.

The latter route is ideal if one cares to spend some time en route. One follows United States 40 East to Washington. This much of the journey is entirely over slab roads. South beyond Washington and following U. S. No. 1 and the Dixie Highway, the tourist will find varying roads of concrete, gravel and sand clay, except on each side of Savannah, Ga., where construction is necessitating several short detours.

In 1802 stage coaches took practically this route from Boston to Savannah at a speed of 53 miles a day. Today motorists by the thousands are driving down from various points along the route to the winter resorts of Florida, and are doing it five times as fast.

Leaving Washington the highway enters the picturesque South, through the mountains of Virginia and on down through the Carolinas and Georgia into Florida.

In Florida, the Dixie Highway becomes part of the route, stretching for the most part close to the Atlantic shore, passing the fine beaches at Ormond and Daytona, and hurrying on along smooth, wide pavement to Palm Beach and Miami.

Thirty miles south of Miami is Florida City, the jumping off place for the adventurous driver over the numerous keys to Key West. 141 miles to the southwest. This road has been completed, but for a 40-mile gap, at a cost of $8,000,000 and is now ready for travel.

Ferries will take motorists over the 40-mile gap to Key West, where other ferries will be ready to take the tourists on to Havana, Cuba, 90 miles away. There they may again take up driving over a good road of more than 700 miles around the island.

However, if the main desire is to get to Florida with dispatch, it is advisable to take the Memphis or Vincennes route, both of which are specifically all-weather courses.

Going via Memphis, with Lake City as one's objective, the distance is 1068 miles. The Vincennes route has St. Petersburg as its ultimate destination, and the distance is about 1130 miles. The Washington route is better than 1800 miles long if Daytona Beach is made the first Florida stop.

Lake City probably is the best point from which to go anywhere in Florida. It is virtually 100 miles due east of Tallahassee—Florida State capital—main junction of trans-continental routes. St. Petersburg is several hundred miles southeast of Lake City and is located on the north side of Tampa Bay, not far from the city of Tampa.

Good Accommodations.

Places such as Lake City, St. Petersburg, Jacksonville, St. Augustine, Daytona Beach, Titusville, Palm Beach, Miami, Tampa and Key West are synonymous with Florida and all that it means. At any of these places are good hotels. Families or large parties will find any number of pleasant beach cottages "to let."

Recreations are varied. Fishing, yachting, boating and bathing are among the chief amusements, while tennis, golf and motoring have many devotees. Tarpon fishing is a popular sport to whet one's enjoyment of the vacation.

Few of the popular beach resorts have historical background. The majority have sprung up in recent years with the increasing influx of Northern tourists. Florida, however, boasts of having the oldest town in the United States within its boundaries. This town, St. Augustine, is enchanting. Founded in 1565 by the Spaniard, De Aviles, it combined the romance of historic age associated with the names of Ponce de Leon, Sir Francis Drake, the architecture of old Spain and a superb semitropic beauty of surrounding and situation. Among its historic landmarks is the old Spanish fort, San Marco, which the Conquistadors were a hundred years in building and which is the finest piece of medieval military architecture in the United States.

Other Historic Places.

Tampa, Fort Lauderdale and Myers are historic as Seminole Indian trading posts. But the history of most of the resorts dates back only a few years.

Miami Beach is a typical illustration of this assertion. Miami Beach prior to 1914 was a jungle. Today

ANOTHER LINK OPENED IN U. S.-MEXICO ROAD

Project Regarded as Important as Building of First Railway Trunk Line.

By a Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

MEXICO CITY, Nov. 26.—One more link in the long chain of highways the Calles administration is building was opened the past week when a huge boulder in the highly important road leading from this city to Acapulco, important Pacific Coast port, was blasted by President Calles, by means of an especially arranged electric switch located in historic Chapultepec Castle.

The new highway, one of the most important in Mexico, traverses some of the most scenic wilderness territory in the Republic. It goes through sections were agriculture and stock raising are big projects and opens up a region that has previously been inaccessible to transportation.

Much of the produce will find markets either in this city or on the Pacific Coast of the United States where easy shipping facilities are afforded from the accessible port of Acapulco.

Regular bus service will be instigated as will truck gardening and shipping be encouraged. This project is regarded as of as much importance in opening the western and central sections of Mexico as was the building of the Southern Pacific railway lines.

Extent of road building during the Calles administration is estimated at 2000 kilometers, composing chiefly the Mexico City-Acapulco, Mexico City-Nuevo Laredo road which will ultimately connect the capital with the American border, and the Mexico City-Vera Cruz highway, connecting the Central Platgau with the Atlantic Seaboard.

NEW FORD TO BE PUT ON DISPLAY NEXT FRIDAY

Newspapers to Get Specifications, Description and Photographs for Story on Tuesday.

By a Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

DETROIT, Mich., Nov. 26.—According to present plans, the Ford Motor Co., will show newspapermen the new Ford cars, and furnish them specifications, description and photographs, Tuesday, Nov. 29, and on the following Friday dealers throughout the country are to have at least one car of the new model on display.

An announcement yesterday says that the new model, however, will not be placed on sale until after Jan. 1.

The effect of definite news about the new Ford on the industry as a whole can scarcely be overestimated. The tension has been strained to the breaking point in Detroit, where every move of the Ford Motor Co. has been watched with closest attention.

Resumption of activity at Fordson and at Highland Park comes too late to make the third quarter of the year anything but disappointing in auto production. October figures showed the low point, with only 185,706 passenger cars and 35,586 trucks reported by members of the National Automobile Chamber of Commerce, as against 289,565 passenger cars and 39,577 trucks in October, 1926.

Totals for the 10 months of 1927 were 2,694,570 passenger cars and 378,345 trucks, compared with 3,408,194 passenger cars and 396,874 trucks in the corresponding period last year.

Optimism General.

General optimism respecting the showing to be made in 1928 is noted in talking with the more important of the manufacturers in the Detroit district. The prediction by John J. Raskob of General Motors, that the coming year will show an output of 5,000,000 vehicles, is felt by some observers to be too high. His estimate, of course, includes all motor vehicles to be made in the United States and Canada. This figure for 1926 was 4,219,449 and if 1928 is to be a 5,000,000 unit year, it will have to show close to a 20 per cent increase over this total.

Reports of the growing importance of overseas business, particularly in South American countries and in Australia, lead to the impression that manufacturers are relying on 1928 fruition of export sales effort as an outstanding factor in the situation for next year. Germany, it is known, is becoming an increasingly important customer for American-made automotive products.

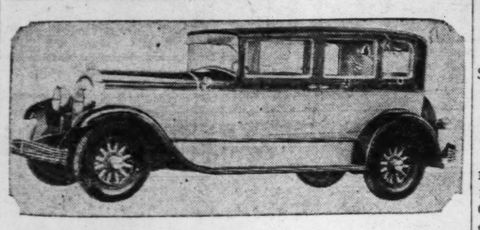
Used Car Survey.

Unofficial report that the Department of Commerce will engage in a survey of the used car situation is of high interest. If plans that are reported to be well under way are carried out, they will mark the Government's first official entry into this field. A survey of the type that it is understood is to be made will give for the first time a census of used cars and trucks in dealers' hands that can be relied on. If the plans of the Government include some practical suggestions as to how the used car problem ought to be handled it ought to go far toward settling procedure in what, since its inception, has proved one of the most troublesome elements in the entire industry.

New Sales Plans.

Expansion of sales headquarters, with country-wide coverage by regional or zone heads, is indication of the sales activities planned for 1928. Willys-Overland has reorganized the factory sales plan, with five separate sales regions and a manager responsible for each, and Chevrolet has just added a Detroit zone to its sales setup, making the fortieth sales zone to be established by the company.

New Chrysler Imperial "80" Sedan



This is the new Chrysler Imperial "80" five-passenger sedan, a custom-built model built by Chrysler engineers. It is powered by the Chrysler's new 112 h. p. engine.

NEW CHRYSLER "80" MODELS ON DISPLAY

Sedan and Town Car Being Shown Are Powered by 112 H. P. Engine.

Two models of the new Chrysler Imperial "80" line are now on display here by Midwest Motors, Inc., Chrysler distributer. The new models are being shown by the distributer for the first time today and were not on display the past week, as erroneously stated in these columns last Sunday.

The models on display, two of five of the new standard Chrysler Imperial "80" line, are a five-passenger sedan and five passenger close-coupled town car.

All sedan models are so built that plate glass divisions between front and rear seats can easily be installed at a small cost to quickly provide a chauffeur-driven car.

New 112-H. P. Engine.

The new line has many body and engine refinements over the old Imperial "80" series, chief of which is the new power plant said by Chrysler engineers to be capable of developing 112 h. p., and called by them the most powerful standard motor car engine in America today.

The power plant is Chrysler's new "red head" high compression engine, first introduced into the Chrysler line several months ago, and now adopted as standard for all body types of the new Imperial "80." The bore of the new engine has been increased to 3⅝ inches and the stroke is 5 inches. Invar-strut type pistons are standard.

A newly designed carburetor with extra gasoline lift to make cold weather starting easy, and a specially built manifold to handle greater power output are the other principal engine features.

The overall length of the new Imperial "80" is 191 inches for all models. Long springs, anchored in blocks of rubber, and the special Chrysler mountings also of rubber at front and rear of the engine contribute to riding comfort.

There are five Chrysler-built custom models, the town sedan, five and seven passenger sedans, sedan-limousine and roadster. Custom model by LeBaron, Locke and Dietrich round out the body choices.

Lamps, incidentally, are of the new bowl type and are of chromium steel.

There are many options to be had in the finely tailored interiors, upholstery is broadcloth. Bedford cord, mohair and leather being available.

The new type four-wheel brakes are internal expanding, with an automatic refill for the master cylinder. The gasoline tank has a 30-gallon capacity with three gallons reserve.

New "72" Models.

Besides the new Imperial "80" models, Midwest Motors is today displaying four special jobs on the "72" chassis. There are the sport roadster with rumble seat, the two-passenger coupe with rumble seat, the town sedan, and royal sedan.

Both the royal and town sedan have six wire wheels as standard equipment, two spares being mounted on each front fender in tire wells.

The sport roadster has a Don Lee windshield. Rumble seat upholstery in this model and in the coupe is leather. Other upholstery, including that in the sedans, is velour. Artillery wheels are standard on the coupe and roadster models.

GARDNER SALES SHOW GAIN

Gardner Motor Co., Inc., of St. Louis will show a substantial increase in retail sales of the Gardner eight-in-line, a factory report reveals. This report covers Gardner sales for the first nine months of 1927 and shows that during this time more Gardner eights were sold at retail than during the entire 12 months of last year. And in 1927 an increase of 34 per cent in eight-cylinder car sales, was registered by Gardner.

Gardner's recent announcement of three complete series of eights-in-line—the 75, 85 and 90—has had a very noticeable effect on retail sales. Included in these three series are eight-in-line models at almost every price from $1295 to $2495. As a result, Gardner dealers are able to present to the prospective eight-in-line owner virtually any particular color and interior combination he may want at a price within easy reach of his purse.

it is Florida's greatest rendezvous for motorboats.

A long causeway connects Miami with Miami Beach on the palm shaded key across the bay where there are sumptuous hotels with Roman swimming pools, delightful surf bathing, casinos, tennis courts, a polo field, golf links, aviation field and a $750,000 race track which will hold a 51-day racing meet commencing Jan. 21, 1926.

In all, there are seven fine golf courses at Miami and Miami Beach. Upon Miami Beach and in the suburbs of Miami are many splendid winter homes, of which the gardens of the Deering estate, vast in extent and superlative in beauty, are perhaps the most noteworthy.

Hundreds of miles of excellent paved roads invite the motorist.

Miami has a large number of good hotels of all classes, and there are also many furnished apartments and bungalows.

The U. S. sub-tropical Laboratory is at Miami and an aquarium with an interesting collection of sub-tropical fishes and other marine life.

IT COSTS REAL MONEY to be a Cold Weather "CHOKE-FIEND"

HE'S known in thousands of service stations. He comes in with the spring—bringing a motor that no longer responds quickly to the will of its driver. Sluggish, noisy, full of carbon—robbed of its old-time "pep."

Then he gets the first shock. Instead of a few minor adjustments—he's faced with a long list of repairs. He'll get the second shock when he pays the bill.

"Another 'choke-fiend,'" murmurs the service man. And it costs real money to be called that.

Let this warn you!

50% to 75% of the great national repair bill, according to motor car authorities, is caused by cold. And excessive use of the "choke" in the "warming-up" period brings greatest damage.

Your motor coughs and sputters—you pull the "choke." Instantly a flood of raw gasoline hits the glass-like surfaces of cylinders and cylinder walls. The oil between these surfaces is washed away. Vital motor parts laid bare to ruinous friction. Scoring and pitting follows, excessive dilution, fouled spark plugs, extreme carbonization, corrosion and rapid cylinder wear. Gasoline consumption is increased at a tremendous rate.

Engineers urge this remedy

Pines Automatic Winterfront will break you of the "choke" habit—and keep you out of the service station next spring. Where you "warm-up" now in a few miles, Winterfront cuts the "warming-up" period to a few seconds. And controls the heat of the motor with scientific exactness.

It's automatic—because when cold strikes, it strikes hard—and the danger is too serious to trust radiator protection to the car owner's memory.

At 60° damage starts

And damage from cold is as certain as cold itself. Have your car equipped with Winterfront today. Be ready when cold strikes. We'll put it on for you in ten minutes. Models for all cars—priced $22.50 to $30.00. Special models for Ford, $15.00; Chevrolet, $17.50; Dodge Four, $20.00.

The motor car dealer who recommends and sells you a Pines Automatic Winterfront is considering your interests first. Take his advice. Your dealer will supply you.

Closes Itself when your motor needs heat.

Opens Itself when your motor needs cool air.

A Battery-Guarantee that means something!

We guarantee your Continental Battery unconditionally for 90 days—and against any defect for two years! This guarantee means every word it says! Both your Continental Dealer and ourselves will back it to the limit.

Only Continentals could meet the test of such a guarantee. For only a battery that is made right could stand the gruelling strain of two years' service!

And Continentals are made right from their rugged hard-rubber containers to their quarter-sawn Cedar separators! Even their heavy, screw-type posts are protected from corrosion by thick rubber gaskets. And most important of all, Continentals have *Dehydro Plates—plates that are baked to insure extra-capacity and long life!

If you've stepped on the starter—when you were ten miles from nowhere—and found your battery dead—you know the value of a battery you can depend upon! Every Continental is a heavy-duty battery and there's one priced as low as $12.00. You can identify Continentals by the name on the container. See your nearest Continental Dealer today:

*Dehydro Plates are battery plates that are made additionally porous by our process of dehydration. This permits more rapid circulation and thus lessens strain on the active material within the battery. It means quick response—greater capacity—and longer life for the plates.

CONTINENTALS for Radios too!

When you buy a Continental Radio Battery you know how many plates it contains, their dimensions, and what the actual ampere-hour rating is!

NEW MOON SIX HAS LARGER POWER PLANT

Improved Series 6-72, With Six Body Styles, on Display Here Today.

The new Moon Series 6-72 line of six-cylinder cars with six body styles ranging in price from $1395 to $1545, factory, is on display in St. Louis for the first time this week by the Moon Motor Car Co.

The new Moon line has many body refinements, a new and larger six-cylinder Continental engine, and a low slung 120-inch chassis.

The new engine has a 3⅜-inch bore and a 4-inch stroke and is of the L-head type, with the crankcase and cylinder head cast en bloc, and develops a 66-brake horsepower at 3150 r. p. m. It has a displacement of 214.71 cubic inches and a bare weight of 448 pounds.

The new power plant has a seven-bearing crankshaft which with the Lanchester damper eliminates any tendency toward vibration and crankshaft whip, an exceptionally rigid crankcase due to the webbing supporting the seven bearings, mushroom tappets, and Nelson type aluminum alloy pistons with Invar-struts.

The clutch is single plate, with rubber-insulated driven member. Carburetor is of new Stromberg design.

The new Moon 6-72 line measures only 63 inches in height, but has a road clearance of nine inches in spite of this low-hung construction. This is emphasized by the smaller, stub-spoke Artillery wheels, full balloon, 29x5.50 tires, and by lower running boards as well as full crowned fenders and newly-designed dust and splash aprons.

The new line includes the following body styles: Royal 4-door sedan, royal 2-door sedan, cabriolet roadster, roadster, standard 4-door sedan and standard 2-door sedan.

A distinguishing feature of the new car is the deep and narrow cellular type radiator of new design. It is surmounted by a special Moon designed radiator shell of German silver. Headlamps and cowl lamps are cone-shaped and nickled. Headlamps are twin-beam type. They are triple-braced and mounted on stanchions of sturdy construction.

A nickle plated surcingle nearly an inch wide, of which the cowl light brackets are integral parts, runs entirely over hood and cowl and down to the sills on either side. Cowl light wires are encased in heavy nickel-plated armour.

Interiors of the closed models is finished in mohair. Interior fitments include silk curtains at rear and quarter windows, silk assist cords, purse effect pockets, comfortable arm rests, a silk robe rail, and Butler-finish hardware with black inlay.

All instruments including an electric gasoline gauge are enclosed in a single glass oval, indirectly lighted, and located in the center of the instrument board. Choke and ignition buttons are conveniently located just under oval on instrument board.

Both front and rear compartments of the cabriolet and roadster models are finished in deep buff, pigskin leather.

How the New Moon 6-72 Sedan Looks

This is the sedan model of the new Moon Series 6-72 six-cylinder line. Its wheelbase is 120 inches, and its overall height only 73 inches.

WILLYS-KNIGHT OUTPUT BEING MAINTAINED STEADY

Since the introduction of the Willys-Knight Great Six with the five optional color combinations there has been a decided trend to this Knight engined six, according to Willys-Overland, Inc., sales officials. This trend also is noticeable in the "70" Willys-Knight line, the factory says.

Production of the Willys-Knight Great Six and the "70" Willys-Knight models si being maintained at a steady pace to meet the demand for these popular cars.

"In the Willys-Knight Great Six line the new color combinations give the buyer a wide range of selection to satisfy individual tastes. Each combination presents a harmonious blending of rich colors entirely in keeping with the rich interior upholstering and the quality tone of the car throughout," says the factory.

NEW TRANSMISSION FOR CHEVROLET 1-TON TRUCKS

The commercial car division of the Chevrolet Motor Co. has announced that a four-speed transmission is now available for all Chevrolet one-ton trucks.

This new transmission, it is said, will provide 107 per cent greater application of engine power than the regularly equipped three-speed transmission, and is particularly adapted to such work as pulling out of ploughed fields, sand pits, and similar heavy duty service. Provision also is made in it for a power take-off so that the power from the engine may be applied to various devices such as hydraulic hoists, pressure units for sprayers, pumps, etc.

"Gear reductions in the three higher speeds of the new transmission, are approximately the same as in the standard three-speed transmission, the extra fourth speed providing a reduction 107 per cent greater than in the standard transmission. The new type operates and shifts the same as the standard, except for an auxiliary attachment to the shift lever which throws the fourth speed into gear.

"The new product was developed by Chevrolet engineers and perfected on General Motors proving grounds. It is available through the Chevrolet dealer organization at a cost of $65 installed."

MEYER TIRE CO. INC. MADE SEIBERLING DISTRIBUTER

The Meyer-Kemp Tire Co., Twenty-second and Pine streets, has been reorganized as Meyer Tire Co., Inc. E. L. Meyer Jr. is president; A. O. Frohse, treasurer, and J. H. Bohm, secretary.

Meyer Tire Co., Inc, shortly after its reorganization was appointed distributers in St Louis and St. Louis County of Seiberling all-tread tires.

Every Seiberling tire sold to the consumer is insured for one year against accident, cuts, bruises, blowout, wheel alignment, negligence, rim cuts, under inflation, or any road hazard," Meyer has announced.

The firm has a South Side branch, E. L. Meyer Tire Co., on the southwest corner of Broadway and Itaska streets. This branch will sell and service Seiberling tires in South St. Louis.

58 NEW AUBURN DEALERS

"During the month of October 58 new dealers were signed to sell Auburn automobiles in every section of the United States, five new distributers were added and six new export distributers were named while R. S. Wiley, export manager was in Europe," the Auburn Automobile Co. reports.

"We consider the announcement of 69 new sales representatives as a signal achievement and by far the greatest Auburn Automobile Co. accomplishment in the almost 28 years, since its organization," says Roy H. Faulkner, vice president in charge of sales.

PACKARD SHIPMENTS HEAVY

"Shipments of Packard cars by the factory in October alone exceeded those of any entire year up to 1920, with the exceptions of the years 1916 and 1917. Shipments of both September and October exceeded those for all of the first 11 years of Packard history.

"The combined September and October shipments also exceed those of any year, except 1916, from the time the first Packard car was built, Nov. 6, 1899 to 1922, the year in which the company made it possible for more persons to own Packards through the Packard Six," the factory reports.

WATCH MOTOR HEAT AS TEMPERATURE FALLS

There is a distinct need in cold weather for a means of protection that will reduce or eliminate this damage and produce more efficient motor operation throughout the winter months.

"Several makers of fine cars have solved this problem for their owners by equipping their cars with Pines Automatic Winterfront," says the factory.

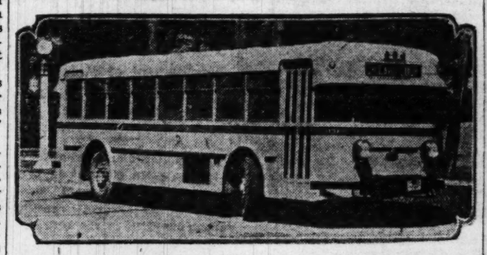
Operation of this device is controlled automatically by a thermostat which fits snugly to the radiator. The device itself completely covers the radiator and remains closed until the motor is warm enough to operate without damage to vital parts. The shutters then begin to open automatically, thus allowing just the right amount of cold air into the motor to keep it operating efficiently.

Car manufacturers have found that use of this protective device that works without attention or thought on the part of the driver, cuts down repair bills tremendously and gives the car owner a new satisfaction with his car. It eliminates the necessity of "over-choking" the motor, shortening the "warming-up" period to just a few seconds.

RADIO AND AUTO FIRM OPENS ITS TENTH STORE IN ST. LOUIS

The Star Square Auto Supply Co. has opened its tenth St. Louis store, at Locust boulevard and Twentieth street. The store, as do the other nine Star Square stores, will handle radio receivers, speakers and accessories, as well as automotive accessories.

New Street Car Type of Bus



New type of motor bus for city use. It is called the Twin Coach, seats 40 persons with standing room for 45 more, and has twin engines slung in its middle. It is designed especially to replace street cars on branch and extension lines and for feeder and special service.

More 4-Wheel Brakes. Practically all of the European models of cars exhibited at the twenty-first annual Paris automobile show were equipped with front and rear brakes.

NEW LINCOLN LINE AT NEW YORK SALON

Twelve Models Range From Custom-Built Sport Car to Luxurious Limousine.

Many of the finest examples of the modern coach builder's art will be exhibited on the Lincoln chassis at the Automobile Salon in New York this week. These cars will also be on display at the Chicago, Los Angeles and San Francisco salons.

Twelve Lincoln cars will be shown, ranging from unique examples of the sport car to the formal brougham or cabriolet.

Exclusive Designs.

Lincoln designs avoid the practice of bringing out yearly models in favor of establishing certain standard body types which are fundamentally beautiful in line and proportion. The designing of these cars has not been left to the manufacturer, but has been entrusted to designers who are devoting their lives to this art medium—Brunn, Dietrich, Judkins, Le Baron, Derham, Holbrook and Willoughby.

The ever-widening popularity of the sport car has turned the attention of America's master coach builders to this body type. There is, for instance, the convertible sedan by Dietrich, introducing an entirely new vogue in motor car design. An interesting innovation is the Monel metal framed glass partition between the front and rear compartments. The glass itself may be lowered out of sight, or utilized as a tonneau windshield when using this design as an open car.

Another interesting example of the sport car is the sport convertible coupe by Brunn. In this design the intimacy and convenience of a coupe are preserved, yet ample room is provided for two extra passengers without recourse to the usual exposed rear-deck seat. When not in use these auxiliary seats fold against the rear cushion, making a generous luggage compartment.

The Lincoln sport phaeton by Locke has ample room to accommodate three passengers in the rear compartment. A removable arm rest is provided for those occasions when only two persons are present.

Four of the cars exhibited at the salon are of the imposing formal type for business or social usage. There is the Lincoln cabriolet by Le Baron, with noncollapsible rear compartment. The all-weather front compartment permits raising of windows in the forward doors to meet a canopy covering from roof to windshield, thus giving the advantages of an inclosed limousine in inclement weather.

Combining the pleasures of an open car with privacy and seclusion, is the fully collapsible cabriolet by Holbrook. A special molding treatment lends an air of exclusiveness to the convertible rear compartment. Two auxiliary seats are provided, one of which faces toward the front and the other sideways. A trunk rack is placed on the rear for touring use.

The Limousine.

Finally, the Lincoln seven-passenger limousine by Willoughby is a pleasant combination of custom-built exclusiveness and luxurious comfort. Both front and rear compartments are unusually spacious, and afford a greater degree of head room than is customary in this type of car. The two auxiliary seats, both of which face forward, are wide, comfortably upholstered, and provided with easy arm rests. When not in use, these seats fold neatly out of the way and are concealed by flaps. An obtuse angle windshield with integral visor serves to emphasize the length and beauty of this Lincoln limousine.

In each cylinder of the famous Falcon-Knight engine just two sleeves glide up and down, replacing the complicated clutter of valve parts in the ordinary poppet-valve type of motor.

HALF OF PLATE GLASS MADE USED ON AUTOS

Development of Motor Car Is Revolutionizing Its Production.

Automobile plants use about one-half the plate glass made in this country, and plate glass in the value of its product constitutes about one-fifth of the entire glass industries, according to Dr. E. Ward Tillotson of the Mellon Institute of Industrial Research, University of Pittsburg, in a report to the American Chemical Society.

"The development of the automobile has made profound changes in the manufacture of plate glass," says Dr. Tillotson. "It is undergoing an evolution which promises to revolutionize completely its production.

"The term 'plate glass' does not refer primarily to any definite composition or formula, but to the method of manufacture and to the final form of the product. Any glass that has been rolled into a sheet and then ground and polished is properly called plate glass.

"The term also implies that the sheet shall be free from defects such as undissolved material, bubbles, striae and furrows, and other faults which are common in glass made for other purposes. It is the most carefully prepared and the most perfect of all commercial glasses next to the optical glass.

"Although bottle and window glass factories have been in successful operation for over a century, plate glass has been produced in the United States for only about 40 years. The earliest markedly successful factory was built by John B. Ford at Creighton, Pa.

"Discovery of natural gas in Western Pennsylvania stimulated the glass industry by supplying cheap and readily available fuel.

"Glass is one of the materials that was not created particularly for the automobile, yet it is probable that no one would purchase a glassless automobile, for the convenience and comfort that glass provides have come to be inseparably associated with modern transportation.

"With the exception of the small quantity of cheaper glass used as a protective material to the lighting and signaling system and the dashboard equipment, plate glass is the only glass associated with automobile manufacture."

WILLYS-OVERLAND SALES SCHOOL BEING CONDUCTED

District representatives of Willys-Overland Inc., factory branches all over the United States, are for the ensuing fiscal month being sent to the factory headquarters at Toledo to atend a two weeks' sales school session being conducted by L. G. Peed, general sales manager.

A first contingent of four of the 12 district representatives of the Willys-Overland branch here went to the factory the past week. Others are scheduled to depart this week.

OLDS OCTOBER SALES HERE SHOW HEAVY INCREASE

Registrations of Oldsmobile cars in the St. Louis territory—including St. Louis County—as compared with other makes of automobiles in the same price class for October of this year show a 176 per cent increase over those of October, 1926, according to R. L. Samuels, branch manager here.

FALCON-KNIGHT ECONOMICAL

Falcon Motors Corp. says hundreds of owners of the Falcon-Knight six have indicated that this car is very economical.

Economy of operation, according to officials of the company, applies not only to fuel and oil but in general repair costs and maintenance.

Although the first of these cars were not marketed until last March, the usual acceptance of these Knight engined models presages a remarkable sales year for a car in its initial year of production. Production is being maintained at a steady pace while an analysis of the sales sheets reveals a continuous demand on the part of motor car buyers.

BETTER BODIES NECESSARY

According to F. E. Watts, chief engineer of Hupp Motor Car Corp., bodies that were highly satisfactory three years ago are wholly inadequate for today's modern automobile.

"Today's body must contain greater durability, structural strength and rigidity than ever before," he says. "It must group with those features a finer appearance, enhanced comfort and increased spaciousness. The bodies of three years ago would fail completely to withstand the strains to which the greater performance advantages of the newest in motor cars would impose on them."

NEW MASON TIRE FOR 1928

The Mason Tire and Rubber Co. of Kent, O., announces a line of improved tires for 1928, called Hylastic balloons.

The tires are larger and stronger, with flat treads, high shoulder-supporting sidewalls, and attractively distinctive sidewall medallions.

The Hylastic balloon retains the Gruy-Lock tread design, but is a bigger tire with more rubber and with a 20 per cent stronger Hylastic cord carcass.

NEW CHEVROLET PARTS PLANT

The Chevrolet Motor Co. has announced the opening of a new $625,000 parts and service building in Flint, Mich. This structure marks the completion of a $2,000,000 parts and service program extending over the last year and involving construction of four major supply depots.

The new Flint building is a three-story steel and concrete structure with 225,000 square feet of floor space. Railroad docks for 12 freight cars have been provided to expedite shipping.

GABRIEL CONVENTION HELD

H. C. Merry, local distributer of Gabriel snubbers, has recently returned from the annual Gabriel convention at Cleveland.

"No convention that I have ever attended," says Merry, "was marked by such enthusiasm and optimism as this one. Apparently the desire for increased riding comfort is reflected to a greater extent than ever before in the demands of today's car buyer. As a result, Gabriel's position in the automobile industry is becoming increasingly secure and distributers everywhere have enjoyed a most successful year."

Is that your Motor we hear crying?

"Don't make me wear the same light-weight 'jacket' that I wore last summer," we hear it cry, "give me some real winter protection."

Perhaps you've never realized that when you fill the cooling system of your car in winter with a volatile anti-freeze mixture you're giving your motor a "jacket" which is actually thinner than water alone. Under such circumstances the motor cannot be kept warm enough to operate efficiently in freezing weather without boiling away its protection.

One of the best features of Ivo Radiator Glycerine is its higher boiling point which makes it possible to run your car at an efficient temperature without danger of losing its anti-freeze protection.

Besides this feature, Ivo has many others equally important. It will not evaporate. Barring leaks in the cooling system it gives permanent protection. It is therefore more economical in the long run than volatile anti-freeze solutions. Ivo will not burn or explode; it is odorless; it will not harm the finish of your car.

The dealers listed below carry Ivo. See the one nearest you this week. Have him look over the hose connections and pump packings on your car and fill the cooling system with Ivo. Then you can drive away, knowing that during the entire winter you need have no fear of a frozen radiator.

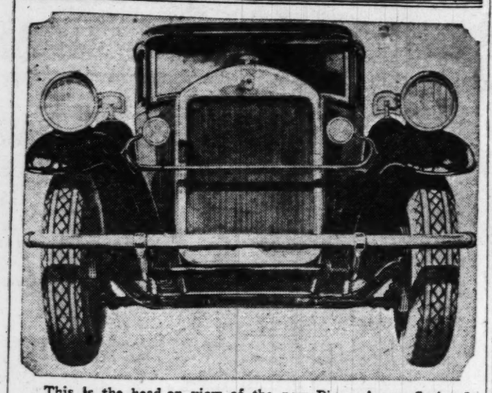
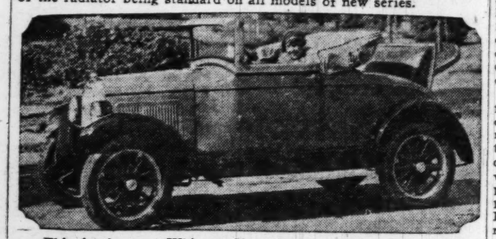
What's New in Motor Cars



This is the head-on view of the new Pierce-Arrow Series 81, which replaces the Series 80 models. Note the auxiliary headlamps on each side of the radiator. These are employed when fender headlamps are used. Fender lamps are optional, large lamps on each side of the radiator being standard on all models of new series.



This is the new Whippet Six cabriolet coupe. It has a collapsible weather-proof top, and provides either a closed car or a sport roadster. A rumble seat accommodates two extra passengers.

New Whippet Cabriolet on Display

Introuction of the new Whippet cabriolet coupe, an addition to the Whippet line of cars, is announced this week by Willys-Overland, Inc., branch here. This is the first two-type cabriolet coupe to be offered in the light car field and is included in the Whippet Six line as well.

Mounted on the low-swung Whippet chassis, the body presents a trim and sporty appearance.

Two extra passengers are accommodated in the rumble seat.

Employment of encased sponge-rubber weather stripping makes the body entirely weather-proof when top and windows are up. It takes but a moment to convert the car from an entirely closed model to an open roadster.

The interior is fitted in fine leather upholstery. Landau bows and the top of genuine Hartz material are among the custom car refinements.

In the design and production of this new cabriolet coupe Willys-Overland officials declare than an advanced step has been taken, striking a new idea of value in both the light car and the light six chassis.

New Packard 8 Town Car on Display

The latest addition to the Packard eight-cylinder line is the Dietrich custombuilt town car, now on display by the Berry Motor Co., Packard distributor here. The new car is priced at $7090 delivered, which includes two spare tires, front and rear bumpers, trunk rack and a number of other accessories.

The body and running gear of the new car is done in tan. The disc wheels of the same color have creme trimming.

The top is dark green Spanish grain leather as is the body moulding. The window reveals are in tan. Two tops are provided for the driving compartment, one of which can be put in place permanently in winter. The other is for emergency use.

Spare tires are carried on each side of the car in the provided wells on the front fenders.

Upholstery is tan broadcloth to match the body color.

New Chandler Sedan Being Shown

Chandler announces a new model, called the Special Six de luxe sedan. It is done in two-tone fawn with fenders and mud splashers finished in fawn to match the body. It is on display now at the Wilson Motor Car Co., Chandler distributer here.

Instead of regular artillery type wood wheels, wire wheels are standard. Mounting of extra wheels is directly back of the front fenders, which are recessed to provide the proper position.

An optional color scheme is blue devil blue throughout the body with grenada blue window reveals and mouldings. A gold stripe on the mouldings and wheels provides a pleasing contrast.

A theft-proof electric ignition lock is standard equipment. Other late improvements include a light control from the steering wheel, adjustable ventilating windshield, nickeled, twin-beam headlights and cowl lamps to match.

The de luxe sedan is powered by the Chandler special six motor.

First Slab in 1909.

From the first mile of concrete rural road built in the United States in 1909, Wayne County, Mich., in which Detroit is located, has developed the most extensive system of smooth, hard roadways in the world. The county now has a highway system that totals more than 500 miles, most of which is paved. These pavements vary in width from 18 to 88 feet.

COURT OF HONOR GIVES BADGES TO BOY SCOUTS

First Presentation of Awards Under New Ruling Made in West District.

A new National Boy Scout ruling to the effect that candidates for the rank of first-class scout must receive their new badges from a Court of Honor representing their local council rather than from their scoutmaster, as heretofore, was put into effect for the first time in the West District of St. Louis at the November West District Court of Honor at Ben Blewett Junior High School Monday evening.

Four scouts, Joseph Barnhart and Charles Leutweiler of Troop 134, and James Delano and Ed McLean of Troop 2, presented evidence to the court that they had completed all first-class requirements and were presented the first-class badge. In addition to these boys, 75 other scouts were awarded a total of 192 badges. Fifty-six first-class scouts received 150 merit badges, and 19 second-class scouts 42 merit badges. The court was conducted by E. N. Birge, C. N. Curtis, and Hermann Schwarz of the city court.

The new ruling was put into effect in St. Louis Nov. 1 by the local council, in accordance with a new national edict, which also provides that hereafter a first-class applicant must satisfy a board of review that he has successfully passed all hi stests, in some cases passed all his tests, in some cases Heretofore all test-passing for this rank has been done by the scoutmaster.

The scoutmaster will continue temporarily to pass first-class tests until the local boards of review are organized, but will certify to the Court of Honor on a provided card that the scout has completed his work. The machinery of the boards is expected to be functioning by Jan. 1, at which time the entire new system officially goes into effect in St. Louis. Each of the four districts, north, south, west and suburban, will be provided with its own board.

Points were awarded to troops at the court for badges, one point being given for every merit badge and two points for each first-class badge received by the troop. The winning troop, 134, was given the privilege of carrying the silk district American flag in the opening ceremony. Troops 5 and 93 tied for second place.

Percival Chubb of the St. Louis Ethical Society gave the inspirational address on "A Scout's Honor," and the Rev. [illegible] gave the invocation. A scout band under the leadership of H. Olson presented a 15-minute concert before the ceremony opened.

The first suburban district court to award the first-class badges will be held tomorrow evening at the Webster Groves High School. The next north district court will be in the auditorium of Yeatman High School, Dec. 5. Because of the recent change, first-class applicants attending the suburban court may fill out applications at the door, providing they bring with them evidence that all requirements have been met satisfactorily. North district scouts, however, must have their applications in at local headquarters not later than noon, Dec. 3.

COURSE FOR SCOUTMASTERS

Second Meeting in Training Course at 7:30 p. m. Tomorrow.

The second meeting of the St. Louis Scoutmasters' Training Course will be held at the Sheldon Memorial, Washington boulevard just west of Grand boulevard, tomorrow evening at 7:30 o'clock. As several of the patrols have more than eight men in them and other new members are expected to enroll tomorrow, several new patrols will be organized.

Patrol leaders and officers will hold a preliminary meeting 15 minutes before the class starts, while experts in knot-tying, leatherbraiding and other scouting subjects will give individual demonstrations and instructions to any leader who so desires, for a half hour before the course.

The new official handbook, which contains all the changes in requirements, and is an entirely new book, rather than the usual yearly revision of the old one, also will be on display. Copies of the new book may be obtained from local headquarters, 505 Chemical Building.

CAMPAIGN BY NORTH DISTRICT

Membership of 2000 Sought by Last of December.

A district-wide campaign to obtain a total of 2000 Boy Scouts by the last of December has been begun by the North District of St. Louis, under the direction of Field Executive L. L. Hotchkiss. The present membership of the district is 1820. This is the first time this division has sought the 2000 mark, and as a result every scout has been asked to enlist a recruit, either for his own troop or for the troop nearest the candidate's residence.

In connection with the campaign, Executive Hotchkiss has announced that five troops, 42, 64, 151, 239 and 240, failed to reregister when due, the first of November. Should these troops delay until after the first of December, their charter will automatically lapse, in accordance with a new ruling of National Headquarters, and the district membership would lose their numbers.

SCOUT NOTES

WEST DISTRICT.

Troop 44 of St. Rose's Church, with Scoutmaster Balfay and Advisor Father O'Donnell, held an inter-troop hike with Troop 94 of St. Barbara's Church last Sunday. Fire-building and cooking tests were passed and inter-patrol games were played. Preparatory to an inter-patrol contest to be held in December, the patrols of Troop 44 have been reorganized under Patrol Leaders, Harmon Barton, Perry Langston, Robert Mattis and William Fuchs.

Troop 49 now is meeting temporarily at the Flynn Park School, 7200 Waterman avenue. Jerry Price, Bill Pfremmer, Noel Worthington and Gene Hall passed the second-class fire-building and cooking tests on a troop hike to Creve Coeur last Sunday. Several camp games were played.

Arthur Scharf, Charles Miller and Marin Cohn have been elected new patrol leaders of the patrols of Troop 90 of Temple Shaare Emeth. George Boyer, James Miller and Ben Jacobs are their assistants. Thirty-one scouts hiked from Moerschels to the Rankin Cave near Eureka last Sunday, spending the time at the cave passing tests. The largest attendance of the year was present at a meeting last Tuesday to witness motion pictures of last year's winter camp.

Troop 134's meeting a week ago Friday night consisted of a surprise sight-seeing hike through the West End, ending at a campfire and "hot dogs" in Forest Park. After the opening routine of checking attendance and dues, the troop was ordered to fall in, and without preparation was led on the hike by Scoutmaster Rodehaver.

Thirty scouts of Troop 169 of Our Lady of Loudres Church were present a week ago Friday evening to hear the scoutmaster, the Rev. Father Walter Craig, review the new handbook.

The scouts, troop committeemen and Scoutmaster Arthur Newton of Troop 101, of the West Park Baptist Church, attended the West District Court of Honor in a body Monday evening. The regular meeting was canceled to allow the troop to attend the court.

Five new scouts weer admitted into Troop 178, four others were promoted to the first class rank, and three to second class, last month. One open meeting was held, a 14-mile hike taken out the Lemay Ferry road, and an overnight camp held at the Lions' Den. This camp was also attended by three members of the Troop Committee. Several scouts from the troop received merit badges at the last District Court of Honor.

Troop 182 attended the last District Court of Honor in a body Nov. 14, to witness six scouts from the troop receive merit badges. Work on the higher ranks has increased since Scoutmaster Richter took over the troop.

NORTH DISTRICT.

A new troop, Troop 83, has been organized at the St. Paul's Presbyterian Church, Lillian and Ruskin avenues, under Scoutmaster R. C. Schroeder of 5460A Ruskin avenue. The troop will receive its charter and the charter members will be invested with the tenderfoot rank at an investiture ceremony to be conducted by one of the neighboring troops within the next week or two.

Troop 88 of the Salem Church invested two new boys with the rank of tenderfoot a week ago Friday evening, and also passed several scouts on second-class tests. The Lion Patrol furnished entertainment with a stunt.

Troop 122 of Sherman Park reregistered last week with 52 boys, with four to reregister this week, out of a total of 69 in the troop throughout the whole of last year. Practically all the loss has been through transfer to other troops or removal from the city. Classes in merit badge work will start next Tuesday evening, when the study of leather working will be taken up. The following Tuesday will deal with woodcraft.

Troop 130 of Zion Evangelical Church reregistered last week with 27 boys, a loss of only nine from last year's total. The loss is to be made up through the enrollment of new boys, according to Scoutmaster Ehrhardt.

Troop 202's meeting a week ago Friday was marked by the largest attendance of old and new scouts since last winter. Scoutmaster Chard read directions for a new interpatrol contest, and the scouts practiced several stunts for a parents' night to be held soon.

Troop 3 plans to hold an open meeting Dec. 6, and a Christmas play Dec. 13 at their meeting place, Holy Cross Church, Twelfth and Warren streets. Troop Committeeman Herzog gave a short talk at the last meeting. The father of Scout Farina was a guest.

SUBURBAN DISTRICT.

Father Maxwell, deputy commissioner of all Catholic troops in the St. Louis district, visited Kirkwood 3 parents' night last week, and spoke. Refreshments were served.

The scouts of Overland 1 and 2, with parents and friends, gathered for a joint council fire in the woods near Overland last Saturday. Both troops joined in songs, games, stunts and ceremonies. Whipcracking, rope-spinning, towers and scout games preceded a visit from the "Shawnee Indians, who 100 years ago made their hunting grounds wheer the troops had built the fire." A campfire meal, and a short talk by Field Executive Red Leavitt, followed. The troops are planning to establish a permanent council ring where intr-troop problems can be taken up.

Twenty scouts were present at Troop 208's regular meeting a week ago Friday evening. The new handbook was discussed, and plans made for a program of winter activities.

SOUTH DISTRICT.

The charter of Troop 86 has been declared lapsed, in accordance with a new ruling of the national Boy Scout headquarters that this State is automatically reached when a troop fails to re-register within a month after its registration date. Six other South District troops are due to re-register in November—109, 118, 122, 139 and 152—but according to headquarters, no word has been received from them. If no re-registrations are received by Dec. 1, these charters also will lapse.

Troop 73 of the Carondelet Y. M. C. A. dramatized a 14-mile hike, including a campfire and cooking a meal, at a Saturday evening program given by the Y a week ago yesterday.

Troop 74 of the Sherman School had as a guest Capt. Rauschkolb, a veteran of the Spanish-American War, Texas border and World War, at the troop's Armistice day meeting. The Captain entertained the scouts with stories of his experiences, and a rising vote of thanks was given by th troop. The troop held an overnight hike last weekend to the Lions' Den. The wolf patrol is leading an inter-patrol contest with 127 points, followed by the Eagles with 126.

Ten scouts and the scoutmaster of Troop 118 of the Compton Heights Baptist Church hiked to the Lions' Den and established an overnight camp last week-end.

One hundred and forty fathers and sons attended a fathers and sons' banquet given by Troop 155 Nov. 18. A program was given by the scouts, and each patrol competed in educational and handicraft stunts. First prize in the educational stunts was awarded to the Pine Tree patrol for its display of books suitable for scouts. Second place was taken by the Eagles. The Silver Fox patrol won the handicraft prize for a log cabin built in the meeting room. Second was taken by the Moose patrol, with a 20-foot suspension bridge, and third by the Tigers, with a miniature camp. Patrol Leader Hugh spoke on "The Ideal Father," and Dr. D. C. Todd on "The Ideal Boy." Short talks were also made by Field Executive M. D. Shippey and Toastmaster W. H. Tubbs.

Celebrate Golden Wedding.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles F. Klein of 2547 Louisiana avenue celebrated their golden wedding anniversary at their home Thanksgiving day. More than 50 friends and relatives, including seven children and 11 grandchildren, were their guests at a turkey dinner. Both Mr. and Mrs. Klein were born in St. Louis.

GIRL SCOUTS TO GIVE 1000 DOLLS TO POOR

Display of Christmas Gifts Will Precede Distribution to Children.

A thousand dolls of all sizes and varieties will be the Christmas gift of the Girl Scouts of St. Louis to the poor children of the city, at the completion of the third annual Girl Scout doll show, to be held in the music room at Scruggs-Vandervoort- & Barney Wednesday, Thursday, Friday and Saturday. The dolls, all bought and completely equipped by the girls, will be distributed, as in the previous years, through eight social service agencies: the Children's Aid Society, the City Hospital, the Church of the Holy Communion, the Provident Association, the Catholic Women's League, the Colored Day Nursey, the Colored Orphans' Home and the Elias Michael School for Crippled Children.

The dressing and giving of dolls to children for charity was practised by local Girl Scouts several years before the idea of holding a doll show, to inform the public of the girls' work, was conceived and put into practice three years ago. Each year the exhibit has grown until it is now one of the most important functions of the organization, the troops dressing their dolls for months in advance.

The dolls are grouped by the donor troops, each group being graded, and a silver cup awarded for the best troop exhibit. The grading is based on attractiveness, neatness and appropriateness for the dolls' final destination, more numbers counting little. The troops may arrange their exhibit as a tableau if they wish. The winning troop last year, Troop 53, of the Carondelet Presbyterian Church, did this, forming their group into a domestic scene.

Members of the Girl Scout Council, assisted by the girls themselves, will act as hostesses at the exhibit during the entire exhibit this week, and will then, at the close, award the cup. The cup, which was donated by Mrs. Guy Oliver, local commissioner, will be held in the possession of the winning troop until the show next year. Mrs. Frank Mayfield has direct charge of the show.

I Want to Sell State Assignment

I would like to sell a State assignment for one place in each State, exclusive in this, I should say, famous invention, patent pending, title name Heel Plate, made of that aluminum metal; suitable covering will be used; cost $1 or $2 to make. Will be appreciated at $3 or $4. If not I will buy them back after a year's use. Will sell cheap—$500 and 5 per cent. The buyer should make some of his own things to work with. I can supply the specially made emery grinding wheels and sample. Then two or three men can make 15 or 25 a day. Well, say 25 pairs a day would be $7500 in 300 days or a year. By that you can figure how many years it will take to make a set for one out of a hundred people throughout a State. Wake up to the necessity of the thing or serious need, especially the money the business will make.

Doctor at 83 Found People Preferred His Prescription

The basis of treating sickness has not changed since Dr. Caldwell left Medical College in 1875, nor since he placed on the market the laxative prescription he had used in his practice, known to druggists and the public since 1892, as Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin.

Then, the treatment of constipation, biliousness, headaches, mental depression, indigestion, sour stomach and other indispositions that result from constipation was entirely by means of simple vegetable laxatives, herbs and roots. These are still the basis of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, which is a combination of senna and other mild laxative herbs, with pepsin.

Dr. Caldwell did not approve of drastic physics and purges. He did not believe they were good for human beings to put into their system. If grown people want to use them no one can deny them the privilege, but they should never be given to children.

The simpler the remedy for constipation, the safer for the child and for you, and the better for the general health of all. And as you can get results in a mild and safe way by using Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, why take chances with strong drugs? All drug stores have the generous bottles.

Undamaged After 150-Foot Fall

The sturdy construction of a Dodge Graham truck recently saved the life of its driver when the vehicle fell 150 feet into a quarry, declare officials of Tate Motor Co., Inc., Dodge-Graham Brothers' distributer here.

The truck in point, of heavy duty construction type, and owned by Frank J. Fischang, fell 150 feet into a rock quarry at Pennsylvania and Malda streets, Nov. 15, with a damage of only $150. Fischang suffered slight injury.

The damage was mainly broken windows, driving cab and fenders.

CAREFUL REFINISHING AIDS BEAUTY OF CAR

Duco Expert Tells How to Pleasingly Blend Various Combinations.

"Most of us are a little afraid of any colors that are bright and alluring. Perhaps it is just as well for the peace of mind that such is the case. Otherwise, if we ran riot with the shrieking pigments that sometimes seem to fit our mood the world would look like a mad house. And yet, color is one of the greatest delights of our lives, whether we know it or not," says H. Ledyard Towle, director of Duco color advisory service.

"There is no better way to judge the good taste of the average man and woman than by the colors of their automobiles. The colors of the cars when they come from the factory are the result of careful thought and experiment. But they are, of course, only a few of the possibilities. That is why you can almost always tell a car that has been refinished. The owner has not been bound by the colors of the manufacturer.

"It is not generally appreciated that color either lives or is dead with perfect relation to the other colors that are used with it. For instance, black is somber and uninspiring. With vermilion next to it, it suddenly lives and breathes. Combine it, however, with the cold glacial feeling of the various blues and it retires within itself and ceases to delight.

"So, in refinishing your car, it is better to come to the refinishers with a definite idea in the beginning. Choose colors most friendly to you."

Here are some simple facts Towle offers as an aid to working out a color scheme for your car:

1—To make closed cars appear lower and longer when they have a belt moulding, the lightest color should be on the belt and darker colors above and below. Striping should be on the belt above and below mouldings.

2—Coupes have a better silhouette when the dark color is on top and is brought down over the rear deck and top of hood and cowl.

3—Open cars look longer and lower when the darker color is used above the lighter one.

4—Light wheels make a car seem higher off the ground. Dark wheels make it seem lower.

5—A third color used on mouldings will give a distinctive note to the car.

6—Blues, blue greens, certain grays, and black are "cold" colors, and should be striped with orange, gold or yellow to "warm" them up, while the reverse is true when warm colors are used on the body.

MANY VISITORS RECORDED AT OLDSMOBILE FACTORY

A check at the Oldsmobile plant at Lansing, Mich., shows that an average of 115 visitors inspect it each working day, and in the past 10 months 24,236 visitors had been recorded, the factory reports.

Probably due to vacation travel the greatest number of visitors called during summer months with the peak being reached in August.

Guides thoroughly conversant with all manufacturing processes escort visitors through the plant several times daily. These factories are of particular interest, representing as they do the development of the automotive industry. The building now used for driveaway deliveries is part of the original Oldsmobile factory which began manufacturing cars before 1900 and where quantity production methods were first introduced in the industry.

CHINESE OAKLAND SALESMAN

The distinction of being the only Chinese automobile salesman in United States is claimed by Henry W. Ip, a member of the sales force of the Germantown Oakland Co., Philadelphia.

Because of disturbed conditions in the Far East, Ip recently returned from the Orient to Philadelphia where he received his education some years ago. Until he came to Philadelphia, Ip had been Chinese sales manager for Mark L. Moody, Inc., an automobile firm in China.

ST. LOUIS POST-DISPATCH

MUSIC-DRAMA-MOVIES

PART EIGHT — ST. LOUIS, SUNDAY MORNING, NOVEMBER 27, 1927. — PAGES 1—4A.

First Night for St. Louis

Alfred Kennedy's New Play, "Paradise Isle," to be Tried Out by the National Players at the Empress. Clark and McCullough Come to the Shubert in "The Ramblers" While the American Remains Dark for Two Weeks. The Rise of Alexander Carr Who is at the Orpheum.

THE only attraction in town this week at the "Legitimate" theaters is the musical revue, "The Ramblers," with Clark and McCullough as the stars, which comes to the Shubert tonight. For the first time in a good many years, however, St. Louis audiences will have a chance to shout, "Author, author!" when the curtain goes down on "Paradise Isle," which the National Players will present at the Empress Theater. And the author will be present to respond. Alfred Kennedy has written a drama of the Philippine Islands which will be presented here tonight for the first time on any stage. The production of this piece marks a new departure in the policy of the National Players. Heretofore only tried offerings have been presented by the company.

"Paradise Isle" is the romantic love story of an uncultivated young Spanish-American girl who has grown up in the Philippines. Discovering that Ralph Channing, the young American with whom she is in love, has sailed for home with his fiancee, Ana consents to marry Luis Cabrillo, a depraved, pernicious Spaniard. The rest of the play involves the violent contest between Ana's husband and young Channing, who returns just after the wedding fiesta to declare his love for the island girl.

Hazel Whitmore will be seen as the naive Ana, John Lorenz as Ralph Channing, and Millard Vincent will play the part of Luis Cabrillo, a picturesque villain.

OWING to an extension of the Chicago run of George Tyler's comedy, "Tommy," the local engagement of that piece has been delayed until January, leaving the American Theater dark this week. Next week the Market street playhouse was to have Madge Kennedy in "The Springboard," but this attraction closes at the end of the current week, and unless the booking office finds a substitute the American will have two dark weeks in succession.

The next definite attraction announced for the American is Dorothy Stone in "Criss Cross," which opens Monday night, Dec. 12, and plays one week only. Stone's daughter, Dorothy, is featured in the cast.

The fact that Stone is again assisted in this new play by his brother gives additional interest to this announcement. Never was there a happier companionship on the stage than the association of this unique comedian with his attractive young daughter, which began in "Stepping Stones" and is continued in "Criss Cross." In this latest Stone combination Dorothy assumes greater professional obligations than ever, for which her riper experience admirably qualifies her.

Clark and McCullough, in "The Ramblers," will be seen in the role of vagabond fortune-tellers and seers par excellence. The scene is in Tia Juana, where the two meet up with plotting Mexicans, women of the open mesa and beauteous senoritas. A motion picture unit from Hollywood descends upon the scene at the precise moment that Clark and McCullough arrive, and what happens in the farce that ensues makes up the story of "The Ramblers." Others in the cast are Marie Saxon, Georgia O'Ramey, Billy Taylor, Ruth Hortion Spurr, Sam Critcherson, Norma Gallo, Wm. E. Brown-Rita Jacques, Johnny Dale, John Klendon, Elaine Lank, Lloyd Pack, Marjorie Sneller and Harry Permaine.

AFTER having been driven from Broadway into motion pictures by the "inability of New York drama to keep out of bedrooms," as he puts it, Alexander Carr has returned to the speaking stage in vaudeville and will be presented at the Orpheum Theater this week.

Referring to Broadway's tendency toward the risque in drama, Carr says: "There are some plays too unpleasant for even one used in the burlesque school, as I was. Burlesque may be rough, but it does keep within certain boundaries of decency which legitimate drama of the past year or two has swept right by.

"Unwilling to play in morbid sex plays, I accepted an invita-

Behind the Screens Out in Hollywood

HOLLYWOOD, Nov. 26.

SIXTEEN years ago, David Wark Griffith gave the film fans of the land a thriller. Helen Hunt Jackson's "Ramona" was produced by Griffith in one reel. In the cast was Mary Pickford, Mack Sennett, Henry B. Walthall and others.

Miss Pickford portrayed the title role and Sennett was the bold, bad villain who murdered poor "Alessandro," the Indian lover of "Ramona."

Walthall enacted the role of "Don Felipe," who later married the Indian maiden.

Now comes the modernized "Ramona" with the latest methods of photoplay production in the hands of Edwin Carewe, who directed "Resurrection." Carewe is adding about eight reels to Griffith's single reel and he has placed Dolores del Rio in the star and title role. Warner Baxter plays "Alessandro" and Roland Drew will be seen as "Felipe."

It will be interesting to see the strides that the movies have made since Griffith directed Miss Pickford in the Helen Hunt Jackson story 16 years ago. It will be interesting, too, when comparison is made of the second "Ramona" production, made 12 years since, which took the country by storm at that time. This second picture, produced by W. H. Clune, was in about 14 reels.

In the movies, a year means much. Some struggling actors can rise from extra work to feature roles in less time than that. Others whose names mean much today can retire into oblivion in just as short a time.

For the first time in her screen career, by the way, Dolores Del Rio has been assigned to a role of sophistication, in which she wears the costumes of modern Paris and portrays the life of a woman of social standing in the French capital. Her new picture, to be released on Jan. 1 is titled "No Other Woman." Lou Tellegen was the director and the supporting cast includes Don Alvarado, Ben Bard and Paulette Duval.

Heretofore, Miss Del Rio has been familiar in such colorful roles as that of Charmaine in "What Price Glory," a picturesque waif of a Paris pension during the war; and in "Loves of Carmen," as the exotic little courtesan who ruled the heart of a Spanish idol. In "No Other Woman" her talent will be tested in another way.

During the year Miss Del Rio will have the leading parts in two other Fox productions, "Jungle Rose," a story of the Amazonian jungle, and "The Red Dancer of Moscow," from a story recently acquired especially for her.

Five stars are busy at the Warner studio where their newest stories are in production. They are Monte Blue, May McAvoy, Dolores Costello, Rin-Tin-Tin and Irene Rich.

Howard Bretherton is directing Monte Blue in "Across the Atlantic." May McAvoy's next is "The Little Snob," directed by John Adolfi. The ballroom scene in "Glorious Betsy," starring Dolores Costello, was shot last week under the direction of Alan Crosland. Rin-Tin-Tin and Director Ross Lederman are expected back soon from a location trip to Riverside, Cal., where they have been shooting "A Race for Life." As for Miss Rich, she worked this week in preliminary scenes for her newest picture, "Powder My Back," which will be a comedy drama.

"The Nightstick" will be George Bancroft's second starring vehicle for Paramount. The story, of the same type as "Underworld," in which the former heavy made his bid for stellar ranking, is to be directed by Josef von Sternberg, who directed the former film. Clive Brook and Evelyn Brent, also boosted by virtue of their work in "Underworld," will be in the supporting cast.

Bancroft, recently in New York, begins work soon on "Honky Tonk," a story of an oil man who globe trots in and out of adventure. Fred Kohler will play the role of a villain. Bancroft having graduated from such roles.

Severe burns received last week by Ford Sterling, when the furnace in his home exploded as he was lighting it, will prevent him from playing the role of Mr. Jordan, sporting goods store proprietor, in Richard Dix's new starring picture, "The Traveling Salesman." The vacancy left in the cast of the picture has not yet been filled. Tests will be made at once of several actors under consideration by Director Malcolm St. Clair.

Production of the picture will continue without interruption with Dix, Thelma Todd, Philip Strange, Maude Turner Gordon, Myrtle Stedman, Wade Boteler, Claude King, Lige Conley, Tom Maguire and E. H. Calvert playing in scenes in which the character Sterling was to play does not appear.

In a fortnight, actual filming of "Lilac Time," Colleen Moore's next production, will be started. Three months have been devoted to preparation for the film. An extended shooting schedule and a large number of sets and players are called for, and the picture will be one of the most elaborate of Miss Moore's career. The action is laid behind the lines in wartime France. The star will portray the character of a little French girl, the chief male role being that of a young British soldier. The search for an

Grand Central Open Dec. 24

How Louis Wolheim and Mary Astor Found Their Way to the Screen—How the Extras Look For Work in Hollywood—Over 40,000 People Engaged in Making Pictures Out on the Coast—The Troubles of Mr. Fairbanks.

By NIE.

PLANS are all made now for the reopening of the Grand Central Theater on Saturday, Dec. 24. The attraction, as already told in these columns, will be Al Jolson in the picture "The Jazz Singer" in conjunction with the Vitaphone and some five acts of "Vitaphone Vaudeville"—that is some well-known stage stars shown on the screen while the vitaphone arrangement sings their songs or plays their musical instruments or tells their jokes as the case may be.

The vitaphone form of entertainment, controlled by the Warner Brothers, hardly got a fair test when it was tried out at the Capitol Theater downtown. There everything was against it, including the raised admission charges, but with a 50 cent scale at the Grand Central better times are looked for. If it should fail to attract the customers this time it is safe to say that another season will find the once immensely popular Grand Central—a veritable gold mine in its day—among the missing. As a matter of fact when the new Fox house is completed on Grand avenue the theater will probably go into the discard anyway for that section of the city is greatly overseated now. The Missouri and St. Louis are of course fixtures and if any house must go it can be only the Grand Central. There is always the possibility however, that some one may take it over for dramatic productions but that idea is so remote that win or lose, the Vitaphone will likely see the end of the theater.

LOUIS WOLHEIM, who is on view in the picture, "Two Arabian Knights," down at Loew's this week, is one of the most colorful personalities of stage and screen.

Known chiefly as the hard-boiled Captain Flagg of "What Price Glory?" a role he created, and as the title character in "The Hairy Ape," it is hard to realize that Wolheim was once a college professor.

However, before becoming an actor, Wolheim was an instructor of mathematics at Cornell, where he graduated in 1905, and where he distinguished himself in football as a fullback.

Off-screen and off-stage, Wolheim is one of the most polished gentlemen in the profession of histrionics. He is huge, physically powerful, and a pugnacious-looking individual, but behind his gruff exterior is a wealth of culture.

In "Two Arabian Knights," his latest film experience, Wolheim runs true to popular impression, enacting the role of a blustering, blasphemous top sergeant. Despite his background of education and culture, he has the physical appearance and the knack to make his characterizations ring true.

Wolheim was first lured to the stage by Lionel Barrymore, who impressed with the distinctive character of the college man, persuaded him to take a part in his then current stage offering, "The Jest."

Later came the spectacular title role in "The Hairy Ape," a performance which brought him fame. In "What Price Glory?" as the original Captain Flagg, he repeated his success.

MARY ASTOR, who is featured with William Boyd and Wolheim in "Two Arabian Knights," did her first screen work at the age of 14. Since then she has worked before the camera almost continuously, climbing to the position she now holds, fortified with a background of sound experience and achievement, including leading roles opposite Douglas Fairbanks and John Barrymore.

Mary was born in Quincy, Ill., where her father was a teacher of languages in the High School. When she was 6 years of age, her parents moved to a small town on the outskirts of Quincy and for four more years she attended a little, one-room country school. During the war, the Astors moved to Chicago, where her father became a teacher in the schools and her mother taught drama and English literature in the Loring School for Girls at Kenwood.

Mrs. Astor had high hopes for a stage career for her daughter and placed Mary in this school. When Mary was 14, they went to New York.

At the Charles Albin Studio, this photographer declared Mary

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

-:-

By O. O. McIntyre

NEW YORK, Nov. 26.

PAUL POIRET, a bewiskered, nervous Frenchman, has been visiting New York. He is an adroit publicity getter and has created a general impression he is the leading dressmaker of Paris who sets the fashion pace.

Regular visitors to Paris know this is not so by a long shot, although his establishment has distinction. His place on the Rond Pont is a baroque salon—a nightmare of color and fantastic designing. He has given parties that outdid Count Boni de Castellane in the merry days, when he was dipping into poor Anna Gould's millions with an astounding lavishness.

Poiret has the royal manner among his employes, and over the door of his private office hangs the warning:

Stop and Think
Ask Yourself Three Times
If You Should Disturb Him.

The French regard him with the amused tolerance with which we regard one of those faddists who has an eye continually on the first page.

The opera is now running full blast. The value of a Metropolitan box has been fixed at $150,000 by the Tax Commissioner. And it offers frequently the spectacle of a box-holder nodding through an entire performance.

The New Yorker prints this letter as having been actually received by a Gotham magazine editor:

"Dear sir: Re you want beautiful poetry to be done at home, my daughter is experienced writing poetry. She has wrote one or more poems on 275 different subjects in the past 20 months. Kindly state number of poems required per week, subjects and price paid. Awaiting your order by return mail, etc. Yours truly——"

Indiana has been hit by political corruption and scandal. No State has such a picturesque past. It has furnished more distinguished writers than any other two states. And yet I know a man who, when he travels to other cities from Indianapolis, now registers from Louisville, Ky. Big men in high places have betrayed trust after trust. Of course, typical Hoosier courage will wipe out the stigma and Indiana will again shortly take her place as one of our foremost states. But it should be a warning to other states that harbor rascals in public office.

John Wilson Townsend of Graceland, Ky., has prepared a privately circulated edition of the life of James Lane Allen, dedicated to Irvin Cobb. Mr. Allen knew the blue grass country of Kentucky as O. Henry knew New York and Dickens London. He was never acclaimed by the mob. He was loved and admired chiefly by the lovers of pure and beautiful prose. He was the most superb of our American essayists. Mr. Townsend, who was his close friend, has done the volume justice. He has brought out the bas relief the high qualities of this lovable gentleman.

One of the American puzzles is the continued poor salaries paid preachers. I sometimes think the ministers are imposed upon because of their meekness. Few of them, save in the larger cities, are able to raise their families in comfort. Hack drivers, ditch diggers and other unskilled artisans continue to receive higher wages, but the pay of the preacher remains unchanged. It seems to me they show entirely too much humility. If my memory of the Bible is correct a certain magistrate left record that the rebuke of the Master was often fearful. He had no patience with those who imposed on others. Preachers need a little of this spirit. They have been outraged long enough. They perform a definite and excellent service in this world and they should have the means to care for themselves and families in at least ordinary comfort.

And continuing the sour mood, we come to young Marjorie Oelrichs who seems keen on being identified with the 400. Miss Oelrichs is the type one sees in the supper clubs with a look-at-me self consciousness, smoking innumerable cigarettes. She has written an article saying she prefers Europeans for husbands to Americans. Only her years excuse her. The worst we can wish her is the hope she lands a Duke.

Jay E. House, who is one of the best paragraphers in America, potshots a smart alec New York writer for sneering at Atchison, Kan. As a totally unnecessary defender of the outland, I have frequently been offered the suggestion that if

Oberhoffer to Conduct Symphony for Last Time In "Pop" Concert Today

No Programs Scheduled for This Week But Van Hoogestraten Will Take Over Orchestra on December 9.

A program exclusively of excerpts from Wagnerian opera will bring the guest conductorship of Emil Oberhoffer to a close when the St. Louis Symphony Orchestra at the Odeon at 3:15 p. m. today presents its Sunday Popular Concert. There is to be no soloist—only the singing of Richard Wagner.

From Wagnerian opera Mr. Oberhoffer has chosen significant excerpts, notable not only for their melody, but for their power of musical description. The "Lohengrin" wedding music which opens the concert will be followed by the overture to "The Flying Dutchman" which paints the mood of the sea, as perhaps no other artist has painted it. Follows the prelude to the first act of "Lohengrin" with its shimmering music of the Holy Grail. After that the excerpt from "The Rheingold" in which, across their rainbow bridge, the old Norse gods enter into their citadel of Valhalla. Comes then "The Ride of the Valkyrie," those daughters of the gods who on winged steeds ride out the storm, from mountain peak to mountain peak, bearing at their saddlebows the bodies of heroes, who, having met death in battle are taken to Valhalla, there to spend Eternity in revelry. The prelude and love-death, as it is called, from "Tristan and Isolde," is one of the greatest love-songs ever written. The sensuous swooning mood of the love of Tristan and Isolde is celebrated in the prelude and followed by Isolde's magnificent paeon to that love she sings over the corpse of Tristan while death comes also to her.

The concert closes with the "Tannhauser" overture which in its music tells the story of the minstrel knight, tempted to the revelry of Venusburg, of his journey to Rome to obtain forgiveness, of the Pope's refusal to absolve him and of his final redemption by the prayers of Elizabeth who loves him. In it is heard the famous "Pilgrim's March."

The detailed program is:

Introduction to Act III and Bridal Chorus from "Lohengrin" (including the Wedding March).
Overture to "The Flying Dutchman."
Prelude to Act I of "Lohengrin."
Entrance of the Gods into Valhalla from "The Rheingold."
The Ride of the Valkyrie.
Prelude and Love-Death from "Tristan and Isolde."
Overture to "Tannhauser."

There are no regular Symphony concerts this week, the next pair being Dec. 9 and 10, when William van Hoogestraten, the brilliant young conductor of the Portland (Ore.) Symphony Orchestra, and whose appearances as guest conductor in New York in the last few years have been sensational successes, will direct the orchestra.

Bernardino Molinari, artistic director of the famous Augusteo concerts at Rome, and guest conductor for the mid-year period of the St. Louis Symphony Orchestra's current season, following Van Hoogestraten's visit, will present many novelties during the course of his five concerts here, according to the programs which Manager William E. Walter of the society has just received from Rome.

Molinari comes to America especially to conduct these concerts—programs designed to reveal the beauties of Italian symphonic music. After his engagement here is concluded he will go by courtesy of the St. Louis Orchestra to New York, where he will serve as guest-conductor for the New York Philharmonic.

Molinari is not alone noted throughout Europe and South America as a conductor, but as a composer and transcriber, and several of the works to be presented are transcriptions for modern orchestra which he has made from some of the gems of antique music. An ardent student, his researches into the work of Corelli, Vivaldi, Geminiani and other early composers have uncovered exquisite, if heretofore forgotten, numbers. His five regular programs will intersperse these with modern Italian symphonic music and some of those operatic gems which inevitably music lovers associate with Italian genius. On the other hand, the music of Germany, France and Russia will be represented.

THE GRAND CENTRAL OPENING NOW SET FOR CHRISTMAS EVE

Astor was the most beautiful girl he had ever seen and suggested that she would have a future in pictures. She played in some two reelers, then in "The Beggar Maid."

Thus launched, many other good roles followed and ultimately she was chosen to play opposite Douglas Fairbanks in "Don Q." Recently, she has played opposite John Barrymore, Ben Lyon and Lloyd Hughes. One of her latest pictures before taking part in "Two Arabian Knights," was "The Rough Riders."

Not all screen actors and actresses have had the same fortune as Miss Astor and Wolheim by any means. Only one girl, in the last six months, has averaged as much as five days' employment a week as an "extra" in motion pictures in Hollywood, according to statistics from the Central Casting Corporation.

Eight girls averaged four days a week, and 21 average as much as three days a week during the six months. This is out of a total registration of more than 6000 women and girls and is taken as proof that making a living as an "extra" in Hollywood is almost out of the question.

The Central Casting Corporation has on record more than 18,000 extras who must divide the 700 or 800 jobs open a day. In the six months just past, 20 men averaged four days a week, and 36 averaged three days a week. The average daily wage of an "extra" is $8.32, so that even the busiest receive in a week about $41.

Ninety-eight per cent of all those who work fairly regularly, it is revealed, were "dress extras" or preferred status, that is, they had exceptional good wardrobes.

AND while on the subject of figures, let it be said that a colony of specialists, 42,546 in number, produced 82 per cent of the world's motion pictures last year, thereby keeping the eighth greatest industry centered in the Western States of America. Nowhere is there to be found a more highly trained group of people than these 42,546, each having their part to play in making entertainment for the far and near-flung corners of the globe.

The worker-population of the film colony in Hollywood has just been computed. The results of this survey discloses that there are nine major and 45 minor studios producing pictures in southern California, these studios employing technical and office workers to the number of approximately 13,550.

The larger studios are those of Paramount, First National, Warner Brothers, Producers Distributors Corporation, Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer, Fox, Universal, United Artists and Film Booking Offices of America. The smaller studios include those of Christie, Sennett, Educational, Columbia, Tiffany, Tec Art and many other "comedy lots" and independents.

DOUGLAS FAIRBANKS is one of those producers of pictures who has a way of getting himself into technical difficulties, from which there appears, at the moment, no way of escape. It need only be mentioned that when he came to film "The Thief of Bagdad" he had not taken into account the difficulties of having a flying carpet seemingly dash through the air over the housetops. He thought he would be able, in some easy way, to produce the illusion of having a carpet fly, with people riding on it. But when he came to the problem there was no solution. So, what did Fairbanks do? Maybe what anybody else, endowed with sufficient audacity, would do. He discarded entirely the idea of an illusion and actually made the carpet fly. And to do that cost the trifling sum of $90,000.

This feat was accomplished by having a specially built crane which revolved at great height over the housetops and held up the flying carpet and its passengers. There was no other way out of the difficulty, and it proved practical and worth while, as may be recalled. Other of the Fairbanks photoplays evolved problems equally distracting. And, as may be imagined, his new picture, "The Gaucho," brought forth, on account of its singular locale, many headaches. One of these was caused by the fact that, as is well known, the cattle of the Argentine of times agone were of the long-horned variety. To have at close view a bunch of horrless cattle would have been disastrous. So Fairbanks sent a cattle man down into Mexico who purchased 600 longhorns, and the same were shipped to the Pickford-Fairbanks studio, Hollywood. This herd, now that the picture is completed, is at the Fairbanks ranch, lately purchased, near San Diego.

Then came the bolas, a missile used by the Gaucho of the Argentine. To get one was easy, but to use it skillfully was another matter. The cables got busy, and along came to Hollywood one Nicholas Milanesio, right off the pampas, and one of the most expert bolas throwers of South America. Still another sticker finally presented itself in finding a way to shoot the shrine city around which all the whizzing trouble occurs in the picture. There had been built a street 800 feet in length, at the far end of which the shrine is located. Now to get a lens that would picture such a street in a way that all parts of it, down to the pilgrims entering the shrine at the end, was another kettle of fish.

It was something that had to be done; a way must be found to do it. Building a tower from which to shoot this scene would not suffice because of the difficulty of getting men and materials to the top, so Fairbanks decided to utilize the roof of his biggest studio structure. He put the mechanics to work on the construction of stairways to the roof—substantial ones that would support actually the weight of many men. The result of these experiments is most astonishing; in a single shot one sees an entire Andean village, and in such a manner that it is possible to identify the buildings that play so important a part in the closer views that follow.

Facing the Music

IN the absence of a concert by the Symphony Orchestra, the Flonzaley String Quartet will supply the ensemble string music of the week at Sheldon Auditorium, 3648 Washington avenue, Thursday evening. This organization has been heard here almost every season for the past 25 years. Thursday evening's program introduces a novelty in Alfred Pochon's "Indian Suite" for string quartet. This introduces the Weapon Song-Love Song, Song of Mourning, and Song of the Dancing Deer from the Teton Sioux, Dakota, Wabanaki and Chippewa tribes. Mr. Pochon has held to the peculiar rythms of the Indians, introducing nothing that would change the color and garb of their simple and original melodies as "to surround them with the complicated harmony of the white race," says Mr. Pochon, "would be to deprive the Indian of his colorful costume and give him a ready-made suit to wear in exchange." In addition to Pochon's Indian Suite will be heard Beethoven's Quartet in M major Op. 18 No. 5, and Dolmanyi's Quartet in D flat major, Op. 15.

"The Stars and Stripes Forever—the World Over," an arabesque on John Philip Sousa's "Stars and Stripes Forever," was accepted by Sousa for use in his band, when he was in St. Louis last week. Kirk Frederick, Loew's State's musical director, developed the arabesque. His orchestration includes the musical spirit of such countries as Egypt, Russia, Spain and Scotland, as well as the United States.

The soloists for the "Messiah" concert have been selected as follows: Mrs. Karl Kimmel, soprano, and Emma Hart, contralto, of this city, and Eugene Dressler, prominent tenor, and Edward Davies, baritone, both of Chicago.

The personnel of the chorus is largely that of the past season, numbering about 170 members gathered from the Lutheran church-choirs of this city and the suburbs.

The personnel of the chorus is largely that of the past season, numbering about 160 members gathered from the Lutheran church choirs of this city and the suburbs.

It is the aim of Mr. Heyne and the society, if possible, to present the "Messiah" to the St. Louis public at least once every year during the Christmas season.

Paul Kochanski, Polish violinist, will be heard here for the first time when the Civic Music League presents him for the third of its concert series of the season at the Odeon on Tuesday evening, Dec. 6. Kochanski started his studies as a child under his father and later With Cesar Thomson in Brussels. He taught for a number of years in Warsaw and in Petrograd, where he succeeded Leopold Auer and has played with the leading orchestras of Europe and America being heard also all over Europe as recital artist and in many of the leading cities of America. Kochanski's introduction on the Civic Music League's course is in conformity with the league's principle of mingling the new with artists who have appeared in St. Louis on previous occasions.

A benefit tea and musicale will be given at the Congress Hotel the afternoon of December 1 to raise funds for the Eighth District Missouri Federation of Music Clubs so that the federation objects may be fulfilled through the creation of a scholarship loan fund and the awarding of cash prizes to the winners of young artist and junior contests. An extensive program will be presented by federated clubs; among contributing members will be the Bel Canto Choral Club, Bolinger Club; Ladies' Friday Musical, Mel Harmonic Club, Morning Etude, Musical Research Club and the Piano Teachers' Round Table, and Jessie L. Gaynor Choral Club.

REAL FIRST NIGHT WITH A NEW PLAY AT EMPRESS THEATER

tion to go to Hollywood and play in some pictures. Appreciating the fact that a period of rottenness in the theater is never long to endure, I stayed in the West for two years; and I return to find the theatrical atmosphere much clearer and cleaner than when I departed.

While most present-day theatergoers think of "Potash and Perlmutter" when they see or hear the name of Alexander Carr, there are many old-timers who associate the comedian more with the production that was his first big success—"Louisiana Lou"—a musical show, than with Montague Glass' "cloak and suit" plays.

These old-timers recall vividly what a hit Carr was in that show and his song, "Rose of the Ghetto," while co-starring with Sophie Tucker. They are loath to admit that the comedian was any greater as "Mawruss" Perlmutter than he was in the role he enacted in "Louisiana Lou."

Although brought up in Winnipeg, Canada, in a serious, workaday atmosphere, with a rabbi father, Carr early evinced a desire to become an entertainer, and, when a circus came to town while he was still only 12 years old, he ran away from home and became a clown.

A year or so of clowning was enough, and he next tried performing in a medicine show, from which he derived the munificent income of $6 a week.

A stock company was next and here young Carr learned much of what he knows about dramatic art. He played all kinds of parts, comic and tragic, and played them under the most trying conditions—in schoolhouses, town halls and courthouses, with tallow dips and kerosene lamps for illumination.

New York Day By Day

I do not like New York there is a train leaving every other minute. I could reply that in the last two years I have spent eight months here.

No one can successfully deny the wonders and fascination of the metropolis. I, for one, love it. But I cannot be convinced it is the one and only pleasant spot. I do not know Atchison, Kan., but I know one of the clearest thinkers, save on a few topics, lives there—E. W. Howe. I do, however, know many other Atchisons, and I can show you as much culture, and certainly more sanity, within their limits, than you will find on Park avenue. And it seems unnecessary to remark that the people who made New York what it is today came from the Atchisons.

Writers who sing praise of smaller towns are generally accused by New York critics of "playing to the Babbits" in the hope of financial gain. When as a matter of fact a contemptuous attitude toward the small town brings far greater royalties than praise. Sinclair Lewis is one of many to grow rich and famous panning Main Street and its people. Mr. Mencken and George Jean Nathan figuratively thumb their noses in the same manner.

"Elijah" To Be Sung Tuesday At Coliseum

MENDELSSOHN'S majestic oratorio "Elijah," clothed in the trappings of grand opera and sung by one of the largest choruses ever heard in St. Louis will be given Tuesday and Wednesday nights at the Coliseum under auspices of the Pageant Drama and Choral Association.

William Dodd Chenery's dramatic group of 300 young men and women in Oriental costume will enact the story of the oratorio in pantomime upon a set stage, while three choruses will intone the story music and the antiphonal passages of the work.

The main body of the singing will be done by a chorus organized under the baton of Frederick Fischer of members of various church choirs and supplemented by the School Teachers' Chorus, the City Club Chorus, the Washington University Men's Glee Club and the Hosmer Hall Girls' Glee Club.

A chorus of 1000 grade school children, organized by Eugene M. Hahnel, will sing the lovely "Lift Thine Eyes" chorus and an additional group of pupils from the high schools will sing "Cast Thy Burden Upon the Lord," during the scene on Mount Carmel in which Elijah calls down fire from heaven to kindle his altar. An elaborate stage presentation is promised for this and the other scenes.

The full Symphony Orchestra will execute the instrumental score.

Behind the Screens

actor to portray the masculine lead is still in progress and the choice is said to lie between three popular screen leading men.

Charlie Murray has just been appointed a member of the advisory board of the Bank of Italy, Hollywood branch.

Louis Wolheim, generally recognized as the "hardest-boiled" type on screen or stage, several years ago got his first big chance with John and Lionel Barrymore in the New York footlights success, "The Jest." Wolheim had been a varsity football player and later an instructor in mathematics at Cornell University. Now Wolheim's face is familiar to millions, as a result of his screen performances and his stage starring roles in "What Price Glory" and "The Hairy Ape." John Barrymore again gives Wolheim another big chance, probably the most important in his screen career, in "Tempest," which is being filmed at the United Artists studio under Siav Tourjansky's direction.

Emil Jannings and his company making "The Last Command," a picture of the Russian revolution, are working "night shifts" these days.

In order to get atmospheric scenes after twilight, Joseph von Sternberg, who is directing, has called the company for seven o'clock each night. Hundreds of extras, dressed in the costumes of Cossacks, Red soldiers and peasants, form the mobs for the sequence devoted to some of the street fighting in Moscow. Fritz Feld, who played the Piper in "The Miracle," has been added to the cast which includes William Powell and Evelyn Brent.

Esther Ralston began work today on her next starring vehicle, as yet untitled. The story deals with "the poor little rich girls of the Ritz."

Lane Chandler has the lead opposite the star and Johnnie Morris, who played an important character bit in "The Street of Sin" with Emil Jannings, is featured.

Second Thoughts on First Nights

By ALEXANDER WOOLLCOTT.

NEW YORK, Nov. 26.

TWO major events in the past fortnight on the Rialto have brought back faint, complicated memories of the early months of 1915 when Harley Granville Barker—H. Granville Barker to you—was scrumptiously invited to America as the most gifted director in sight in the English-speaking theater to give a repertory season at Wallack's. For (after a magnificent start with "Androcles and the Lion" and the unforgettable "Man Who Married a Dumb Wife") he, too, presented "A Midsummer Night's Dream"—charmingly, I thought, although his notion of differentiating the fairies from the mortals in that Elizabethan frolic by gilding them from head to toe did lead a more recalcitrant reviewer to credit the costumes to the American Radiator Co. And Barker, too, presented "The Doctor's Dilemma," that absorbing and provocative Shaw comedy which, under his baton, had its first American performance that spring a dozen years ago.

Well, Wallack's Theater was long ago razed to the ground and nothing remains of it save its name implausibly affixed to quite another playhouse further uptown—that and a small, square chunk of flooring mailed, they say, by some old meanie to a celebrated actor, with a note explaining that here at last was what this actor had always wanted all to himself, the center of the stage.

Wallack's, then, is vanished from the scene and Mr. Barker himself has dwindled and dried up into a gentleman of leisure.

But "A Midsummer Night's Dream" and "The Doctor's Dilemma" are both survived and, as though now thoroughly rested after their bouts with Granville Barker, have both returned to us magnificently within the past ten days.

THE "DREAM," this time, is the opening bill of the Reinhardt season at the Century—an incomparably beautiful performance which addresses itself with such eloquence to so many senses that you hardly notice the fact that its torrents of lyrical loveliness have been replaced by German speech. By Monday of this week, the queue at the Century's box office was an endless life from dawn to dusk, and in that queue the proportion of Germans was so negligible as to set you musing. Reinhardt is seemingly being welcomed heartily by a city where, less than ten short years ago, one was obliged to have Liberty measles, if any. And the once dreaded devotion of the German-Americans to the things of their fatherland seems now to have been mildly exaggerated.

"THE DOCTOR'S DILEMMA"—thanks to the increasing resourcefulness of the Theater Guild—is now so satisfactorily embodied that at last its name can come down from that list of plays I once drew up in the prospectus for a purely visionary playhouse to be called the Theater of the Second Chance. It was to be dedicated to the revival of certain good plays each of which, for one perverse reason or another, had never had a really fair opportunity to find its audience in this city.

The list included, as I recall it now, such plays as Barrie's surpassing "Mary Rose," Lord Dunsany's "Gods of the Mountain," Brieux's "Les Hannetone" (beautifully acted here, but preposterously managed), Zoe Akins' brilliant "Texas Nightingale," Sheldon's "Garden of Paradise" (which was squeezed to death under an Everest of scenery), Sean O'Casey's "Juno and the Paycock" and, of course, "The Doctor's Dilemma." The Shaw play can now be hauled down as already adequately attended to. And, from all [illegible] shall see equally handsome [illegible] made to "Juno and the Pay[illegible] whe: the Irish Players [illegible] way next month at the [illegible]

New Goitre Remedy

See... my goitre 's gone!

"Operation? No! I treated it myself, at home. The swelling receded at once; in a short time there wasn't a sign of the ugly old thing! This awful nervousness and the stifled feeling are gone, too. I'm getting strong again, and doctor says there isn't a trace of goitre now. Oh, but I'm happy and full of pep—look like a new person, don't I?"

What joy and happiness this scientifically successful new medical treatment is bringing to goitre sufferers! Everywhere, hope is expressed that here at last is the one treatment for every type and degree of this dread disease. It's so simple and safe that anyone may successfully use it at home. Its results are immediate and lasting, as countless such radiant testimonies prove.

This book will gladly be sent, free, without obligation of any kind, to anyone interested in this increasingly vital subject. It may come in time to save you from the consequences of this horrible affliction. Its advice followed will relieve suffering from all kinds of goitre; will entirely remove most of them.

Mrs. Waite, New Brighton, writes: "That deadly indigestion and gastritis, caused by constipation made my color go black. I was frightened to death, and I feel your laxative saved my life. I take them every night now for precaution, and do not fear an attack of constipation poisoning any more."

THUMB-BOX EXHIBIT WILL OPEN ON DEC. 7

St. Louis Art League Moves Show Downtown, to 325 Locust Street.

The St. Louis Art League this year will hold its Thirteenth Annual Thumb-box Exhibition downtown, on the sixth floor of the Moneta Building, 325 Locust street. The show opens Dec. 7 and will remain on exhibition indefinitely.

Placing the exhibition in a downtown office building, according to the Exhibitions Committee of the League, follows the precedent set in hanging the "Scenic Charm of Missouri" show in the Republic Bank Building. It is the intention of the League, through the Thumb-box show, to inaugurate a new downtown headquarters for St. Louis art and artists.

Six first prizes of $50, six second prizes of $25, and additional purchase prizes are offered in the six exhibit classifications.

"The scope of the exhibition covers 'Thumb-box sketches,' small pictures, small sculpture and handicraft, with no restriction as to media," says the announcement. "All artists living within 50 miles of the St. Louis courthouse, and also all members of the Art League away from the city, are eligible to submit works to the Jury of Selection, which body will be elected by postcard ballot by prospective exhibitors.

"The jury of awards will be chosen by the exhibitors and the prizes will be distributed at a reception. A maximum size limit of 238 square inches, inside the frame, equal to the familiar 14x17 canvas, is set for pictures. Sculpture may be up to 17 inches high. Entry blanks, printed announcements and full details may be obtained from the Exhibitions Committee.

"The Art League hopes to make the present exhibition an outstanding success through co-operation of all art-loving St. Louis," the announcement adds, "and all interested in arranging for special views of the collection or in otherwise co-operating, are earnestly requested to communicate with the Exhibitions Committee at 325 Locust street, or by telephone, GArfield 6276.

"An intensive campaign will be made to find homes for meritorious St. Louis art."

LECTURES AT ART MUSEUM

Arthur U. Pope to Speak Tuesday on Oriental Rugs.

Arthur Upham Pope, an authority on Oriental art, will lecture on "Oriental Rugs in the James F. Ballard Collection" next Tuesday at 2:15 at the Art Museum in Forest Park. A lecture on "The New Louvre and the New Luxembourg" will be given at the same hour on Dec. 10 by Abbe Ernest Dimnet.

Besides the ectures, two demonstrations for art processes are to be given, the first, on "How Etchings Are Made," at 3:30 p. m. Monday, by Gustav F. Goetsch of the St. Louis School of Fine Arts and the Chicago Society of Etchers, and the second, "How Woodcarvings Are Made," to be given in the Monday children's hour by Mrs. Mary Evans Hallock, an art supervisor in the public schools. All the lectures are free to the public.

CHIPPENDALE NOW NIGHT CLUB

Famous London Cabinetmaker's Shop to House Cabaret.

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, Nov. 26.—The ghost of Thomas Chippendale, of furniture fame, will hear a lot of jazz in the near future if it haunts the former work shop where the old wood worker carved his way to fame. Chippendale's former work shop is being converted into a night club.

Where England's most famous cabinet designer, beginning in 1753, turned out his masterpieces, all the partitions are being torn down. History fairly oozes from every crack in Chippendale's workshop at No. 60 St. Martin's Lane, in the heart of London's night life district, but this means nothing to the plasterer and the hardwood floor worker laboring overtime to bring the quarters up-to-date.

Dr. C. C. Selecman to Speak.

Dr. Charles C. Selecman, president of Southern Methodist University, Dallas, Tex., will speak at the November meeting of the Ministerial Alliance of Greater St. Louis at 10:30 a. m., tomorrow, at Pilgrim Congregational Church, Union boulevard and Kensington avenue. Dr. Selecman will talk on the Conference on Faith and Order at Lausanne, Switzerland, and conditions in the Near East. Dr. Selecman at one time did social service work in St. Louis.

PLANS FOR HOTEL AT EIGHTH AND MARKET DISCLOSED

Skyscraper Projected by Midland Realty Co., Which Also Operates Eighth Street Garage Co.

WALDHEIM INCREASES DOWNTOWN HOLDING

Acquires 99-Year Lease on Building at Northwest Corner of Sixth and St. Charles Streets.

By Berry Moore.

A skyscraper hotel is projected for the northeast corner of Eighth and Market streets to replace the one-story garage now occupying the site. The building enterprise is being promoted by George W. Hunter of the Midland Real Estate Co., which has a 99-year lease of the site, and which operates the Eighth Street Garage Co. While the height of the proposed building has not been disclosed, it is understood that a very lofty structure is contemplated.

The site has a frontage of 70 feet on Market, with a depth of 165 feet on Eighth. The 99-year lease was acquired by the Midland company several years ago on a basis that did not anticipate the appreciable advance in ground values in that part of the city, especially Market street, under the stimulus of the widening project for that thoroughfare.

The lease provides for the improvement of the site on a commensurate scale within a designated period. The annual rentals to be paid under the provisions of the lease could not be ascertained.

American Hotel to Expand.

A high standard was set for buildings on Market street by the Southern Realty & Financial Co., of which Charles Cella is president, with the erection at the northeast corner of Seventh and Market streets of the 12-story American Hotel and theater.

With plans for the erection of an addition to the American Hotel building, the Southern Realty & Financial Co. purchased several years ago the northwest corner of Sixth and Market streets, comprising a quarter of block adjoining on the east, thus obtaining control of the entire Market street frontage of this block.

The northwest corner of Sixth and St. Charles streets, improved with a five-story building, has been acquired by the Karon Realty Co., recently incorporated by Aaron Waldheim, president of the May Stern Co., as was told in yesterday's Post-Dispatch. The site has 70 feet on Sixth street and 60 feet on St. Charles street.

The lease is subject to a prior lease with 12 years to run, held by O. Sessenbrenner Mercantile Co., which occupies the building. The property is owned by the Peter A. O'Neil estate, which was represented by the Mercantile Trust Co. as executor.

$30,000 a Year Rentals.

An annual rental of $30,000 is provided for under the Waldheim lease. Under the provisions of the lease, taxes and other carrying charges are to be paid by the Karon company.

The southwestern corner of Sixth and St. Charles streets is occupied by the new building of the McCrory Chain Stores Corporation, which erected the structure. McCrory corporation has a 9-year lease of the site. Annual net rentals of $110,000, or 4 per cent on a valuation of $2,750,000, are prescribed by the lease which was made several years ago.

Two theaters, the Columbia and the Strand, formerly occupied the ground, which was purchased five years ago by Charles J. Cella and Frank R. Tate, proprietors of the theaters, for $455,000. The increase in the ground values was one of the most remarkable in the record of downtown St. Louis. Cella and Tate shared in the surprise caused by the great advance in the value of their holding.

The present McCrory building has four stories, but foundations were laid to support a building of 20 stories or more.

Waldheim several years ago purchased the Equitable Building and site at the northwest corner of Sixth and Locust streets. Within the last two years a number of other important downtown holdings also have been acquired by him. He recently purchased the property at 1003 Locust street through the Mercantile Trust Co.

Construction is being rushed on the new 15-story Robert E. Lee Hotel at the northwest corner of Eighteenth and Pine streets. The estimated cost of the improvement is $30[illegible],000.

The building has been leased for 25 years to Percy Tyrrell, who operates a chain of hotels known as the Robert E. Lee hotels. They are located at Laredo, Tex.; San Antonio, Tex., and Kansas City, Mo.

Construction is being rushed on the new 15-story Robert E. Lee hotel at the northwest corner of Eighteenth and Pine streets. The estimated cost of the improvement is $900,000.

The building has been leased for 25 years to Percy Tyrrell, who operates a chain of hotels known as the Robert E. Lee hotels. They are located at Laredo, Tex.; San Antonio, Tex., and Kansas City, Mo.

The St. Louis hotel will contain 220 rooms each with bath. It is being financed by the Real Estate Mortgage Trust Co. The site has 109 feet on Eighteenth street by 100 feet on Pine.

The structure will be an adapted Roman style brick, with terra cotta trim. The lobby will be designed with patterned terrazo floors, marble base, textured plaster walls and ornamental plaster cornices and decorations. It will have wood wainscoting. There will be three high speed elevators.

Excavating is expected to be started by Jan. 1 for the 22-story Savoy Plaza Hotel at the northwest corner of Twelfth boulevard and Pine street.

$600 A FOOT PAID FOR LINDELL PROPERTY

Fifty feet on the north side of Lindell boulevard, 105 feet east of Boyle avenue, with a depth of 175 feet, has been purchased by Charles J. Geraghty, who owns the northeast corner of Lindell and Boyle, occupied by his undertaking establishment. This gives Geraghty a total frontage of 155 feet on Lindell, with a depth of 175 feet on Boyle. The Harold Wilson Co. handled the transaction.

The reported price for the 50 feet sold was $600 a foot. A house known as 4251 Lindell boulevard, wrecked by the tornado, occupies the lot.

TAKES LEASE ON STORE ROOM IN PAUL BROWN BUILDING

Isaac T. Cook & Co. Inc., has announced that the store room in the Paul Brown Building at 823 Pine street, has been leased to the Domestic Electric Co. for the sale and display of electric refrigerators manufactured by the General Electric Co.

Morris, Mann and Reilly, Inc., of Chicago have leased the premises at 1328 Washington avenue, for a long term beginning Dec. 1. The lease was made for the account of Aubrey Hart and Samuel Cook, the present lessees. The four-story and basement building at 1214 Washington was leased for ten years to a client of Cook & Co., who will take possession of the premises as soon as extensive alterations are completed. The property is owned by Adolph P. Erker and is now occupied by the Samuels Shoe Co.

Cook & Co. in conjunction with the Franciscus Realty Co., have leased the large garage building at 3929 Laclede avenue for August Thoerner, owner. This building was formerly occupied by the Morris-Pugh Motor Co. who have negotiated a lease through Cook & Co. for the two buildings at 1312 and 1320 South Grand boulevard.

DOWNTOWN DEALS CLOSED BY FRANCISCUS REALTY CO.

George A. Hughes has purchased 31 feet on the south side of Olive street in the 200 block, owned by the Catlin estate, through the Franciscus Realty Co. Another noteworthy sale was the fee to the southeast corner of Sixteenth and O'Fallon street, fronting 120 feet on Sixteenth street by 126 feet on O'Fallon, to H. Kraus, and the fee to 1501 Biddle street, to Meyer Goldenberg and Sam Kopolow.

The fee and leasehold to the southwest corner of Eighth and O'Fallon street was purchased by Sam Demba. This fee was sold for William Swanson and the leasehold for Gokdie Bendersky.

VOTE ON $12,750,000 BOND ISSUE IN COUNTY TUESDAY

Chamber of Commerce There to Continue Campaign for Proposal Until Tomorrow Night.

The campaign of the St. Louis County Chamber of Commerce and allied interests in support of the bond issue of $12,750,000 for public improvements, on which an election will be held in the county Tuesday, will continue until tomorrow night. The items to be passed on are: $10,000,000 for roads, $1,000,000 for parks and playgrounds, $1,000,000 for a county hospital and $750,000 for a new jail and courthouse.

The road bond proposition consists of two issues, one starting "for" the issue and the other starting "against" the issue; voters must scratch the clause to which they are opposed. The other three items will be accompanied by the words "yes" and "no," one of which must be scratched in each case.

A last-minute attack on the bond issue by opponents is anticipated by the Chamber of Commerce, which urges a heavy vote, since a two-thirds majority is necessary for approval of the items.

STOCK TRADE IS BROADEST ON RECORD

Market, Tinged With Bullishness, Is Stimulated in Anticipation of Two Outstanding Events, Namely the New Ford and Congress, Respectively.

NEW YORK, Nov. 26.—The Evening Post, in its copyrighted weekly financial review, says:

"The broadest stock market in history tinged with bullishness was stimulated this week in anticipation of two outstanding events expected within the next 10 days, one of which looms as a favorable and one as an undetermined factor in business. The first showing of the Ford car scheduled for next Friday emphasizes the undisputed prospect for an acceleration in motor production between now and the first of the year, by which time the Detroit manufacturer should be going at full speed. What Congress will do next month is the uncertain factor to reckon with. Ford's operations alone could lift the total steel production in this country a full 8 per cent. That in conjunction with the increased activity of other motor makers may provide the stimulus needed to put the steel industry on a better basis. It is noteworthy that fluctuations in steel ingot production for the five months between July and November did not exceed 36 per cent from high to low. Never in history has so uniform a rate of production been maintained that long.

No Autumn Expansion.

"This complete absence of a 1927 autumn expansion from the low levels of summer gives convincing indication that the usual December decline will not come this year. If the October expansion in steel activities for 1927 came nowhere near that of 1926 the logical conclusion is that a late 1927 contraction such as last year's is not a likelihood. Aside from the stimulus rightfully expected for the steel industry from heavier purchases by the motor makers, is the swelling demand for steel from farm implement manufacturers. That industry at its peak of operations this autumn indeed actually was a heavier purchaser of steel than the motor industry itself. The farm implement industry is enjoying its best year on record, and two influences at work promise maintenance of an active pace this winter. These are the increased purchasing power of farmers consequent upon improvement in agricultural prices and a fresh determination of the agricultural interests to cut down costs, through the introduction of labor-saving machinery.

Money Ease Still Influence.

"Such influences as these plainly are calculated to improve conditions in a great key industry and it is only natural if market speculators should become enthusiastic over the future for issues that stand in position to benefit therefrom. All the more is this the case since the most convincing reason cited by the prophets for an emphatic downward readjustment in stock prices is that the market has continued upward longer than ever before and to heights of which nobody dreamed. In view of the reasonable assurance that money will remain in abundant supply at low rates for the remainder of 1927 and possibly even for a considerable period of 1928 those who operate in stocks still are inclined to ignore unfavorable forces at work, such as a decline in railroad and industrial earnings.

Climb in Sterling.

"Sterling's rise to a new peak since before the war of $4.87 15-16 is interesting, for it reveals the changed international situation, but does not mean that London can yet expect to take gold in volume from New York. The gold point probably is nearer $4.89 than $4.88 at the present, the biggest variable in the calculation being freight rates. The unseasonable advance in this exchange dates from the time the Federal Reserve system adopted its easy money program late last summer and undoubtedly is related to it. There is no evidence that bankers here have transferred any considerable volume of funds directly to London, however, thus tending to strengthen sterling, but the movement in all probability has come about through a shifting to London of foreign balances accumulated here. For its possible bearing on our gold stocks, any further upswing in this exchange will be watched with burning interest on this side of the water.

Weekly Metal Review.

NEW YORK, Nov. 26.—There was some decrease in the demand for various grades of steel during the week, both in the way of specifications against old contracts and new business. Prices in most instances were steady, but here and there competition remained keen and mills made some reductions.

Pig iron was unsettled. Some business was reported in the Southern markets for 1928 delivery, while the Eastern markets were spotty.

After large sales earlier in the week, an advance of ¼ cent to 13¾ cents for electrolytic copper delivered in the Connecticut Valley served to check domestic demand. Export sales were also in smaller volume. Buyers are now thought to be fairly well supplied for the present and in a position to await further developments. Copper, brass, bronze and nickel silver products have all advanced

WEEKEND STOCK MARKET TREND MAINLY HIGHER

Speculators for Advance Buy Heavily of a Wide Assortment of Stocks, Lifting More Than a Score of Them to New Peak Prices.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Nov. 26.—The main price movement in today's stock market continued upward, although heavy week-end profit taking brought about some irregularity towards the close, disregarding the increase of $25,000,000 in brokers' loans to another new high record for all time, and the prospect of stiffer call money rates over the week-end, speculators for the advance bought heavily of a wide assortment of stocks, lifting more than a score of them to new peak prices.

Although reports of further improvement were noted in the steel and copper industries, the main background for the current upswing appears to be the tremendous investment demand for high-grade securities as reflected in the prompt absorption of nearly $200,000,000 in new bond offerings during the week. While the announcement of the Republic-Trumbull steel merger took Wall Street somewhat by surprise, it apparently was without influence on the stock market. Republic Steel closed nearly a point lower at 61¼.

Coppers Do Not Hold Gain.

Coppers failed to maintain their early gains, although Anaconda, Howe Sound and Green Cananea were boosted to new 1927 high prices. American Smelting retained most of a 3-point gain. Rubbers moved forward under the leadership of Intercontinental, which advanced more than 4 points to a new high at 25, or more than double the year's low of $11 a share.

United States Steel common, yesterday's late feature, advanced to a new high on the current recovery at 147¾, or nearly 2½ points above last month's low, and then settled back to 147, up ¾ net. General Motors common, which sold within a point of steel a month ago, showed a net gain of ¾ at 128. Radio Corporation advanced 2 points to 95⅝ and was accompanied into new high ground by National Biscuit, Stewart-Warner, Mathieson Alkali, Porto Rican tobacco A and Transue Williams Steel, and several others. Good buying also was noted in Continental Baking A, Federal Motors, Case Threshing, Arnold Constable, and National Supply.

Rails Sluggish.

Commercial Solvents broke nearly 5 points to a new low at 150 and Marine preferred broke nearly 4 points to 37, but recovered most of the loss. Profit-taking checked the advance in such recent favorites as Montgomery-Ward, North American Co., American Express, Westinghouse Electric and International Harvester.

Rails were again rather sluggish. Delaware & Hudson and Chesapeake & Ohio recorded moderate gains, but New Haven and the St. Paul issues, which were strong yesterday, yielded to realizing sales.

Foreign Exchange Irregular.

Foreign Exchanges were irregular. Sterling yielded to profit-taking, demand bills slipping back 1-16 of a cent to $4.87½ and moderate recessions also took place in the Belgian and German rates. Italian, Dutch and Norwegian currencies were slightly firmer.

The weekly clearing house statement showed a deficit in reserve of $39,408,980, compared with excess reserve of $10,621,620 a week ago. Aggregate reserve totaled $607,999,000. The detailed statement of actual condition his day showed mixed changes. Net demand deposits dropped $54,356,000 and reserve of member banks in the Federal Reserve Bank, $57,666,000. Loans, discounts and investments increased $5,257,000; cash in own vaults, $2,750,000 and time deposits $5,572,000.

Dry Goods Market Review.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Nov. 26.—Cotton goods were quiet today with prices steadier. Accumulations of stocks are leading to more general curtailment of production. Wool and fancy linens were comfortably sold. Household linens were dull. Handkerchief linens are 15 per cent higher and fine cotton lawns are being bought to replace them. Burlaps were firmer, due to active business in goods for South American shipments during the week, raw silk was easy and silk goods were in moderate demand only. Dress goods and men's wear were quiet.

NEW YORK RUBBER MARKET

NEW YORK, Nov. 26.—Rubber opened firm; smoked sheets: December, 40.50c; March, 42c; May, 42.40c.

NEW YORK, Nov. 26.—Rubber, futures closed steady; December 40.20c; March 42.30c; May 42.50c.

NEW YORK, Nov. 26.—Smoked ribbed spot 41c.

¾ cent while seamless yellow brass advanced ¾ cents a pound.

Tin was higher on consumers as well as dealers bought freely. Several tin plate manufacturers closed contracts for the first quarter of 1928.

Lead was higher and the demand better. Cable markets bought a fair tonnage for November, December and January.

Zinc was firmer with inquiry in the market to March delivery. Demand was moderate while London was stronger. Antimony was steady, due largely to the absence of selling pressure.

STOCK SALES TOP HALF BILLION FOR A YEAR'S RECORD

Brokers' Loans at New Peak —Unprecedented Total of 700 Issues Traded in During Single Session—Stock Exchange Seat Sells for $300,000 for First Time.

NEW YORK, Nov. 26.—Chief financial interest this week was divided between the irregular recovery of stocks, which lifted the industrial average to a new rec and high level, and the further advance in sterling cables to $4.88, or very close to the "gold export point." Bond prices held firm in the face of nearly $200,000,000 in new offerings.

Buying of stocks centered largely in a group of industrial specialties, although a brisk demand was noted for some of the industrial leaders as the week closed. Except for the brisk bidding for New Haven common, based, it was said, on expectations of dividend resumptions next year, and for the St. Paul issues, inspired by a splendid October earnings report and reports of an early Interstate commerce commission decision on the application to issue the new securities provided in the reorganization plan already approved by the courts there was little general interest in the rail shares.

New Records Established.

The stock market set several new high records during the week. A seat on the stock exchange changed hands at $300,000 for the first time, the number of individual issues traded in during a single day reached the unprecedented total of 700, total stock sales in 1927 to date crossed the half billion mark for the first time in any single year, and brokers' loans reported by the New York Federal Reserve Bank established a new peak just under 3½ billion dollars.

Cotton and wheat prices showed comparatively little change on the week, although the undertone was firm. Money rates were unchanged.

Establishment of a premium on Canadian dollar exchange resulted in large shipments of gold to Montareal. Belgian and Norwegian currencies also touched new peaks for the year.

The movement of stock prices was by no means regular. For the greater part of the week bullish operations centered largely in a select assortment of motor, public utility, merchandising, food, farm implement and agricultural issues. Standard industrials and rails were rather backward until Friday when a heavy buying movement in U. S. Steel common the last hour of trading started a brisk covering movement in other sections of the list.

Easy Money at Backgrounds.

Easy money rates and the tremendous volume of capital seeking investment provided the main background for the advance, although reports of further improvement in the copper and steel industries helped to create bullish enthusiasm. Pools furnished the chief buying impetus in many stocks, particularly those in which favorable merger or dividend developments are believed to be pending.

General Motors was rather sluggish most of week but considerable activity and strength developed in some of the low and medium priced issues particularly Continental, Hupp, Packard and Dodge Bros. Selling of General Motors at one time may have been inspired by talk of fears on part of speculators that the introduction of the new Ford car next month might cut into the sales of Chevrolet and some of its other low-priced cars.

Farm implement shares were strong on merger reports. Alcohol shares responded to reports of increasing commodity prices and higher earnings. Expanding profits talk also furnished the background for the advances in such shares as Radio, Brooklyn Edison, International Paper and some of the tobacco issues.

Rails were rather backward, although Northern Pacific crossed par for the first time in 10 years.

Brokers' loans reported by the New York Federal Reserve Bank increased $25,000,000 during the week ended Wednesday, setting a new high record for all time close to $3,500,000,000.

BROAD MARKET ON CURB AT WEEK END

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Nov. 26.—Although the market on the Curb Exchange today was checked to absorb much profit-taking, there was no indication of any relaxation in the spirited trading of the last few sessions. Recent leaders came into early prominence with gains of 5 and more points and numerous issues found substantial support at the year's peak quotations. Group buying in motor and aluminum shares attracted attention. Ford Motor of Canada showed an 8 points at a high of 450 and Firestone Tire followed with an advance of 2¼ points to a new mark at 174½.

The widest movement was scored in Tobacco Articles, which rose 43 points to a high of 1,440. New maximum prices were attained in Royal Typewriter, Shattuck Denn and Industrial Rayon. Midland Steel Products and Timber Gravels rose about 5 points, while Trumbull Steel yielded 4 points to a new low of 61¼ points.

Trumbull Steel preferred, on a few transactions, rose 25 points to 100, and Penn Salt moved up a gain of 9 points. Ahead of the only recession of importance was noted in Oilstocks Co., which showed a loss of 7 points. Urged having continued throughout the short session and the list broadened to record dimensions without any serious setbacks from the day's high figures. In the oil group Indiana Pipe Line was the leader, selling to the year's high, while also held steady.

NEW YORK BOND MARKET

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Nov. 26.—Total transactions in bonds on the New York Stock Exchange today amounted to $6,329,000; previous day sales, $11,211,000; week ago, $7,062,000; year ago, $7,146,000. Total sales from Jan. 1 to date were $3,012,715,000, compared with $2,696,113,000 same period year ago and $3,115,570,000 same period two years ago.

Quotations on Liberty bonds are in dollars and thirty-seconds of a dollar, that is, for instance, a sale printed $99.24 means $99 and twenty-four thirty-seconds of a dollar and not $99.24.

The following is a complete list of transactions with sales, highest, lowest and closing prices:

GRAINS CLOSE DOWN ON LOCAL EXCHANGE

ST. LOUIS MERCHANTS' EXCHANGE, Nov. 26.—Wheat and corn closed lower on the local market after early narrow range. Export business in North American wheat was estimated at 200,000 bushels. Chicago reported some selling by Northwestern sources.

Opening prices were unchanged to fractionally lower on wheat and unchanged to higher on corn. May wheat was slightly lower early. Liverpool closed ¼d lower on December, unchanged on March and ¼d higher on May. Winnipeg was ½c higher to ½c lower early. December corn was up fractionally early.

Absence of indication of important export business was factor in wheat trade. Mild moist weather in part of corn belt entered as bullish influence in that grain trade.

Cheaper wheat opened at $1.30, May wheat $1.34⅝, December corn 80⅝c and May corn 84c.

Local wheat receipts, which were 112,000 bushels, compared with 42,000 a week ago and 67,200 a year ago, included 29 cars local and 94 cars through. Corn receipts, which were 22,400 bushels, compared with 4200 a week ago and 28,000 a year ago, included 14 cars local and two through. Oats receipts, which were 24,000 bushels, compared with 78,000 a week ago and 32,000 a year ago, included nine cars local and three cars through. Hay receipts were 40 cars local.

Clearances were 35,000 bushels of wheat, 195,000 bushels of barley, 29,000 barrels of flour and 100,000 bushels of wheat and flour.

The three Northwestern markets combined had 2569 cars of wheat, compared with 553 a week ago and 1946 a year ago, Minneapolis receiving 223 cars, Duluth 172 and Winnipeg 2174.

Stocks in St. Louis Public Elevators were 1,890,398 bushels of wheat, 643,936 bushels of corn, 460,561 bushels of oats.

MODERATE NORTHWESTERN SALES LOWER WHEAT

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Nov. 26.—Grain traders eyed warlike news from Europe today as a dud, and sufficient selling developed to depress both December and May 1@2c under the Primary receipts of all the leading cereals were much larger than at this time a year ago, with the total arrivals placed at 7,962,000 bushels for the week, against 5,861,000 bushels and corn 3,468,000 bushels against 2,218,000 bushels.

Closing quotations on wheat were unsettled, 1¼@1⅝c net lower; corn ⅝c to ¾@¾c off; oats unchanged to ⅛c down, and provisions unchanged to 7c decline.

Contrasting with the fact that warlike reports from Europe were making big front-page headlines was total absence of any unusual change in foreign grain values. Besides, in Northwestern American wheat today was estimated at not to exceed 200,000 bushels, as such circumstances, very moderate selling pressure from Northwestern sources at the day drew to an end proved to be ample for bringing about downruns in wheat prices, although earlier the market had held steady notwithstanding lack of any aggressive demand.

In connection with late selling from the Northwest, it was pointed out that Minneapolis, Duluth and Winnipeg wheat receipts today were all larger than a year ago. Furthermore, Canadian country marketings yesterday amounted to 3,962,000 bushels, compared with 2,341,609 bushels on the corresponding day last year. Another bear factor was evidence that stocks of wheat in Chicago are being built up on delivery requirements on December contracts. About 275,000 bushels of wheat were sold today to go into store here.

Corn and oats were responsive to wheat weakness, despite charters for 250,000 bushels of corn to Buffalo and 250,000 bushels more to Georgian Bay. Mild, moist weather, unfavorable for field operations, prevailed, but colder weather was in prospect.

Provisions averaged lower on account of expected larger receipts of hogs.

LIQUIDATION AND SOUTHERN SELLING LOWERS COTTON

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Nov. 26.—The cotton market was lower today under liquidation and Southern selling. January selling off to 19.32c and closing at that figure. The general market closed steady, at net declines of 14 to 20 points.

The opening was steady at an advance of 4 points to a decline of 3 points. There appeared to be a little covering by near month shorts. And some buying on the relatively firm showing of Liverpool. The strength abroad failed to stimulate any general or aggressive demand, however, and the market soon eased under comparatively small offerings.

Complaints of a poor spot demand, probably tended to check buying, and as prices weakened liquidation became a little more active. Prices reached the lowest levels of the day in late trading. December selling at 19.32c and May at 19.73c. The close was at the lowest, although the final tone of the market was steadied by covering and trade buying.

No particular news feature was emphasized in connection with the easier ruling of prices, but it was supposed the failure of Liverpool's strength to bring in better demand disappointed recent buyers, which may have accounted for some of the selling.

Private cables said some selling against actual in the Liverpool market had been more than offset by continental support and fair trade selling, and also reported an improving demand for cotton cloth. Traders evidently found little or no improvement in reports from the domestic goods markets, however, and the amount of cotton on shipboard awaiting clearance at the end of the week being estimated at 142,000 bales against 234,000 at the same time last year, was regarded as pointing to continued small exports.

Offerings of December were light following the liquidation of yesterday and at the close December was selling on practically even terms with January.

LIQUIDATION AND SOUTHERN SELLING LOWERS COTTON

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Nov. 26.—The cotton market was lower today under liquidation and Southern selling. January selling off to 19.32c and closing at that figure. The general market closed steady, at net declines of 14 to 20 points.

The opening was steady at an advance of 4 points to a decline of 3 points. There appeared to be a little covering by near month shorts. And some buying on the relatively firm showing of Liverpool. The strength abroad failed to stimulate any general or aggressive demand, however, and the market soon eased under comparatively small offerings.

Complaints of a poor spot demand, probably tended to check buying, and as prices weakened liquidation became a little more active. Prices reached the lowest levels of the day in late trading. December selling at 19.32c and May at 19.73c. The close was at the lowest, although the final tone of the market was steadied by covering and trade buying.

No particular news feature was emphasized in connection with the easier ruling of prices, but it was supposed the failure of Liverpool's strength to bring in better demand disappointed recent buyers, which may have accounted for some of the selling.

Private cables said some selling against actual in the Liverpool market had been more than offset by continental support and fair trade selling, and also reported an improving demand for cotton cloth. Traders evidently found little or no improvement in reports from the domestic goods markets, however, and the amount of cotton on shipboard awaiting clearance at the end of the week being estimated at 142,000 bales against 234,000 at the same time last year, was regarded as pointing to continued small exports.

Offerings of December were light following the liquidation of yesterday and at the close December was selling on practically even terms with January.

A BREATH OF OLD FRANCE IN THIS 'MANIOR FRANCAIS'

This Small French Chateau Is Built of Materials Easily Securable in the St. Louis Market.

Like a breath of old France is this model little home called by Jesse L. Bowling, its architect and designer, "La Petit Manior Francais."

The reviving influence of French architecture is not entirely new to St. Louis. For in the older sections of the city stand many old French homes, landmarks of Early St. Louis, retaining in spite of the city life which surrounds them, much of their natural charm and loveliness. This type of home, however, has been supplanted during the last two decades by other styles and types of architecture. The Spanish and Italian, while attractive and lively in their natural setting, are not altogether suited to our climate and local landscape. The English, although popular and very beautiful, requires a large area of ground to properly set off the dignity of its type. And the Colonial, which is truly our own, has never acquired real popularity in this locality. The French type of architecture is more adaptable than these other types and is as thoroughly suited to our climate as to that of France, which is much like our own.

The small French chateau is built of materials easily securable in the St. Louis market. The house pictured will be constructed of cull matt brick, roughtly laid and painted white, although this color scheme is optional—with certain portions of the exterior plastered. The brick, as well as the other materials required, are less expensive in St. Louis because of their availability.

A true French house, which is always built in a T or L shape with a front or rear courtyard, is economical because it requires a comparatively small area of ground. The house is compact and standard materials can be used throughout. It is characterized by its rugged, almost primitive appearance with the sweeping roof lines, tower, stone trimmings around the door, stone quoins, checkered chimney and the ever-present bird houses always found in the gable end of every French home.

The studio living-room is Norman and is the true French treatment of this type of home. With its hand-molded, plastered walls and ceilings, having the wood beams between the triangular cords exposed, it creates a very picturesque effect. Another outstanding feature of the small French Manior is the circular dining-room in the tower, with its broken faience tile floor, its casement windows, and waxed plastered walls. The second floor of the building will have all the conveniences of a typical American home.

This type of home will meet the need of the home builder who wishes to incorporate beauty and utility in a modern home. Its unique design, which sacrifices nothing of practicability to achieve its natural beauty, will instantly appeal to those who appreciate th beautiful.

This house can be built for from $13 000 to $14,000

MINERAL LATH MAKE IDEAL INSULATOR AND FIRE-BARRIER

Construction methods that will protect the buildings against heat, cold and fire are among the interesting features in the erection of two two-flat buildings just completed by A. J. Moellenbeck. The buildings are located at 7124 and 7126 Dartmouth avenue, in the University Park subdivision.

Mr. Moellenbeck designed and built both structures. They are throughly modern throughout in construction and equipment. Each flat has electric refrigeration and cedar closets among other conveniences. And fire-safety was added to both through the use of mineral lath in place of the usual wood lath. This material consists of large units of gypsum rock in a tough, porous paper binder. It will help to protect the wooden parts of the walls from fire because gypsum is incombustible. And tests have proved that plaster adheres to the rock lath with a firmer bond than any other plaster base. Two hundred and seventy-eight lb. of plaster were applied over it in these buildings. The final coat of plaster also forms the decoration in some of the rooms, since the material used for this finish coat is factory-mixed with mineral pigment to insure a permanent and uniform color tone for the walls and ceilings. Pearl and orchid are the colors used.

Inside heat will not escape through the roofs of these buildings this winter, and they will be cooler in the summer because of the installation of a gypsum dry filler that was poured under the attic floors. This flaky, asbestos-like filler is one of the best insulators yet discovered and also is a fire barrier because it is made of gypsum.

California

IN the San Joaquin Valley of California general farming is a paying business, feeding millions of people in towns and cities. Alfalfa combined with cattle, hogs and poultry, yields a good income; a small one-family farm, with little hired labor, insures success. You can work outdoors all the year; newcomers welcome. The Santa Fe Railway has no land to sell, but offers a free service in helping you get right location. Write for illustrated San Joaquin Valley folder and our farm index, "Facts About Earth," free for six months. C. L. CHICAGO GANGS SAID TO BE IN ARMISTICE

But Police Aren't, and 50 Suspects Are Cooling Off in Jail.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Nov. 26.—Reports of an armistice between two factions of Chicago gangsters fighting for control of gambling and bootlegging did not deter police today from continuing their campaign against both factions.

More than 50 men arrested last night when squads of detectives invaded the boxing match at the Coliseum in search of gang suspects, were in jail today and were likely to remain there until Monday despite strenuous efforts of some of them to gain their liberty. Police said they would give the prisoners a chance to cool off. They did not intend to book any of them until the first of the week unless it became necessary to do so to hold them.

While the reports of the armistice were being broadcast, the quiet of Blue Island, a suburb, was disturbed by the second bomb explosion of the last two weeks, the target in each case being a gambling house. Police were attempting to determine whether the bombings were the result of gang warfare or labor troubles.

Under terms of the reported armistice "Scarface" Al Capone, leader of one gang, and the Aiello brothers, leaders of the other, were said to have agreed to stop trying to kill off each other until next week when they are to meet in conference to try to decide who is boss.

Robert and Frank Aiello, brothers, were shot and killed by a masked man in a Springfield, Ill., restaurant on Nov. 10. The killings were attributed by police to differences between factions in the Italian gangs operating in the liquor traffic out of St. Louis and Chicago.

BULK OF MRS. KATE WALKER'S ESTATE LEFT TO RELATIVES

$5000 to Children's Hospital "Purely for Entertainment." Filing of Will Discloses.

The will of Mrs. Kate M. Walker, who died last Wednesday, was filed yesterday in the Probate Court. No estimate of the value of her estate was made.

To her sister-in-law, Mrs. Elizabeth S. Mudd, widow of Robert H. Mudd, Mrs. Walker bequeathed $2000; to Henry M. Cook, a nephew, $5000, and also $5000 to the St. Louis Children's Hospital "to be used purely for the entertainment and amusement of the patients there and to be expended under the direction of Mrs. George D. Markham." For faithful service rendered to Mrs. Walker her will bequeaths $500 to Ona McCallum of Roselle, Mo., and a like amount to Lena Haggard of St. Louis.

A final specific bequest of $5000 goes to Mgr. Timothy Dempsey, after which the residue of the estate is divided into three parts. A brother, John H. Mudd, inherits one part, but all except $15,000 of the bequest to him is left in trust of the Mercantile Trust Co. for his benefit. The other two parts are divided among Mrs. Edith M. Cook, a sister, and the children of Robert Mudd.

The will was executed last Oct. 18, naming Henry Cook and the Mercantile Trust Co. as executors. Besides the money bequest to Mrs. Elizabeth Mudd she also receives a diamond and pearl bar pin. Mrs. Walker was the widow of J. Sydney Walker, wholesale dry goods merchant.

MRS. MARY BIRGE, DAUGHTER OF ST. LOUIS PIONEER, DIES

James Patrick, Her Father, Founded Mississippi Planing Mill, First of Kind.

Mrs. Mary Patrick Birge, widow of Julius C. Birge, died yesterday at her home, 5076 Westminster place, of pneumonia, after two weeks' illness. The funeral will be held in Pilgrim Congregational Church at 2 p. m. tomorrow.

Mrs. Birge was 77 years old, and was the daughter of James Patrick, who founded the Mississippi Planing Mill, said to have been the first enterprise of its kind in St. Louis. He also operated a line of steamboats between St. Louis and Pittsburg. The Patrick home was at 2951 North Euclid avenue, in a parklike estate, and in more recent years this was the Birge family residence. It is now occupied by the Christian Orphans' Home.

Mr. Birge, who was vice president of the Ames Shovel and Tool Co., died four years ago. Mrs. Birge is survived by four sons, Ernest N., Walter W., Arthur B. and Stanley Birge, and a daughter, Mrs. Courtland Carrier. There are 17 grandchildren. Mrs. Birge was active in church work, and was for many years on the Board of Management of the Girls' Industrial Home.

ANSWERS TO QUERIES

The Post-Dispatch reserves the right to reject any query. Personal and telephone calls or answers by mail cannot be given attention, except letters on medical questions of undoubted sincerity when accompanied by stamped addressed envelope.

RALPH S.—The Southwestern Bell Telephone Building at 356 feet high from sidewalk at Eleventh street to the roof, and 403 feet from the same to top of the chimney.

PAT J.—Familiarize yourself with periodicals which publish stories of child life, also the housekeeping and women's magazines. This will give you some idea of the demand for illustrators of child life. Rose O'Neil, Maud Tousey Fangel, Ruth P. Marsh and Jesse Wilcox Smith are well-known illustrators of children. The last named studied at Pennsylvania Academy of Fine Arts and under Howard Pyle at Drexel Institute. She is a portrait painter of children. Illustrated Stevenson's Child Garden of Verse, Kingsley's Water Babies, many other books, and much magazine work.

J. P. E.—The formula for commercial yeast is not available but the following is a reliable formula: Boil together for one-half hour, 95 parts of the finest grated hops and 4000 parts of water. Strain. Add to the warm liquor 1750 parts of rye meal or flour. When the temperature has fallen to that of the room add 167 parts of good yeast. (On the following day the mass will be in fermentation. While it is in this condition add 4000 parts of barley flour, so as to form a dough. This dough is cut into thin disks, which are dried as rapidly as possible in the open air or sun. For use the disks are broken into small pieces and soaked overnight in warm water. The yeast can be used on the following day as if it were ordinary brewers' yeast.

MR. READER.—"I have drank" is never correct. Drank is the past tense of drink. It denotes action that was completed in the past, and does not need the auxiliary "have" with it to complete the sense. "I had drank" is correct and denotes action completed at the present time, that is the reason it is called the present perfect tense. "I had drunk" shows action completed at a certain time in the past, and is therefore called past perfect tense. When in doubt as to what form to use with have, had, and having, get the past participle of the verb, which is shown in a dictionary by the letters pp before the word.

LEGAL INFORMATION

(By a Member of the St. Louis Bar Association)

MARTINSBURG.—The large stationery houses sell the necessary legal forms for real estate business.

A. T.—See the free Legal Aid Bureau at City Hall about nonpayment for services to a hotel proprietor.

CONSTANT READER.—If you peddle the products from door to door you will need a license, according to law.

ELMER.—The notice is binding on you, but unless you comply with it the landlord can give you notice to move Jan. 1, next.

L. B. 66.—There is no law or ordinance to prevent a man getting a position with the city when he lives in the county.

F. C. T.—There is no widows' pension in Missouri. See miscellaneous answers for reply to other questions.

S. S. S.—It would be lawful for a divorced person, to go into Illinois and be married, when both parties reside in Missouri, within 15 days after divorce is granted.

DAILY READER.—If the husband leaves the wife under circumstances stated she might have him arrested unless he can show he had good cause to leave her.

CLOWN.—It would be unwise to marry again before the term of court in which the divorce was granted, expires, as the divorce might be set aside during the term.

WHITE ROSE.—You should leave the man at once and not live with him again until he secures the divorce in question. If you continue to live with him under the circumstances you can both be prosecuted for adultery.

C. M. M.—You have to be a resident of Illinois one year to sue for divorce, unless the offense complained of was committed in Illinois. You could not subpoena persons from one State to another to testify in this.

MEDICAL QUESTIONS

Health and sanitation questions of public interest only will be considered. Diagnosis or treatment of individual cases will not be given.

ALICIA.—A diagnosis, such as necessary in your case, could only be made by thorough examination and this we advise to be done at your earliest convenience. Some one will be recommended for such service if you wish to send stamped, addressed envelope.

BLUES.—Touching the back part of tongue two or three times daily with a solution of nitrate of silver to one ounce of water will destroy the taste for cigarettes, and by abstaining time will overcome the desire for them. Please see answer to Mrs. Dumb for other formula wanted.

C. M. T.—There is nothing in the way of an operation that could be classed for betterment of the mental condition mentioned. The main prospect of benefit is by placing the subject in some institution for care and treatment. Concerning city institutions you should consult Dr. Shankland, Hospital Commissioner, second floor Municipal Courts Building. Private institutions conducted by physicians and private individuals consult Bureau of Municipal Research, same address, Fourteenth and Market streets.

DAUGHTER.—While a person 62 years old is no longer young, neither is he old because of accumulated years. Gaining in years is not a disease. Only a few diseases are others such as disease, overwork, worry, grief, unhygienic living, etc. These statements are made to show that the elements of age need not necessarily stand in the way of a successful operation for your mother's relief and cure. It is not thought that any kind of medical treatment could cure such a case; the only hope being in an operation, and it is suggested that all medicine be abstained from. Concentrate the diet and mode of life be practiced to put her in good physical condition and then the proper operation be performed.

A Paris Rainstorm Frees Him From Devil's Island

France Recalls Henri Bellon After Eleven Years' Imprisonment for Crime Which He Did Not Commit.

Bellon when a soldier in 1914.

By a Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch Sunday Magazine

PARIS.

TORRENTS of rain were falling on the morning of June 8, 1924, and the Bois de Boulogne, the great forest reserve on the western outskirts of the city, was dripping wet and dismal. The park benches along its sylvan drives were soaked and deserted. Water ran in rivulets down the slopes which, on sunny days, afford a popular retreat for strollers and picnickers.

And because of the circumstance that the Bois de Boulogne was on that particular morning an uninhabitable morass, the prison gates at Devil's Island, 4000 miles away in the Caribbean Sea, have opened for Henri Bellon after 11 years of hard labor in the notorious French penal colony. Bellon, Marseilles barber, was convicted by a French courtmartial in 1916 and doomed to the "dry guillotine" of the tropics on a charge of betraying a French secret agent to a foreign Power. Following a recent review of his case, he is free now and waiting in Cayenne, French Guiana, for transportation back to his apologetic homeland.

It was at the trial of another case a year ago, a case entirely unrelated to Bellon's misfortune 10 years earlier, that testimony concerning the weather of June 8, 1924, became significant to the Devil's Island life-termer and served to turn the light of inquiry back into books already closed. This was the case of one Lazare Tissier, a janitor, charged with the murder of Louis Boulay, an aged Paris messenger.

Bellon, far away at Devil's Island, was reading one night, by the light of a candle in his hut, a Paris newspaper's account of the trial. In the headline he saw a familiar and hated name. Reading on, he discovered some testimony having to do with the Bois de Boulogne and the weather there on the morning of June 8. He saw his opportunity and grasped it. Although the next steamer for France was not leaving for a month, he wrote that night to the League of Rights of Man in Paris. Many times before, during his 10 years of imprisonment, he had written to that philanthropic organization, urging that a new trial be obtained for him, but always the Ministry of War had blocked the move. Now he had a foundation upon which to base his appeal. He was elated.

"I KNEW that in the end right would always triumph over wrong, justice over injustice and truth over untruth," he wrote. "I have had to wait 10 long years here, under the cruel sun of the tropics and the ignominy of being a traitor to my country, but God has finally supplied me with the proof that the principal witness against me was a man without honor."

All this elation over a mere bit of testimony concerning the weather! How was it connected with his alleged betrayal of a secret agent 11 years earlier?

In the summer of 1915 Bellon, who was then 28, was invalided out of the French Army because of serious wounds which rendered him useless at the front. He went back to Marseilles and reopened his barber shop, but found himself unable to earn a living. He decided then to go into the hair net business. The Germans previously had supplied most of the hair nets, but when the war broke out the supply was cut off and the price soared. Bellon heard he could buy nets very cheaply in Switzerland and sell them in France for a big profit. So he went to Geneva in September, taking with him Madame Fortunee Mazella, a French cafe singer who hoped to find a professional engagement there. He was separated from his wife at the time.

ONE day at Geneva Bellon met a friendly American. This American was Stanley Mitchell, an ex-jockey and race-track hanger-on, who had gone to Russia 10 years earlier and had been almost constantly in trouble with the police. At the outbreak of the war, Mitchell had fled from Russia to Switzerland and had become a French spy. The French Government apparently knew little about his record and, of course, Bellon knew nothing at all about it. They struck up an acquaintance on a cafe terrace and Bellon, already impressed by his new friend's easy spending, was still more impressed when Mitchell told him he was the American Vice Consul at Kiev, Russia, and had a big racing stable in that country.

The two were together at the same cafe a week later when Mitchell jumped up suddenly and ran to meet a man who had just entered.

"Why, it's my old friend, Mr. Mantacheff from Russia," Mitchell exclaimed. "And how is your brother?"

"My poor brother is in a German prison camp," the stranger replied.

"Tell me where he is and I will guarantee to get him out and bring him here," said Mitchell. "I have some very influential friends in Germany."

"If you can do that I shall give you $10,000 the day he arrives," promised the stranger, and Bellon, standing by, drank it all in with wide-eyed interest.

When the stranger had gone, Mitchell became confidential. Since they were such good friends, he would like to take Bellon in as a partner in the venture, but he would need 4000 Swiss francs to bribe certain authorities in Germany, and his own fortune was all tied up in Russia. He had 2000 francs in the bank, however, and if Bellon would put up the other 2000 he would split 50-50 the $10,000 reward.

In spite of the fact that Bellon already had invested 430 Swiss francs in another of Mitchell's enterprises—a project of sending food packages to French prisoners in Germany—and had never seen his money again, he and his companion, Madame Mazella, decided to risk 2000 more. They advanced it and Mitchell signed a receipt.

Then Mitchell went away. Presumably he went to Germany to release the alleged prisoner, but when he came back and reported the officer was too ill to travel, Bellon became suspicious. He telegraphed to the Russian Consul in Berne for information and the Consul wired back that there was no such American Vice Consul as Mitchell in Russia and no Russian officer named Mantacheff in a German prison camp.

The barber was furious and went to Mitchell, demanding return of his money. Mitchell couldn't pay it and took the barber to Annemasse, a French frontier town, in an effort to get Captain Desvernines, the counter-espionage chief there, to calm him. The Captain had a long talk with Bellon and advised him not to make any trouble for Mitchell. Mitchell, he explained, was a secret agent and court action against him would hamper his work and embarrass the Government. Bellon agreed to wait a few weeks longer, although he needed his money badly.

Madame Mazella, however, was not so patient about her part of the 2000 francs. While Bellon was being conciliated by Captain Desvernines, she went to the Geneva police, showed Mitchell's receipt for the money and lodged a formal complaint of swindling against him.

Her complaint put Bellon in an embarrassing position with Captain Desvernines, but the mischief already had been done, and there was nothing he could do except go to the police and lodge the same complaint.

THE result of this was that the Swiss police located Mitchell in Lausanne the next day and threw him in jail. After keeping him locked up for about 70 days, they learned in some manner he was a French spy and banished him from the country. No sooner was he across the frontier than he went to his chief, the Captain, and accused Bellon of denouncing him as a spy to the Swiss police.

In the meantime, Bellon had given up hope of getting his money, and, being unable to buy any hair nets, decided to return to Marseilles. Madame Mazella went to Cairo to fill a theatrical engagement and dropped out of the picture. Bellon started back to his barber shop and was arrested as soon as he put foot on French soil, charged with giving State secrets to foreign Powers.

Bellon was tried by a courtmartial at Marseilles, on August, 8, 1916, at a time when the spy fever madness was at its crest.

Captain Desvernines appeared against him as prosecutor and Mitchell as chief witness. The Captain's only proof was Mitchell's statement and an unsigned note sent to him by one of his agents who was in the service of the Swiss police. The substance of this note was: "Bellon denounced Mitchell to the Swiss police as a French spy."

The records of the trial show that the Captain and Mitchell did virtually all the talking. Bellon tried to explain.

"I had him arrested by the Swiss police to recover money he had swindled me out of, but I never betrayed him," the barber swore on the witness stand, but the trial officer only laughed at him and told him to shut his mouth.

"He denounced me out of revenge because I did not repay the money quickly enough," Mitchell retorted, and Captain Desvernines stood behind him by testifying Bellon had caused him to lose a valuable agent.

The court's decision was prompt. It decided that Bellon was an agent of the French Government by virtue of the fact that he had once transcribed a document into longhand for Mitchell, and so was subject to trial by courtmartial. Then, with the unsigned note as a basis, it decided that Bellon was guilty. It sentenced him for life and shipped him away to the Caribbean and the matter was considered closed. Bellon went away with a prayer that some day he would return to prove Stanley Mitchell's infamy.

FOR 10 years he sweated and broiled in the heat of malarial swamps. Hundreds of letters he wrote, including a full-sized book, giving a history of his case, but his appeals aroused no action. It was not until there fell into his hands that month-old copy of a Paris newspaper that his day arrived.

Poring over the paper by candle light, his whole attention was caught by the name of Stanley Mitchell in a headline. With mounting joy, he read on to learn that at last Stanley Mitchell was undone as the result of a simple bit of testimony in a murder case. Here is how it happened.

On June 30, 1924, Louis Boulay had mysteriously disappeared. Nine days later his body, wrapped in a sack, had been found in the Bois de Boulogne. The murder had remained on the unsolved list for several months; then the police finally discovered that Boulay had been accustomed to placing small racing bets with Lazare Tissier, who, besides being a janitor, operated an illicit handbook as a sideline. The police found bloodstains in the apartment cellar where Tissier was employed. They also found an underground railway ticket dated May 30, 1924. It had been purchased on the day Boulay disappeared and at the station where the old messenger always took the train. Then, when the famous Professor Bayle, director of the police technical laboratory, reported that the red paint found on Boulay's clothes also came from the Tissier cellar, the janitor was enmeshed in a strong circumstantial case.

But how were they to prove that Tissier had taken the body from his cellar to the Bois de Boulogne, two miles away?

AT THIS point the State's case broke down badly and the investigation dragged on without discovery of new evidence until February, 1925. The police had almost despaired of a conviction when a new witness appeared.

This new witness was Stanley Mitchell. Since the Bellon incident he had been in trouble frequently, as usual. In recent years he had served a prison term in Paris for abuse of confidence and had been at liberty only a few months. He was even then under order of expulsion from France, but when he came forward as a State witness in the Tissier case the police welcomed his appearance.

Mitchell's story sounded plausible enough. He had been in the Bois de Boulogne on the morning before Boulay's body was found, he said, and had seen Tissier drive into the woods in a truck.

"I remember the date—June 8, 1924—because I had been released from prison the previous afternoon," he related.

"As I had $10 when I got out, I went up to Montmartre and spent the night drinking. I had a hangover at dawn and walked out to the Bois de Boulogne to clear my head. I was sitting on a bench in the woods at 5 a. m. when I suddenly saw Tissier, whom I knew as an illicit bookmaker, pass along the road in a little motor truck. I was afraid he would see me, as I owed him 200 francs, but he got out and walked among some bushes while a second man in the truck drove off. I was too far away to see if he carried any packages."

The police officials then asked why he had waited many months before coming forward with this evidence.

"I was under writ of expulsion from France for having served a prison sentence and didn't want to come to your attention," he explained jauntily.

Mitchell talked still more volubly when he went on the stand as the star witness against Tissier at the trial a few months later. And the more he talked the deeper he got himself into trouble. His statement about being in the Bois de Boulogne at 5 o'clock on the morning of June 8 was questioned in particular.

SO HE had been out for an early morning stroll and had taken a seat on a bench in the woods?

And he was out there simply because he wanted to get the air on such a fine morning?

Yes.

Sun shining? Birds singing?

Yes.

"Monsieur Mitchell," spoke up Maitre Albert Gautrat for the defense, "don't you know it was raining torrents on the morning of June 8, and yet you were out there sitting on a bench enjoying the air and the sunrise."

He produced Weather Bureau records to prove it.

The court was thrown into an uproar. Mitchell's testimony collapsed, and witnesses against Mitchell began to appear so fast that it seemed he, and not Tissier, was on trial. Madame Prevost, one of these, testified Mitchell had represented himself to her family as the military attache of the American embassy and tried to carry off her young daughter.

Other character witnesses testified Mitchell was an adventurer and a crook, without any known address, and had been convicted of fraud in half a dozen lands. They also pointed out he was under writ of expulsion.

"Why are you still in France if there is a writ against you?" Maitre Gautrat demanded.

"The police allowed me a delay in order to testify here," said Mitchell.

"And you hope that by testifying for the police you can remain here permanently," the defense attorney remarked with great sarcasm.

Finally, the prosecutor himself saw that Mitchell, instead of aiding the prosecution, was impeding it.

"It is useless to call more character witnesses," he said. "It is clear that he is a bad character and always has been a bad character."

IT IS not difficult to see why Convict Henri Bellon's eyes bulged when he read in Le Journal the account of these proceedings. He was filled with hope as he had never been filled before. He seized his pen and wrote until dawn, and his labors were not in vain.

The Aix-en-Provence Court immediately agreed to reopen his case and did so, passing it along to the Paris Court of Appeals. Several weeks ago it came up there. It was found that Bellon really had never been an agent of the French Government and so was not subject to courtmartial trial. It was also found that the accusation of betraying Mitchell had never been proved and that Bellon's conviction for it was a judicial error.

The court thereupon rehabilitated Bellon and ordered his immediate release from Devil's Island.

The day Bellon was released he married a native girl and the two are now waiting to make Bellon's return from Devil's Island their honeymoon voyage.

THE SEA DEVIL

And His Amazing Wartime Voyage as a Scourge of Allied Shipping

PART ONE.
The Metamorphosis of an American Clipper Ship.

Count Felix von Luckner and His Picturesque Crew Run the Blockade.

Capt. Felix von Luckner, skipper of the Sea Eagle.

The captain of the raider and his "bride," Josephine of the Big Feet.

By COUNT FELIX VON LUCKNER

As Told to Lowell Thomas.

"YOU are to take command of a vessel," said the Admiral. "We want you to run the blockade and raid enemy commerce. Since we have no coaling stations, a sailing ship will be the best. Do you think you can do it?"

"Yes, sir! I'd like nothing better."

Good health and high spirits had given me boundless confidence. I was the sort of fellow who believes he can do almost anything—at any rate, anything with a sailing ship. The Admiral replied that the mission was mine. And it turned out that I had been picked for this venture because I happened to be the only officer in the German navy who had served "in sail."

But what if we should slip through? What then? What could one lone windjammer do against the naval might of John Bull and his allies? What chance had a romantic clipper ship against the combined strength of Jellicoe and Beatty's dreadnaughts?

The Admiralty officials had picked the Pass of Balmaha because she was a stanch ship, an American clipper and one of the best. This Yankee clipper that was to be converted into a German raider had sailed from New York with a cargo of cotton for Archangel. Off the Norwegian coast, a British cruiser had hailed her and, becoming suspicious, had put a prize crew aboard her and ordered her to turn back to the search port of Kirkwall, in the Orkneys. Then a German U-boat had overhauled the Pass of Balmaha and ultimately she had found her way to Hamburg.

Our hope was to run the blockade disguised as a neutral—a thing entirely fair according to the laws of war. We altered that Yankee clipper from stem to stern, with concealed places for our guns, rifles, grenades, bombs and other armament, with special quarters for prisoners, two ultra-modern 500-horsepower motors to fall back on in case of calm or when in a big hurry, a tank holding 480 tons of fuel oil, another tank containing 480 tons of sweet water, and provisions for a cruise of two years.

In addition to 400 bunks for prospective "guests," I had special de luxe quarters made for "visiting" captains and mates. These were spacious cabins to accommodate two or three.

Then, of course, we had to arrange quarters for my crew of fighting marines, as well as for the regular seamen required on a clipper of this size. Moreover, we had to do all this so it would not be noticeable to uninvited visitors.

When the work was done, below deck the Pass of Balmaha was an auxiliary cruiser, armed to the teeth. Above deck she was merely a poetic old sailing ship loaded with a prosaic cargo of lumber. Timber made the ideal cargo for our purposes, because a ship carrying lumber loads her deck as well as her hold.

Norway exports lumber and Australia imports it. So we decided to pose as a Norwegian clipper bound for Melbourne. I spoke Norse and I knew I would have no difficulty finding men for my crew who could speak it also. But first I had secret doors and hatches cut in the floor of the closets in the officers' cabins, and another under the stove in the galley. From keel to top deck we converted this American three-master into a mystery ship of trick panels and trick doors.

Of course, if an enemy patrol vessel picked us up, a special prize crew of half a dozen men would be put aboard us to make sure we headed for the right port. I would have 64 men of my own to handle the small prize crew of Britishers. Although the floor of my saloon where the prize crew would be dining looked like any other floor, it was in reality an elevator! All I had to do was press a secret button hidden behind the barometer in the chart room. Presto! down would drop floor, prize crew and all.

I felt that it was so important to keep all of our plans secret that I even fooled the workmen who were altering the ship. Had they known what we were up to, the rumor might have gotten out.

As I explained, my plan was to slip through the British blockade as a neutral and if possible disguised as some other ship that actually existed. There happened to be a Norwegian vessel that was almost a dead ringer for the Pass of Balmaha. She was scheduled to sail from Copenhagen. I decided that we would take her name, and sail the day before she sailed, so that if the British caught us and wirelessed to Copenhagen to confirm our story they would receive word that such a craft had left port at the time we claimed. This other ship was named the Maleta.

WE now put on the final touches that were to turn the Pass of Balmaha into the Maleta. We painted her the same color as the Maleta, arranged her deck the same, and decorated the cabins with the same ornaments. In my captain's cabin, I hung pictures of the King and Queen of Norway and also of their jovial relative, King Edward VII of England. The barometer, thermometer and chronometer, and all the other instruments, were of a Norwegian make. I had a Norwegian library and a Norwegian phonograph and records. We had enough provisions from Norwegian firms to last us through the blockade.

We got up our cargo papers in regular form, signed and sealed by both the Norwegian port authorities and the British Consul. We also had a letter signed by His Majesty's Consul at Copenhagen, stating that the Maleta was carrying lumber for the use of the Government of the Commonwealth of Australia. The letter requested all British ships to help us if any emergency arose. To prove that this document was genuine, it was even stamped with the British Imperial Seal (made in Germany!).

I picked as my officers men who, like myself, had spent long years before the mast, who knew Norwegian, and were of the right spirit. First Officer Kling had been a member of the Filchner Expedition, in which he had distinguished himself. The officer whom I selected to go aboard captured ships was a former comrade of mine, a fellow six feet four, named Preiss.

My artillery and navigation officer, Lieutenant Kircheiss, was a wizard navigator. Engineer Krauss was our motor expert.

The boatswain, the carpenter and the cook, the three mainstays of a voyage in a sailing vessel, I picked with like care. Not until the hour of departure did I send for them.

Now we needed a name for our raider. We needed one that she could take for her official name as an auxiliary cruiser after running the blockade. I wanted to call the ship the Sea Devil, the name by which I personally was afterward to be called. My officers favored some name that would suggest the white wings of our sailship. So we compromised on Seeadler, or Sea Eagle.

ON a pitch-dark November night, the Seeadler, with a small emergency crew, raises anchor and sails out of the mouth of the Wezer into the North Sea. There, some distance offshore, we drop anchor.

At a remote place along the docks at Wilhelmshaven, men appear one by one. By the light of a dimly burning lantern I gather my crew. None of them has any inkling of what is afoot.

Some of the men do not speak Norwegian. The ones that do have their bunks above deck. The ones that don't have their bunks below. Germany below decks. Norway above.

Every man had his role. Officers and sailors were given the names of officers and sailors aboard the Maleta. They had to get used to their new names. They knew me only as Captain Knudsen. We had long practice drills until the new names slid off our tongues without getting stuck.

One of the mechanics' helpers, Schmidt by name, I had taken for a principal role in our strategy. He was slender, beardless and of delicate appearance, and could pass well enough in woman's clothes. Norwegian skippers often take their wives with them on their voyages. The captain's wife aboard the false Maleta would seem natural and tend to disarm suspicion and, besides, British naval officers are always courteous and considerate toward women. We had a blonde wig for Schmidt and an outfit of woman's clothes. One difficulty was his big feet. Not even a Norwegian skipper's wife had such feet. We arranged that the captain's wife should be slightly ill and remain seated during any possible search and have a rug thrown over her feet to keep them warm. The other difficulty was Schmidt's voice. It was too deep, and he knew no Norwegian. Well, the captain's wife can't talk because she has an awful toothache. A wad of cotton stuffed into Schmidt's cheek, and there was the swelling. He did know enough English to say "all right." We trained him to say a high-pitched "all right," something like a woman with a toothache. Except for that phrase, he was to keep his mouth shut. "She" was to be called Josephine.

The Sea Eagle under full sail.

There were delays, one of three weeks, to await the return of the Deutschland, our giant merchant submarine, which was on her way home from her famous trans-Atlantic cruise to America. By that time, of course, the real Maleta had sailed, and we changed the name of our ship to the Carmoe, painting out one name and substituting another. Then, when we were all set again, we picked up a Norwegian commercial paper and learned that the real Carmoe had just been seized by the British and taken to Kirkwall for examination. So, out with the paint again and on with another new name—the name of my sweetheart, Irma. But when we applied eraser and ink to our shipping papers and wrote in the name of Irma the ink blotted. I called the carpenter and had him smash all the bull's-eyes, windows, portholes and everything. Then we threw water in the cabins, in the drawers of chests, in the officers' bunks, water everywhere. I took my shipping papers and put each page between sheets of wet blotting paper, so that not only the name of Irma and the other entries we had changed were blotted, but every line. I even soused the log book in a bucket of water. Then I called the carpenter again and had him repair everything he had smashed. Now, if the British-er came aboard, he would say:

"Captain, you must have had a hard blow to get knocked about like this."

And I would growl, "Yes, everything is drenched, even my papers."

Two days later a southwest wind sprang up. The moment was at hand. Our 170-foot masts creaked. Our 9000 square feet of sail billowed before the wind. We sailed north under a full spread.

At a remote place along the docks at Wilhelmshaven, men appear one by one. By the light of a dimly burning lantern I gather my crew.

THIS is the first authentic account of the marvelous war-time cruise of the Seeadler, which sunk $25,000,000 worth of Allied shipping between December, 1916, and August, 1917. The story is recorded as told to Lowell Thomas, an American writer, by Count Felix von Luckner, commander of the raider. An American-built clipper ship, "The Pass of Balmaha," was transformed into a war cruiser under Luckner's direction, fitted with oil-burning engines of 1000 horsepower, and christened with the German words for Sea Eagle.

The narrative as here presented begins with the cruise. The book, which is published by Doubleday, Page & Co., devotes the first 12 chapters to an account of the adventurous early life of Count Luckner. He came of a wealthy noble family, ran away to sea when he was 13, served many years before the mast on sailing ships in all parts of the world, finally got into the German navy, and the outbreak of the war found him a lieutenant-commander and a favorite of the Kaiser's.

LONDON.

INDIA, land of ancient magic, was treated not long ago to a demonstration of the white man's modern magic. Lord Irwin, Viceroy, formally opened a great irrigation project just completed that almost overnight will convert vast tracts of arid waste land into flourishing wheat, rice and cotton fields.

Designed to keep off the specter of famine that has haunted India's entire history, the project—perhaps the greatest of its kind in the world—involves three rivers in the northwest provinces and one of the largest dams in the world. With the formal dedication Lord Irwin symbolized the realization, in part at least, of a dream that had begun to take shape in men's minds more than 50 years ago.

Most recently completed is the Sutlej River project. At a cost of $90,000,000 great dams have been constructed at four points on the Sutlej. The canals, distributaries and water courses leading away from the four lakes thus created will eventually have a total length of 47,900 miles, nearly twice the distance around the earth. And this is exclusive of the individual channels which each farmer will dig on his own land. These canals will water arid regions in three provinces —the Rajputana, the Punjab and the Bahawalpur. Last year the construction work on another great unit, the Lloyd Dam across the Nira at Batghar, with its tributary canals, was completed.

BECAUSE of its peculiar climate, India has suffered from famines almost since the beginning of its history. The Himalaya Mountains to the north keep off the winds that might otherwise sweep in from Asia and create atmospheric areas favorable to rain. India depends on the monsoons for its rainfall and when the monsoons fail—as they often do—there are large areas, now to be irrigated, in which sometimes a drop of rain does not fall for from one to four years.

With British rule the famines grew more terrible. Before British administration began, the population of India had remained more or less stable at 100,000,000 people. The British introduced various humanitarian measures of one sort and another—stringent laws that forbade infanticide and other barbaric practices. Swiftly the population mounted to 300,000,000.

And then came the most terrible of the famines. The first occurred in 1877. Hundreds of thousands of persons died of starvation. There was another serious famine in 1887.

But the most terrible years were 1899 and 1900. Literally millions of persons slowly perished for lack of food. Various estimates placed the total number of famine deaths in those two years between 20,000,000 and 35,000,000. And no figures could possibly convey the suffering that existed in the south, the north and northwest. The accounts of investigators and Government commissioners are as horrible as anything ever written.

England was at war with the Boers and could do little to alleviate the misery. Government agencies made some effort to dole out grain, but this was almost futile. Millions died before they could reach the Government relief stations. Moreover, in a previous famine, an effort had been made to ship in large quantities of grain, but it had only served to induce the native grain dealers to hoard their stores and in the end brought about more suffering than had existed before.

In one of the richest lands on earth children died in the dust of the streets when a handful of grain would have saved them. The civilized world recoiled in horror.

THE wise men of England said that it must not happen again. The Boer War was over and they looked about them. All over the earth the waste places were being reclaimed to care for an increasing population. India's deserts, situated near one of the most densely crowded spots of the world must be made green, too.

Lord Curzon's Irrigation Commission of 1901 began the outlining of three gigantic projects, so vast in their scope that they made earlier undertakings of a similar nature seem small by contrast. They are the Nira Canals project, in which the Lloyd Dam is a factor, the Triple Canals project and the Sutlej project.

Many millions of acres in India had previously been irrigated, but by a system of overflow which failed during a drouth. The Irrigation Commission realized that it would be necessary to tap rivers which at certain seasons bear the flood waters from the melting snows of the Himalayas. Most important of these rivers were the Indus and its principal tributaries, the Sutlej and the Chenab.

The Triple Canals project, completed many years ago, takes water by canal across country from the River Jhelum to the River Chenab, thence by another canal to the River Ravi, and from the Ravi by a third canal to the land known as the Lower Bari Doab (two rivers), for which it was needed. This elaborate routing was necessary because if the most conveniently accessible water for the thirsty land had been taken—that from the Upper Sutlej—there would not have been enough left for the Sutlej Valley project

NEXT the Nira Canals project approached completion with the construction of the Lloyd Dam. This dam holds up 24,000,000,000 cubic feet of water in a lake with an area of 15,000 square miles. It contains 3,000,000 more cubic feet of masonry than the Assouan Dam in Egypt. The total area commanded by the Nira Canals is 900,000 acres.

And now the Sutlej irrigation scheme, biggest of them all. During the current year alone it will add 1,700,000 acres to the total area for which irrigation facilities are provided and by 1929-30 the addition made will amount to 5,600,000 acres. In 1934, when, it is expected, the last shovelful of dirt will have been removed from the last canal, the irrigated area will be approximately 9,000,000 acres, or 14,000 square miles, an area nearly twice as large as the State of New Jersey.

Large-scale mechanical construction methods were used successfully for almost the first time in India. Nearby powerhouses, constructed for the purpose, furnished the power for mechanical excavators and other equipment.

One of the most remarkable features of the project is the canal which carries water into the native State of Bikaner, providing irrigation for 620,000 acres.

To prevent the loss of water by absorption this canal, which extends from the dam—or weir, as they are technically called—at Ferozepore for 84 miles, was entirely lined with concrete to a depth of seven inches. There are 33,500,000 square feet of lining in the job and the technical problems which it raised were complicated in the extreme. Great credit is given the Maharajah of Bikaner for his skill in financing this part of the project so that it would bring the most benefit to his territory, converting the northern portion from a desert waste into a verdant garden.

Map showing extent of irrigated area.

The six canals running into the almost rainless Bahawalpur State will irrigate 2,825,000 acres of country which, though lying along the river's edge, is high above the water except in the flood season. The Nawab who rules this State is the foremost Moslem Prince in Northern India. He claims descent from the Abbasid Caliphs, of whom the most famous was Harun-al-Raschid, immortalized in the Arabian Nights' tales. The water now being taken into this country will, it is believed, change his status from that of a moderately well-to-do ruler into that of the second richest in all India.

The main canals, of which there are 11 altogether, range up to 280 feet in width and 12 feet in depth. The earthwork excavation required to make them equals in quantity a mountain half a mile wide, a quarter of a mile high and a mile long. The first of the dams is at Ferozepore, the second some 60 miles downstream at Islam and the fourth about 100 miles still farther down at Panjnad, the confluence of the Chenab and Sutlej rivers.

The greatest flow through these canals will be during the summer because the river at that time is at its highest, due to the melting of the Himalayan snows. They will draw off at this time, when the irrigation season is in full swing, 48,000 cubic feet of water a second.

Those whose dream it is to see every desert in India growing with wheat and rice have an even more ambitious plan now. They hope to lengthen very considerably the irrigation season by impounding flood waters nearer their sources in the upper valleys of the Himalayas. A project is now being considered for erecting a dam 395 feet high across the Upper Sutlej, in a gorge at Bhakra, west of Simla. This would make a lake 40 miles long and store 120,000,000,000 cubic feet of water. It is estimated that this scheme would cost $55,000,000 and would irrigate 2,000,000 acres. This supply of water could be regulated for use as needed.

The present area which is to be irrigated—three times as great as that under any of the other irrigation projects—extends for a distance of 360 miles down the valley of the Sutlej River in an elongated diamond shape. Its average breadth is 60 miles.

IRRIGATION is expected to work a revolutionary change in this strip of country. Hitherto, during long periods of drouth, it has become a great desert of sun-baked mud, very sparsely populated. When the rains failed there was scarcely a green thing to be seen except the mango and one or two other trees which have tap roots extending for a hundred feet or more into the ground.

When drouth and famine came, even the most prosperous of the native farmers were gradually ruined. First, they disposed of their pots and pans, then the bangles and silver ornaments of the women, then hoes and spades, then bullocks and cattle, then the roof of the mud hut, then the wooden doors and finally their clothing, until nothing remained but the loin cloth.

In times of severe famine, whole families, having sold for a little grain everything they possessed, often wandered for days at the point of death in the hope of reaching a Government relief station. One by one as they straggled on the weaker members of the family died and were left where they had fallen. The mud desert surrounded them hopelessly—no food for hundreds of miles.

The hardier members of the family usually succeeded in reaching a town where Government relief was available. The men and sometimes the women, too, were given a few cents a day to keep them alive, in return for which they worked on whatever Government project might be under construction. They were ghastly, skeleton-like figures. After such an experience they rarely lived more than four or five years.

WITHIN from six months to two years almost this entire area is expected to be green with growing crops. The soil is known to be rich. Only water has been lacking. The peasant farmers will no longer work with the dread of another drouth —one, two, three years without rain, then famine.

A great influx of people from the densely crowded central provinces is certain to come very shortly. In areas previously irrigated the population has increased in a remarkably short time from three persons to the square mile to 300. Villages and towns will spring up. A measure of prosperity will come for the peasant farmers as well as for the governors of the states and the land owners.

And those who have financed the project will come in for a handsome profit, too. The most careful calculations indicate a return of more than 12 per cent from the water rates alone. When credit is given for the interest on the sale of waste lands owned by the Crown which will be made cultivatable by irrigation, the return is expected to reach 38 per cent. This expectation is not unduly optimistic, since one of the completed irrigation schemes, the Triple Canals project, yields 40 per cent on its capital cost. Within a short time the annual net return from the various irrigation projects is expected to reach $22,500,000.

The year 1934 will see the completion of the entire project. Much of the credit for the work must go to the Punjab Public Works Department, according to the London Times. Though the native rulers had long ago made some attempts at irrigation, it could scarcely have been carried out without the aid of British enterprise, British engineering skill and British finance.

It cannot be said with certainty that these irrigation projects will make India famineproof. But they will go a long way toward that end. There have been recent threats of the old specter. In 1921 in Malabar famine was imminent, but it never attained serious proportions. Further projects are in view. The tightly packed centers of population can expand into green fields where once there was only barren desert.

PORT HURON, Michigan.

SOME appreciable time before Armistice Day of last year the Rev. Dr. Russell H. Bready, pastor of the First Methodist Church of Port Huron, peered with pardonable pride upon the ample grounds of his charge and decided it would not be amiss if a flagpole were planted in a corner of the churchyard, a tall flagpole, from whose top might stream his country's banner.

Doctor Bready conferred with certain of his trustees regarding his patriotic desires, and so it was that one of these governing gentlemen took himself to the iron and steel yard of Mr. Jacob Goldman in anticipation of purchasing a tall, steel standard-bearer. But Jacob Goldman and his brother, Louis Goldman, who is concerned with Jacob in the business of the metal yard, refused to sell a flagpole to the First Methodist Church. Rather, they said, they would present the church with the pole; they would countenance no charges. The investigating trustee was highly pleased and returned to Doctor Bready and related his good fortune. That was not the first flagpole Jacob Goldman gave away—so he told me—nor was it the last, but it undoubtedly was one of them.

Now, Doctor Bready was much impressed by the Messrs. Goldman's gift. Long had he fervently hoped—and have no doubt that on certain occasions had he quite as fervently prayed—for a happy day when all creeds and races of men would inhabit the earth in perfect unity; when, burying their particular and prejudiced hatchets, they would look upon each other and upon each other's beliefs with respect and no small amount of tolerance. SOME appreciable time before Armistice Day of last year the Rev. Dr. Russell H. Bready, pastor of the First Methodist Church of Port Huron, peered with pardonable pride upon the ample grounds of his charge and decided it would not be amiss if a flagpole were planted in a corner of the churchyard, a tall flagpole, from whose top might stream his country's banner.

Doctor Bready conferred with certain of his trustees regarding his patriotic desires, and so it was that one of these governing gentlemen took himself to the iron and steel yard of Mr. Jacob Goldman in anticipation of purchasing a tall, steel standard-bearer. But Jacob Goldman and his brother, Louis Goldman, who is concerned with Jacob in the business of the metal yard, refused to sell a flagpole to the First Methodist Church. Rather, they said, they would present the church with the pole; they would countenance no charges. The investigating trustee was highly pleased and returned to Doctor Bready and related his good fortune. That was not the first flagpole Jacob Goldman gave away—so he told me—nor was it the last, but it undoubtedly was one of them.

Now, Doctor Bready was much impressed by the Messrs. Goldman's gift. Long had he fervently hoped—and I have no doubt that on certain occasions had he quite as fervently prayed—for a happy day when all creeds and races of men would inhabit the earth in perfect unity; when, burying their particular and prejudiced hatchets, they would look upon each other and upon each other's beliefs with respect and no small amount of tolerance. Long had the pastor wished for such things, long and ardently and strenuously. So he was tremendously pleased with the Goldman brothers' gift, and, musing, contemplated the situation.

Here was a fine flagpole presented to his Methodist Church by two men of the ancient Hebraic faith. Atop that slender column was designated to fly the banner under which men of all sects and colors, supposedly, were to work and live in smiling unity.

Well, considered the pastor, if two Jews could give his Protestant church its flagpole, then why couldn't men of other creeds and other races join in the ceremonies dedicating the offering? Doctor Bready didn't see any reason at all why they couldn't or why they shouldn't. He smiled, gayly, and he began to make his plans.

Now, said he, the Protestants are in this, so far, and so are the Jewish brethren. But how about the Catholics? Well, over in Flint is a priest of the Church of Rome, one Monsignor Patrick R. Dunigan, a particularly popular fellow what with his having served overseas as chaplain during the war. Why, then, shouldn't this same Father Dunigan—Father Dunigan willing—deliver the dedication address?

Pastor Bready continually felt rosier. A pleasing warmth suffused his body and his soul looked up. For wasn't he, he figured, about to do something which would further his most optimistic beliefs, and if only everybody felt the same way about these things as he did, why— And the preacher went right on planning.

There was the flag to be raised. Who would do that? Ah, a happy thought. There was in his town of Port Huron a certain Archibald Wayner, a Negro employed at the Port Huron Postoffice, a Negro who was a war veteran and therefore, considered Doctor Bready, a man rather fitting to be mixed up with a flag-raising ceremony. Wayner accepting, decided the pastor, Wayner would hoist the starry banner to the very tip-top of Jacob Goldman's flagpole.

SO PASTOR BREADY, his plans mapped out, got ready to put them into action. He announced his cherished thoughts to a few of his friends, told them what he was going to do, and before very long he was informed that inasmuch as he had already taken care of just about all the sects and races figuring in the amalgamation which is America, the American Legion of Port Huron was extremely desirous of presenting the Methodist Church with the necessary flag. Dr. Bready thought that would be very good, too.

And his congregation—the largest Methodist congregation in Port Huron and numbering well over a thousand—fell right in with the schemes of its spiritual leader. The Reverend Bready next announced that he considered the ideal time for the dedication of the pole and the raising of its flag to be the Sunday following Armistice Day, and the congregation thought the same way about it.

THEN Father Dunigan said he would be very happy to serve in the capacity desired of him, and Archibald Wayner likewise accepted. Everything seemed to be progressing quite as the tolerant pastor wanted it to, when, Bang! And Doctor Bready discovered the entire population of Port Huron didn't feel about things just as he did.

About the first indication of displeasure with the plans of the Methodist pastor occurred one day while Doctor Bready was at his church. Some wild-eyed individual, who evidently hadn't even taken time to put on his coat, for he made his appearance in his shirtsleeves, rushed up the steps of the Bready home and, summoning Mrs. Bready to the door, told her that if her husband didn't stop all this toleration business her husband would have to stop, as he'd be made to stop, and it would be a lot better for his physical appearance if he stopped it now and stopped it in a hurry. Whereupon the coatless gentleman beat a hasty retreat, neglecting to say just who he was.

And the storm of protests kept right on increasing.

Doctor Bready, sitting quietly in his study, would be called to the telephone, where he would be told anonymously that it would go hard with him if he had any Jews or Catholics or Negroes take part in a Protestant flagpole ceremony. Dr. Bready, opening his morning mail, would discover warm missives telling him he'd better watch out for himself if he tried to go on with this fool toleration idea. Dr. Bready, framing his next sermon, would be interrupted by men, and sometimes women, arriving in all their personal glory, and assuring him he wasn't about to do the right thing and that, if they were he, they'd certainly put an end to it.

AND it was not at all unusual for the pastor to receive the information that if he kept on with his heretical plans and brought them to their culmination he'd never have to preach again because he wouldn't be able to preach again, and so on and so forth, and all sorts of things to the general effect that if he wanted to retain his health he'd better stop this business right now.

It wasn't a peaceful affair that the peace-desiring pastor had got himself into. It seemed that he was gaining just the opposite of that which he cherished. But Bready wouldn't give up. He believed that, despite all this noise and fury, the majority of Port Huron's citizenry was behind him, he noted that the town's most representative citizens believed with him and stood for him, and the pastor went right on his way.

News of the threats delivered at the minister's door circulated around town. And the inevitable happened. A great rumor spread about to the general effect that the dissenting voice was raised by the Ku Klux Klan. The rumor increased, and the rumor was pretty well believed.

And so it was with no small surprise and a considerable amount of pleasure that, one evening, on opening a bundle delivered to him, Reverend Bready found a large American flag and an accompanying letter signed by someone who designated himself the "Exalted Cyclops, William Jennings Bryan Klan, No. 25, Realm of Michigan, of the Invisible Empire, Knights of the Ku Klux Klan."

In this note the Exalted Cyclops said something to the effect that he wanted it known his boys weren't trying to raise a disturbance about Dr. Bready's flagpole dedication, that his Klan didn't discriminate against anybody because of his religious beliefs, and that he wished the First Methodist Church would accept this flag.

So Dr. Bready advised the American Legion that he already had a flag, and the American Legion said that would be quite all right.

But the threats and remonstrances directed toward Dr. Bready didn't stop, and Dr. Bready didn't either.

FOR Dr. Bready felt his ideas getting bigger and better. Dr. Bready knew that if he chose to climb to the roof of his church, and if he then looked in the right direction, there, right across the St. Clair River, which laps at the docks of Port Huron, he could see the soil of the Dominion of Canada. And Dr. Bready knew that if he didn't want to go to the trouble of climbing to the roof of his church—a procedure which might have led to accident what with the church's steep roof, and an accident to Dr. Bready at that time would have pleased entirely too many people—Dr. Bready, if he didn't want to go in for roof climbing, knew he could walk a few blocks and see the Canadian shores and he wouldn't need binoculars.

And Dr. Bready had a new idea. As long as this dedication was to be for all races and creeds, why, thought he, shouldn't he make it international? So he decided he would. And a company of Canadian machine gunners was duly invited, the same accepting.

Sunday, November 14, 1926, dedication day, would soon be at hand. The 75-foot steel flagpole was delivered. It was set in the designated spot. And the rumble of discontent continued. But Reverend Bready was taking no chances with his inter-racial, non-sectarian, international flagpole. Each night a policeman stood his guard.

THE dedication day arrived, and with it some 10,000 persons as spectators. And the ceremony proceeded just as the pastor had planned it. While the great crowd which packed the grounds of the church, the surrounding streets and the windows of nearby houses looked and cheered, the Klan's flag, carried from the church to the flagstaff by George W. Howe, an 86-year-old veteran of the Civil War, was hoisted to the top of the Goldmans' pole by a Negro standing on the ground of the Protestant church, whereupon Father Dunigan delivered his dedicatory address.

Then buglers sounded retreat, a Salvation Army band struck up the Star Spangled Banner, a detachment of mounted police swung around and started down the street, and after them marched a detachment of United States regulars, followed by a company of King George's machine gunners, and the parade was on its way. It may be noted that the Canadian officers marched on American soil with their sidearms, a most unusual occurrence.

And so Pastor Bready's flagpole was dedicated with great success before a crowd as inter-everything as were the principals in the ceremony inter-everything. The Reverend Bready felt he had made a pretty fair start on his tolerance crusade, and he likewise felt he ought to keep pounding away while the iron was hot.

So he kept on. He straightway organized a society in which he planned that for every Protestant taken in, a Catholic and a Jew would be enrolled.

Last September the Reverend Dr. Bready was called to the Trinity Methodist Church of Cincinnati, the most important Methodist post, so I am told, in that city. And despite all the dire threats issued against him, investigation discloses that he mounts his pulpit each Sunday morning on his own two legs.

SAN FRANCISCO.

MRS. GENEVIEVE TOOMEY TEAL PADDLEFORD is once more looking out upon life through the iron lattice work of a jail house. This eminent and one-time beautiful adventuress who has found it so difficult to get everything she wants and still stay at large is being held this time under charges of fraud preferred by a Carmel shopkeeper.

The circumstances of this alleged fraud, as set forth by the complainant, sound like the repetition of an old, old story. It raises memories of New York, London, Vienna and Lucerne and sundry other places. Only the setting, the minor characters and the jail house—a musty old structure at Salinas—are different.

According to Mrs. Lois Dibrell, the shopkeeper, Mrs. Paddleford established a line of credit with her by representing that she had money in a San Francisco bank. It was only after Mrs. Paddleford had indulged herself in a typical spending orgy that the shopkeeper found out this wasn't a fact. And it was not until then that the shopkeeper discovered her customer was really Mrs. Paddleford, for up to that time the lady had been living and functioning under the name of Mrs. Grace Potter. As Mrs. Potter she had come to Carmel and ingratiated herself with the artistic and literary colony there and as Mrs. Potter she had bought and bought until it hurt—though whom it hurt the hardest is still a matter of conjecture.

When the jail doors clicked behind her and Mrs. Paddleford began to shed her disguise, something of her remarkable life story came out. Most of what she told and a great deal of what she didn't tell had already been recorded on police blotters, private detective memoranda and the blacklists of hotels and department stores from Death Valley to the Danube. Taken together it had the formidable aspect of a saga—a monstrous epic of plural marriage and divorce, grand larceny and petty larceny, suspected blackmail and extortion, and an almost pathological extravagance. Involved in her career were numerous husbands, accomplices, minor assistants and a foster-daughter, who shared part of Mrs. Paddleford's adventures and at least one jail sentence.

MRS. PADDLEFORD first came out of the West and rode into New York in 1905 under the name of Margaret Busby. Even at that time there were several picturesque happenings behind her. She had married William C. Toomey, private secretary of James J. Hill, divorced him and brought suit for breach of promise against Dr. Joseph W. Bettingen, a prominent St. Paul physician, before she decided that life in the East would offer a wider scope for her talents.

In New York she became a chorus girl and worked in several productions. Then she met Ben Teal, a prominent and successful theatrical producer. They were married late in 1906 and their troubles, which ended for Teal only with his death in 1917, began almost immediately. Life became one long and harried battle with jewelers, modistes and hotel keepers, for Mrs. Teal always bought what she wanted, whether she expected to have the money to pay for it or not.

But they must have had some sort of fairly regular life together, for there are persons in New York who recall that Mrs. Teal worked up quite a reputation as an entertainer in the semi-bohemian circles of the city and even acquired a certain prestige among more substantial people, who evidently took her for what she seemed to be—a charming, well-poised woman of the world. Later a son was born to them, of whom Mrs. Teal appeared to be very fond.

Such social ambitions as Mrs. Teal might have been nurturing were blasted, however, when, in 1908, she ran afoul of the law in connection with the Helen Kelly-Frank J. Gould divorce case. She was charged and found guilty of offering Mabel McCausland $600 to say that she had seen Gould in a woman's apartment. She was sentenced to 10 months on Blackwell's Island.

Ben Teal spent a small fortune to save his wife from this degradation but without avail. When she came out she resumed her activities and her extravagance and he still indulged her.

Shortly afterward Mrs. Teal decided she wanted a companion for little Ben, her son, who was growing up. This was where Agnes Fitzgerald came into the story.

Agnes was an "iron basket baby." The name was derived from the receptacle outside the oaken door of the foundling home where she was left. She had never known her real mother.

When she was about 10 years old Agnes, with the other orphans, was one day painfully scrubbed up, dressed in stiffly starched clothes and herded by the sisters at the home into the austere front parlor. Someone wished to adopt a child.

This someone proved to be a gorgeously gowned woman, whose fingers were covered with diamonds and from whose neck was suspended a rope of pearls, and who looked at the little girls through a lorgnette. With the slightly bored but undeniably handsome woman was a little boy dressed in velveteen. Suddenly the little boy darted forward.

"Mother, I want this one," he said, grasping Agnes' hand. "She has such funny teeth."

That was how little Agnes Fitzgerald was transformed into Cynthia Teal. She went to live at the Ritz with her foster-parents and little Ben. Her every wish was gratified by her generous foster-father.

BUT seven years later Cynthia declared in a New York courtroom that her foster-mother had systematically trained her in the arts of fraud and blackmail, had "cajoled, dragged, drugged and lashed her," in order that she, Cynthia, might be used to the best advantage in keeping Mrs. Teal supplied with the luxuries she craved. At that time the foster-mother was behind bars in Vienna.

Before this came to pass, however, life in the Teal menage had gone from bad to worse. Although the doting theatrical producer wasted his entire fortune in keeping his wife out of trouble with exasperated bill collectors, she apparently showed but little gratitude. They finally separated. Teal brought suit for alienation of affection against August Schneider, head waiter at the Astor Hotel, but died, in 1917, before the action came to trial.

Mrs. Teal's next important move was to gather up her belongings and her two children and disappear into the West. When she reappeared she was the wife of Dr. George E. Paddleford, a wealthy Los Angeles oil operator.

The Paddlefords separated as the Teals had done, and Mrs. Paddleford, with Cynthia Teal, who was now a grown-up, good-looking girl, started out to procure in the dubious paths of adventure such funds as her husband denied her, and they picked New York.

According to the story told by Cynthia, Mrs. Paddleford decided that Cynthia could be sold off to some easy mark of a husband for a sum that would put them both in clover. She picked on an Englishman named Edward Jeffries Naughton.

"Jeffries was introduced to me," said Cynthia, "by Lord Victor Paget at a tea dance. He was good looking and smartly dressed and he was known in the crowd in which we were still able to mingle as an Australian 'cattle king.' He had a friend, Raymond Brownlow, another cattle king. They invited us to dinner at their apartment in Fifty-fifth street. Mrs. Paddleford accepted. After that Mrs. Paddleford lost no chance to fling me at this man's head."

AS EVENTS rolled on Cynthia began to suspect that Naughton was far from being a cattle king or any other kind of king.

One day at luncheon in a Park avenue restaurant, where Cynthia was alone with Naughton and Brownlow, she drank a cocktail, became dizzy and woke up in her room at the Plaza as Mrs. Edward Jeffries Naughton.

According to her story she refused to believe it, but Naughton presented a marriage certificate. Mrs. Paddleford then showed up, flew into a fake fury and demanded $25,000 from Naughton. The Australian "cattle king" and the "millionaire's wife" had tried to dupe each other, with results that bordered close to a farce.

After that unsuccessful maneuver Mrs. Paddleford took Cynthia and started on the grand tour of Europe which was to be punctuated by sojourns in a pair of jails. At Vienna Mrs. Paddleford was arrested, charged with defrauding a number of Viennese merchants. After her incarceration it was discovered that shopkeepers in Lucerne and Paris had similar charges against her.

Her attorney communicated with Dr. Paddleford, but he washed his hands of his wife and refused to pay out a cent. After a term in jail at Lucerne, Mrs. Paddleford was free once more.

Meanwhile, Cynthia had returned to the United States and brought action to have herself released from Mrs. Paddleford's guardianship.

"I, who was born in a charity ward and left a foundling in a public orphan asylum, never rode in so ordinary a vehicle as a taxicab until a few months ago," she said. "From the age of 10 I had my own motor, my own maid, my own governess.

"And yet, because the woman who adopted me craved money so passionately that she would lie, cheat, blackmail, conspire and even steal, I face life now no more fit to grapple with it than a baby of six months."

EVEN so, she announced her intention of making her way honestly, and went to work as a telephone operator.

Dr. Paddleford also made it clear that he was through, once and for all, with the woman, who, he claimed, had defrauded him before and after marriage. In his suit for divorce, he claimed that she had married him under an assumed name, had told him nothing of having served a term on Blackwell's Island or of having been married to Toomey. The decree was made final in July, 1923.

Cynthia, however, was not so successful in keeping an ocean between herself and her mother. In 1924, when Mrs. Paddleford was again hauled up by swindled shopkeepers who wanted their money, the Associated Press carried this account of the affair:

"Zurich, Switzerland, Nov. 20.—Two women arrested at a hotel here on suspicion of swindling have been identified, the police announce, as Mrs. Genevieve Paddleford, divorced wife of a California oil man, and her daughter, who have been involved in a number of police incidents in Vienna and Switzerland during the last two years. They were registered as Miss Healey of London and Miss Clay of California, but carried passports under the name of McKenney, mother and daughter."

Then again in 1926 a dispatch from London announced that two women giving their names as Margaret Allen McCormick, 40, and Marylon Dorothy Cynthia McCormick, 20, charged with obtaining $500 worth of goods under false pretense, had been sentenced to deportation at the conclusion of their incarceration. The dispatch went on to say that, as the women were being led away to a police van, a Scotland Yard operative identified them as Mrs. Margaret Teal Paddleford, the "American adventuress," and her adopted daughter, Cynthia Paddleford.

About six months ago Mrs. Paddleford appeared in New York—alone, looking resigned and seeking someone to publish her memoirs. She hadn't written them at the time, but evidently she now proposes to make the most of her present imprisonment.

For while the other prisoners in musty old Salinas Jail howl their protests, she picks away incessantly at a typewriter.

TALES OF REAL DOGS

JACK: The Setter Whose Master Made Him Famous.

By Albert Payson Terhune

HE WAS an English setter, an inspired bird dog and gifted with more brain than is the average human. He was lucky, too, in his owner, H. M. Jackson, editor of the Marianna (Arkansas) Courier-Index, who immortalized the dog in one of the most delightful biographies it has been my good luck to read.

The setter's name was Jack. He was raised and trained by an Arkansas Sheriff, Arthur Cotter. When Cotter died, Jackson bought the four-year-old dog and brought him to Marianna to live. Jackson describes thus his purchase's life there:

"I became the owner of Jack. That is, I paid for him and was responsible for his conduct and his dog tax and at intervals I paid his board bill. In truth, however, he became a town dog. In the six years I owned him he did not spend six days or nights in my yard.

"He made the Courier-Index office his general headquarters, or his legal residence, but he spent the major portion of his time visiting about, getting acquainted and making new friends. If he found a home that suited his esthetic taste, if there were children to pet and fondle him and if the food was to his liking, he honored the family by adopting them for a season.

"Jack was not a moocher or a star boarder. He believed in paying his way as best he could. There aren't really many useful household duties a dog can perform, but Jack's smart brain invented a few simple and helpful domestic services which, according to his method of calculation, were adequate compensation for his bed and board.

"For instance, he observed that at intervals some member of the household went to the woodpile and gathered an armful of wood and took it to the kitchen. Without any coaxing, Jack would pick up a stick and maneuver it into the kitchen and place it in the woodbox. This became a fixed habit with him.

"Then he developed into an excellent nurse. He was fond of children. He liked their pranks and their petting. He was patience personified. I never saw him exhibit anger toward children. He had no use for other dogs, with the exception of his teammate—a big, strong, rangy pointer named Guy. They were real buddies and boon companions."

Jackson goes on to tell how this companionship between Jack and Guy was tested and proven stanch. One day, as Jack was on his way to the Courier-Index office, a huge and battle-scarred bulldog attacked him.

The setter put up a gallant fight, but the bulldog was too heavy and too tough for him. The combat was spectacular, but presently it became too one-sided for Jack's taste.

Accordingly, Jack turned tail and ran. He ran fast, and he kept on running. He was not merely retreating. He was running with a very definite object. He did not halt until he reached the yard were Guy, the big pointer, was drowsing in the sun. Up to Guy he dashed, touching noses with him.

Instantly the pointer was on his feet and eagerly alert. At Jack's side he galloped back to the street where lived the bulldog. Pointer and setter attacked the bulldog, one from in front and one on the flank. Furiously they assailed the giant, tearing at him with ferocious vigor, and presently getting him down. Thrashed to a standstill, the bulldog was glad, at last, to limp away, more dead than alive.

The local butcher, a man named Dickey, was fond of Jack, and Jackson opened a charge account with him for the dog. In other words, whenever Jack should appear at the butcher's, Dickey was to give him 10 cents' worth of soup meat. The scheme worked well for a while. Then, one month, the dog's meat bill was $7.

Jackson resented having to pay so much for his pet's food, and he made inquiries. He learned that Jack had fallen into the habit of visiting the butcher's shop several times a day, and of getting far more meat than he really needed or wanted. So the charge account was stopped.

But this cutting off of supplies did not bother the setter. Jack got his wise brain to working, and he hit on a scheme presently for a continuance of his former unlimited meat diet. Jackson's own words are better than any of mine to tell the story of this diplomatic stunt. He writes:

"Jack accompanied Mr. Dickey to his home and made the acquaintance of the butcher's wife and daughters and son. He began bringing in the stovewood. He even tolerated the other dogs in the Dickey home, and in course of time would allow them to lie in the sun on the front porch with him.

"He arose early—at break of day—and accompanied Mr. Dickey to the market. He slipped in when the door was unlocked and opened. He went back to the meat department, sat on his haunches, extended his right forepaw and, with big, pleading, soulful eyes, begged for his morning meal.

"He got it from that day till his death. Just how much Jack cost the Dickey family I don't know. They became devoted to him. They petted and pampered him and doctored him and humored him and made the last two years of his life comfortable.

"He died in his cool dirt bed in the Dickey back yard. He lay down, fell asleep and failed to wake up.

"Jack is dead. To most readers this simple announcement will mean little. But to those who, in the years past, followed old Jack afield and had the rare privilege of shooting birds over this perfect English setter, news of his death will bring at least a touch of sadness.

"Jack had a large head, the contour of which showed he carried a big brain. He was always amusing and interesting to me. His expressive brown eyes could almost talk. I know they could plead. I have seen them register joy and sorrow and pain."

The SPY

BY

Llewellyn Hughes

"If you remain in Brussels an hour longer," she said, "you will be shot."

ABOUT midnight—two weeks after the taking of Chateau-Thierry—an airplane was removed from a hangar outside Avesnes-le-Comte and hauled to the far side of the landing field. An R. E. bus, new in design as she was in service, the night moisture rolled off her wings like mist from the back of a gull. After tuning her up, her mechanics were marched back to the airdrome.

It was then that four men, waiting nearby, came slowly toward her. Two of them were officers attached to the American General Staff. Another was a Flight Lieutenant. The fourth member of the party was not a soldier. He was a French peasant, dressed in a blouse and ragged trousers. Earlier in the day he had been brought from Bourmont, and great had been the secrecy. Only Colonel Talbat, Major Borden and Flight Lieutenant Colbridge knew this man's name and the nature of his business.

Major Borden was talking to him: "It's not too late—even now." His voice, fraught with anxiety, rose entreatingly. "This is an unnecessary risk. Why not return the way you came? Through the lines."

The Frenchman appeared not to hear.

Colonel Talbat interposed: "He knows best what he wants to do, Borden. Surely one way is as risky as another."

The Major did not share that opinion. "He might land on top of one of their batteries," he said. "They'd shoot him on sight. He wouldn't have the ghost of a chance to produce his passport."

"Colbridge knows the country," advanced the Colonel.

The airman nodded. "There's a big gun to the left of Guise," he said, "and, if they're firing, I can tell by the flash. I ought to be able to see the church, too, though it's misty."

"Favieres," said Major Borden, laying his hand on the peasant's shoulder, "I guess you're all set to go this way. Well, good luck to you. I think you know how much we appreciate what you've done for us."

Favieres looked up and smiled. "Oui," he said doubtfully. It was a roguish smile, but in it, as in his eyes, lay unquestionable fearlessness. He bowed to the Colonel, then vaulted into the plane.

The propeller kicked over twice before Major Borden sprang clear. The stillness of night was instantly whipped into a fiendish roar that blotted out the boom of distant artillery. Gliding swiftly over the ground, the plane vanished.

The R. E. bus was on her way. One of her passengers was to leave her in midair. The other—if the gods of war smiled on him—was to bring her back.

Walking back to the car, Major Borden shuddered. "That takes courage," he said.

Colonel Talbat agreed. "Just the same," he added, "I'm suspicious. Been so all along."

"I could tell you all about him," said the Major. "I am under oath not to give him away."

"See here, Borden. The Heinies aren't fools. They've got a pretty accurate check on every man, woman and child in those occupied territories. You know the precision of the German method. It was one thing for Favieres to get through to us, and the information he gave us proved correct"——

"It was invaluable."

"Granted. But, when he suggested going back, I began to smell a rat. Shall I tell you exactly what I think, Borden? We won't see that bird again. I guess you know what that means."

"What?"

"Favieres—is a German spy!"

THE R. E. bus was roaring like a virago. Colbridge took her up 10,000 feet before he shoved her nose east. They crossed two lines of Chinese lanterns, insecurely tied, waving a moment before drooping into nothingness—they rode over the German batteries, wicked with bursts of yellow light that seemed to spit up at them, then ran into clouds that hid the world and all its madness. When they pulled out of it the fanfare of war-crazed men was behind.

It commenced to rain. Turning north, Colbridge came down to 5000 feet, then lower, found his bearings and climbed again. Shortly afterward, he banked and headed west. Once again, far in the distance, the fact of war was evidenced: Canadian guns facing east.

"All ready?" Colbridge shouted through the tube. "I think this is Guise—just ahead of us."

He shut off the engine, went into a spiral, straightened out, and came flat at 1000 feet over a black countryside. Tracer bullets came up in a pyramid.

"Quick! The searchlights"——

Favieres obeyed. He climbed out of the cockpit and jumped. Colbridge saw that he was clear, and went on, dangerously low, his object being to cover the Frenchman's landing. All at once, he shot upward. Now the searchlights were operating, and machine-gun fire and anti-aircraft batteries peppered at him. For a while, he was held there, caught like a crazy moth, but he dived and spun, rose, climbed out of range, and lived—like many of his brothers—to die another day.

Favieres, with nothing worse than a bad shaking, reached a deserted field.

Down a nearby road came a patrol—the Unter-offizier bellowing like a bull. They were on to the game, of course, and would undoubtedly question him with a machine gun. He took a small trenching tool from his pocket and dug a hole in the soft ground. In it he hastily buried the voluminous folds of his parachute. The tool he threw into the stream.

There was a wood to his left. He reached it, bored in some little distance, and flung himself into a thicket of ferns.

The wood, like the field he had landed in, was unfamiliar to him. There had been no wind—they had made sure of that before starting—and consequently he had dropped almost perpendicularly. Therefore, Colbridge, for all his sense of locality, must have erred.

TRUCKS and supply trains were going up to the guns not more than a quarter of a mile away. If that road was fringed by poplars, it would be the Saint Quentin-Vervins highway; and he'd be five kilometers too far to the south.

The thing to do was to reach the road, and a burst of machine-gun fire to his right hurried the decision. He branched off to the left until the dark lifted directly ahead of him. From where he stood, he could see a pale thread winding westward and north. It was lined with broken stumps, tall and spectral. Once they had been leafy poplars. Now they merely testified to the accuracy of the allies' big guns.

He crossed the road and, making use of every bit of cover, went north, bearing a little to the east, whenever he could conveniently do so. Once he passed close to a group of French cottages. He could see into one of the rooms. Some artillery officers were standing by a piano, singing lustily in high tenor voices.

Luck was with him. He got his exact location by the distant outlines of the Nonancourt Chateau, and—favoring his wretched appearance—it continued to rain.

Toward 6 in the morning a filthy, bedraggled peasant trudged into Guise. The orange-and-green posters, headed by Il Est Strictement Defendu, were peeling from the walls to which they had been pasted. Wet German flags hung from the windows. The word Kommandantur seemed everywhere.

Favieres was trembling with cold. Crossing the railway line, he was halted by two members of the German police. He showed his passport and identity card, but shook his head when they questioned him about his presence outside at an hour when, as he knew, all inhabitants of occupied territory were supposed to be indoors. He was arrested, thrust into the civil prison in the town hall.

At 11 o'clock he was brought before the Kommandant, Major Kumpfe, whose reddish hair, above a pair of pale blue eyes, bristled with extraordinary rigidity.

Favieres spoke in excellent German. "Major Kumpfe," he said, "you see before you a man who needs a hot bath, a change of raiment, and—if you have such a thing—a glass of brandy."

Major Kumpfe's monocle fell to the length of its black silk ribbon. Dismissing the corporal, he leaned forward.

"Leutnant von Kedor?" he inquired.

"I am," admitted the prisoner, and he recounted his adventures, omitting no detail. "The fool landed me south of the Saint Quentin road—outside Ribemont, as near as I could judge. That patrol of yours acted like frightened geese. What's the use of firing at shadows? Waste of good bullets, Herr Major. Besides, there ought to be less hysteria in the army. I might have been shot."

"We'd almost given you up. General von Rogge expected you to come through the lines north of Ypres."

"This was the better way."

"Well?"

Von Kedor grinned. "Ja—everything went the way we expected. I've got information that will enable us to smash the Americans. They fell for Jules Favieres—hook, line and sinker. Why, what do you think? They even expect me to return."

Kumpfe's appreciation of this was a series of grunts—his particular form of laughter. "With more of our maps?" he winked.

"Exactly. But come, Herr Major—I'm hungry. And it is important I reach Brussels before night."

About 8 o'clock that evening a Lieutenant of the Sixth Uhlan Regiment of the Thirteenth German Army Corps entered the hotel occupied by General Baron von Rogge and his staff in Brussels. The orderly who admitted him to the drawing room of the suite supplied the news that Baron von Rogge was entertaining the famous Fraulein Munter.

Such, however, was the importance of his arrival in Brussels that Baron von Rogge left his guests and came out to see him.

Von Kedor clicked his heels.

"So. Then you managed to come back to us, Herr Leutnant?"

"Yes, Excellenz."

"Good." Von Rogge regarded him in silence. Then he said: "You have news for us?"

VON KEDOR lowered his voice: "I have the plans—everything down to the last detail—of the latest British gun."

The General exhaled a whiff of champagne. "You carry these with you?"

"Yes, Excellenz. That is why I came here—at once. But, more important still," he went on, "I have information that an American offensive is to be delivered in front of Dormans within the next two weeks."

General Baron von Rogge visibly stiffened. "Come in here, Herr Leutnant." In a side room he picked up a speaking tube.

"Hauptmann Nolte," he commanded.

That officer, making his appearance, almost filled the doorway as he stood there in salute. He was a huge man, known as the most brilliant officer on Von Rogge's staff.

His greeting of Von Kedor was characteristically brusque.

"How did you get back?" he asked.

"By airplane."

"So! What consideration did they require for that courtesy?"

"They expect me to return."

"You—or Favieres?"

Von Kedor smiled. "I mean Favieres."

"You convinced them—you were working—in their interest?"

"Positively."

"Good. Let me see—these plans—you have brought."

A moment later General von Rogge again spoke into the tube, requesting Colonel Schafer and Lieutenant-Colonel Waldhofer to report to him at once.

The conference lasted half an hour; then Von Rogge rose. "Herr Leutnant," he said, "permit me to congratulate you. And now—a glass of wine to your health. There is a friend of yours in the next room. I am sure she will be glad to see you again."

In the dining room, behind Fraulein Munter—a brunette of three and twenty, possessed of a lively, vivid beauty—hung the imperial flag of Germany.

"Ah! Leutnant von Kedor!" The actress extended a white, symmetrical arm across the table. Gallantly, he raised her fingers to his lips.

"And where have you been, you bad boy?" she demanded, touching his arm playfully.

"Does that mean you have missed me?"

She pouted. "I insist on being told instantly. Is it a secret—or a rival?"

"Both," he replied enigmatically.

"That means a rival." Her eyes danced ominously.

"Then you have missed me?"

"I shall not tell you."

GENERAL BARON VON ROGGE called for silence. Rising, he proposed the health of the Berlin favorite, Fraulein Munter. It was riotously drunk, and she made a pert little speech in reply. Then, owing to an arranged theater party, the dinner came to an end. The unexplained withdrawal of Von Rogge and Captain Nolte reduced that party to four. Their places were taken by Von Kedor and an artillery Captain named Boettger.

Claire Munter attracted considerable attention as she entered the box. She bowed to several acquaintances, all officers. The women she ignored.

Von Kedor, too, nodded here and there. But it was not until the close of the first act that he returned the recognition of a Major of the Forty-seventh Infantry Brigade—a lean, pale, bespectacled fellow in the stalls near the far aisle. This officer, bored with the play, left during the first intermission.

When the curtain fell on the close of the second act, Von Kedor, obtaining Fraulein Munter's permission, strolled into the bar and from there went outside and casually crossed over to the Cafe Madrid.

Sitting at one of the tables, he ordered brandy. A tall, bespectacled man hailed him. Von Kedor rose and clicked his heels.

"Sie sehen gut aus," complimented Major Bertram.

"Ja, I'm pretty fit, thanks. And you?"

"Blood pressure normal," was the answer. Then, in a most bored manner, he said: "Well, how goes the enemy?"

"The Yanks look formidable," Von Kedor replied carelessly. "They've got over a million men in the field against us—already."

"What of the Canadians—the British?"

"Stronger than ever. Masses of new artillery."

"I'm afraid, Von Kedor." Major Bertram's expression was wry.

"Yes—so am I." Both officers nodded agreement of thought. "But I think we've got a good chance of smashing the Yanks. They may drive toward Dormans."

"Then we will give them a hard fight, because"—Major Bertram gave the impression of mumbling to himself—"we are going to attack along a four-mile front at Nogent."

The Lieutenant appeared disinterested.

"Perhaps—this week."

Before Von Kedor reached the theater the third and final act had commenced, and his entrance to the box was apparently noticed by no one. A moment later, however, Fraulein Munter motioned him to a chair beside her.

"I am sure," she whispered, "the Cafe Madrid is much more entertaining."

He met her eyes without flinching. "How did you know I had been to the Cafe Madrid?"

"I didn't. I merely said it was probably more entertaining than this stupid play."

It was then that Von Kedor realized that her interest in him was far more subtle than he had imagined.

She had risen. "Let us go," she decided. "I am quite bored." She motioned to Captain Boettger, murmured a word to the three junior officers, and went outside. Von Kedor, placing her cloak about her shoulders, was rewarded by the pressure of warm, sensitive fingers.

In the taxi, Boettger sat stiff as a ramrod—and as inarticulate.

"I'm afraid, Herr Leutnant, you are somewhat restless in Brussels?" she began.

"On the contrary, I am most contented, Fraulein. Particularly when I am"——

"When you are with me?"

"I confess that was what I intended saying."

She turned to her left. "Leutnant von Kedor has all the conversational aptness of a Frenchman. Don't you think so, Hauptmann Boettger?"

The Captain reserved his opinion.

"So," she continued, "you have been away, Herr Leutnant?"

"You know I have."

"But I am not permitted to know where?"

He glanced at Boettger. The man maintained a rigid formality.

"On the Somme? And there you saw fighting?"

"More than was good for my soul, Fraulein Munter."

She considered this. "I am informed you are very brave, Leutnant von Kedor."

"Brave men invariably die a sudden death."

"You have a premonition?"

"Perhaps," he said, "it was the play."

"But that was a comedy."

"Yes."

"Then what do you mean?"

"Death is a comedy, Fraulein."

HER manner was gay. "I am sorry you rate death so lightly." Again she addressed Boettger: "Herr Hauptmann—what do you think of him?"

The man remained silent.

"Leutnant von Kedor," she decided, "you are most morbid. Perhaps you have dined too well. You may, indeed, be suffering from indigestion." Claire Munter laughed. "Permit me to suggest an excellent thing for it. Very unbecoming, perhaps, to an officer of the celebrated Sixth Uhlans—but really quite efficacious."

Her eyes were suddenly brilliant. For a brief second, they flashed in his direction.

"You should chew gum," she teased. "Preferably American gum!"

The sinews of his arms and legs stiffened. His palms grew moist.

Her raillery continued. "Have you ever tried it?" she wanted to know.

"No, Fraulein."

"No?" She appeared quite surprised. "Well, then—I think you should. It may give you a healthier impression of—of death." And her laughter caused even Captain Boettger to vent his amusement in a few staccato guffaws.

The message—for now Von Kedor was convinced of it—confused him. But one thing was certain: Claire Munter wasn't in Brussels simply by accident. To question her would be stupid. In any case, he could do no more than treat the matter as a joke.

The parties given in the mansion on the Rue Londres were largely attended. Generally, Fraulein Munter sang and danced for her guests, while her servants passed a continual round of liquid refreshments.

It had been Von Kedor's intention to leave early. Claire Munter had decided otherwise. Indeed, it seemed as if the little Berlin danseuse had again lost her heart—this time to a young Lieutenant.

This became so evident that one by one the officers made their departure. Dismissing her servants, she breathed a sigh of relief.

"All this has been frightfully strenuous," she told him. "Really, you are a most difficult man, Leutnant von Kedor."

He paled. "You have been asked to spy on me?"

She leaned back in her chair. "I confess they expected me to charm you."

"They?"

"Luckily, they have confidence in me—or else my own plans would fall rather flat." She looked at him. "I am your friend."

Von Kedor made her a bow.

She smiled. "You were expected to fall in love with me."

"Perhaps," he said very quietly, "I have."

As though she had worn a mask and had now quite suddenly thrown it aside—her face was revealed as exquisitely grave.

"So highly do they rate the witchery of my eyes that they informed me of it—this evening."

"They?" he inquired again.

"Von Rogge—and Hauptmann Nolte."

The telephone rang, and she rose to answer it. "This," she said, "is one or the other of them—or both. Should they insist on coming up here, I want you to flatter their belief in my powers. Please believe that it is most important."

She then spoke into the telephone. "Yes? Certainly—of course, he is here. Please come up."

Turning to Von Kedor, her eyes grew tender. "Hauptmann Nolte," she explained. "So let us sit close together on the couch."

"I don't understand."

An urgent note crept into her voice. "Please do as I tell you," she said quietly. "You are, let us say, slightly intoxicated by the champagne—or by the lady."

SPELLBOUND, he continued to gaze at her. "By the lady," he said, obeying her instructions.

On an ungovernable impulse, drawing her to him, he kissed her lips with an ardor certainly not born of acting. He felt, rather than saw, her objection to it and regretted his action. But—to his utter amazement—his heart leaped up to meet something in the unfathomable depths of her eyes, and he kissed her again and again.

"I do love you, Fraulein Munter. It were far better I didn't."

All the color had left her cheeks, but she had no time for protest. The door swung open, and Captain Nolte stood there observing the scene with—it seemed—little favor.

Von Kedor rose unsteadily to his feet and saluted.

"I am sorry, Fraulein—I interrupted you." Nolte spoke trenchantly, snapping off his words. "I had no idea—you were so engrossed. Pray forgive me."

She laughed. "Herr Leutnant was just leaving," she said.

"So I observed. Sit down—Von Kedor. The formalities—to my rank—may be dispensed with. It is obvious you need the support—of a chair."

"A glass of wine, Hauptmann Nolte?"

"Thanks—no. I have but a moment. They told me Leutnant von Kedor was here. I bring a message to him."

"Shall I leave you?"

"Yes."

She went into the next room.

"The plans you brought us—have been verified, Herr Leutnant. A facsimile—was sent through—by carrier pigeon."

"I am glad."

"Unfortunately, Herr Leutnant, the plans for that particular gun were discarded by the British—two days before you left Bourmont."

Von Kedor expressed surprise. "They were given me in perfect faith by Major Borden."

"Is it possible you are mistaken in Major Borden? That he purposely gave you those plans—knowing them to be—worthless?"

"No, Herr Hauptmann."

Captain Nolte bowed. "Von Kedor," he said, "you may be relieved to know

The Little Mashed Can Which Told the Story

What a Barograph Is and How It Records the Heights Attained by Airmen.

By a Member of the Staff of the St. Louis Post-Dispatch Sunday Magazine

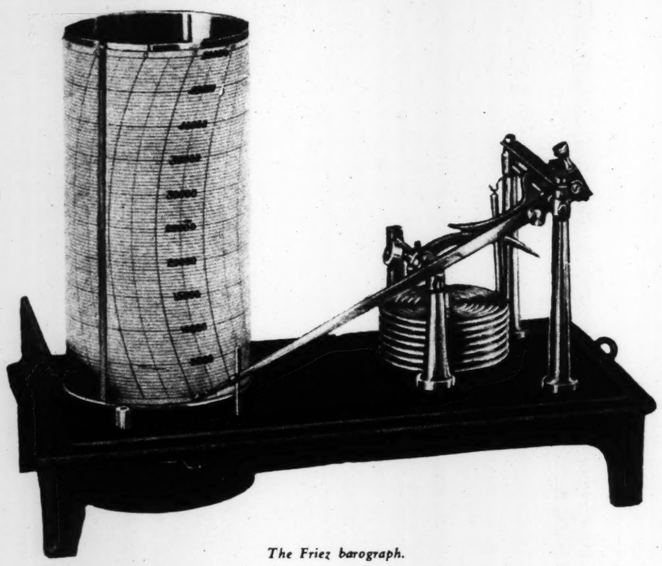
ATMOSPHERIC pressure, working upon sensitive yet sturdy instruments, wrote the record of the last balloon flight of Capt. Hawthorne C. Gray, telling the story of the ascent into the upper atmosphere more accurately than could the aeronaut have related it had he survived his venture into the almost unknown heights eight miles above the earth's surface.

Scientists of the Bureau of Standards at Washington have completed their study of these instruments and they announce that Captain Gray on his last flight attained a height of 42,470 feet, nearly 4000 feet higher than the present record. By a remarkable coincidence, this is exactly the same height reached in a previous attempt to break the world's record, disallowed because Captain Gray did not come down with his balloon but descended by means of a parachute.

When the Scott Field engineering officer "weighed off" in his 80,000 cubic foot balloon on November 1, he was certain, from the cold figures in the case, that he could go far beyond the altitude record of 38,704 feet established by Lieut. John A. Macready in a La-Pere airplane in the summer of 1926.

A painstaking calculation of weights, gas lifts, rates of ascent and other considerations with which a balloonist deals every time he leaves the ground had convinced him that he could even surpass his mark of 42,470 feet, set last spring.

For his last flight Gray had determined that he was going to smash the record and set a new official mark, and he had told brother officers that barring the probability of an absolutely destructive rate of descent he was going to stick to his balloon until it landed.



The Friez barograph.

"THE barographs will do the rest," he had said, and the other flyers knew that he meant that the barographs would keep his record in such certain terms that his record must be declared official. It was the instrument, then, upon which he placed all his reliance.

All instruments used by aviators to show the altitude at which aircraft fly are operated by atmospheric pressure. On the ground, at sea level, the weight of the atmosphere exerts a pressure of 14¼ pounds to the square inch and the human body is constructed to withstand such a pressure.

Indeed everything, by the very nature of things, must be so constructed as to withstand atmospheric pressure. The air pressure within a building bolsters up the windows and walls against collapse from the pressure outside. The water in the conduit exerts a force which keeps the pipe from caving in under atmospheric pressure. In the absence of internal pressure to counteract that exerted by the atmosphere, only sturdy construction keeps an object like an electric bulb—which houses an approximate vacuum—from caving in.

Realizing that the pressure of the atmosphere becomes less and less as a balloon or airplane goes upward—until at 44,000 feet it is only 15 per cent of the pressure at sea level—the makers of altitude recorders have recognized it as the only practical means of measuring height.

Accordingly the central component in a barograph is an object shaped like a small, condensed milk can and constructed of soft metal. From the can the air is expelled and without the support of the pressure exerted by the air within, it folds up. To adapt the can to recording with accuracy, it is so made that it folds symmetrically, like a concertina, so that on the ground it has the appearance, to quote a wartime flying teacher, "of a can that has been stepped on by a horse."

AS THE can is carried upward, however, the outer pressure becomes less and the spring of the metal tends to bring the can back to its original shape, so that at an altitude of say 50,000 feet, the rarefied atmosphere will no longer exert enough pressure to flatten it at all.

After that principle had been established it was easy to adapt the can to the work of altitude recording. A lever was fixed to its top. While the can was still flattened out, at sea-level, the hand at the end of the lever was fitted to a dial, and the point at which it then stood was marked zero.

As the rudimentary instrument was taken to a known altitude of 1000 feet, on a mountain side, for example, the can began to expand under lessened atmospheric pressure. The hand moved along the dial and at the point where it came to rest the figure "1000" was marked. Since the atmospheric pressure decreases at a constant rate it was then possible to mark off the remainder of the dial on proportionate sections and the instrument was complete.

That is, roughly, the manner in which the altimeter, the younger brother of the barograph, is made. On the instrument board of every airplane it records the altitude at which the ship is flying. But it keeps no permanent record and for that function the barograph was made.

Utilizing the principle of the altimeter, the maker of the barograph changed the hand to a needle, with a pen point at its end. Instead of marking out a dial for the needle it brought it to bear on a chart, graduated like the original dial, and on the chart the needle marked its height record. As a final refinement he changed the chart from a flat surface to a revolving cylinder, turned by fine clockwork, so that not only does the modern barograph tell to what height a flyer reached but what time of day he got there.

Because barographs are limited in the altitudes they are capable of recording, Captain Gray took two, one to register his ascent from the level of the earth to 19,000 feet and the other from 15,000 to 50,000 feet. Immediately after his body was taken from the basket of the balloon at Sparta, Tennessee, where it landed after he died, the barographs were taken in charge by a Scott Field officer and taken to Washington.

THERE the instruments were tested by the Bureau of Standards for accuracy. Since Captain Gray took off from Scott Field, which is about 560 feet above sea level, that amount was subtracted from his altitude figure to bring the record down to terms of feet above sea level. The certified report of the Bureau of Standards and the supporting data including statements by Maj. Albert Bond Lambert, referee of the flight, are now to be forwarded to the Federation Aeronautique Internationale, aviation's official record body, for verification.

Besides the barographs Captain Gray took only such other instruments as he needed for his own guidance. Included were a thermometer, an altimeter to show him his altitude at a glance, and a statiscope, with which he was able to judge his rate of ascent. But it was upon the barographs he placed all his reliance for the story of his flight. Upon the faint line traced on their faces by the tiny needle rests his claim for a place on aviation's roll of pioneers.

"Wait! I have something to tell you."

"To what end, Fraulein?"

Her lips quivered. "To prove you are an American officer," she said in English.

"Is this a joke?"

"You set out from Bourmont yesterday morning. Major Borden brought you up to Avesnes-le-Comte. You were carried over our lines by Flight Lieutenant Colbridge."

"Perfectly true." Von Kedor recovered his sang-froid. "All this is known to Baron von Rogge."

"Certainly. But there is something he doesn't know—yet." There was an unmistakable sympathy in her tone that bothered him. "It is this: When we sent Jules Faiveres through the lines three weeks ago, he delivered to the enemy certain information that enabled the Americans to capture Chateau-Thierry."

"There—there must be some mistake."

SHE smiled at him. "Shall I acquaint them of it, Captain Sinclair? Shall I tell them that in 1914 you were studying in Munich under the name Von Kedor—your mother's name—and that, on the outbreak of the war, you very mysteriously disappeared? Shall I tell them that your father is Justin Sinclair of New York City? Shall I make known to them that one year ago—to be precise, the fifteenth of September, 1917—you made your appearance in Riga, commissioned in the German army?"

His mouth was dry. "Who are you?" he whispered.

Again she smiled. "Now what have you to say?"

Somehow—although he couldn't tell why—it seemed like a challenge to him.

"Nothing."

She nodded. "You are a brave man, Captain Sinclair. I admire bravery. I heard of you long ago. I wanted to see you—alone. But, until tonight, when Von Rogge gave me this opportunity, I never had the chance to tell you how versed I am in your personal history. I assure you, Captain Sinclair, I know far more than they suspect."

"And when do you intend to give them this information about me?"

"Tomorrow morning," she said, with curious warning. "But before then—if you are wise—you will be elsewhere. I think there is someone in Antwerp who has been kind to you—once or twice."

SO THAT was it. She wanted him to commit himself. Von Kedor suddenly laughed. "Anything more?" he inquired lightly.

"Only this. If you remain in Brussels an hour longer, you will be shot."

"And you wish to save me that ignominy?"

"I do."

Her tone, the expression in her eyes, continued to puzzle him.

"Why?" he asked.

"Who shall say? Perhaps—though I am German to the core—I am yet too womanly, too susceptible, not to help you escape the most tragic of all ends: death. "Besides," she added very softly, "I should like to dream of seeing Captain Sinclair again—after the war."

She gave him her hand and, in a whisper that scarcely reached his ears, said: "God protect you."

Four days later a haggard, unshaven man was dragged from the hold of a Dutch steamer in the Thames. He was frantic in his desire to communicate with American headquarters, and the secret service men believed his story to the extent of taking him over to Bourmont by airplane.

Colonel Talbat, though frankly skeptical, immediately got in touch with the British.

"From whom did you get this information?" he asked.

"From Bertram."

"In Brussels?"

"Yes, sir."

"Then you delivered the plans of that gun—and the details of our proposed attack on Dormans."

"I did. They discovered the plans were phony, but I believe they still expect us to come through on Dormans."

"Captain Sinclair"—Colonel Talbat's tone was austere—in his hand he held a telegram—"there seems to be some doubt as to your true identity."

"Mine?"

"Here is a telegram. It came today from the French authorities in Paris. They have asked us to place you under arrest."

"Arrest?"

"On the charge that you are better known to them as Lieutenant von Kedor."

Sinclair grinned. "Poetic justice," he said bitterly. "Send for Major Borden. He knows all about me and can prove it to your satisfaction—and to the French authorities."

"I regret to inform you," the Colonel said, "that Major Borden was killed yesterday morning."

THE American troops made no attack on Dormans. But the Germans tried to come through at Nogent and were severely repulsed. Possibly this defeat hurried the end. For the Stars and Stripes swept over Mont Blanc, the Canadians broke through to Valenciennes, and along the western front the enemy was everywhere in disorder. The armistice ended hostilities.

But Sinclair was held under arrest. Then, one day, he was taken to Paris and conveyed to the Hotel de Ville. A short, middle-aged man received him in one of the antechambers. He wore a Marshal's uniform.

"In the name of France," said the Marshal, "I am commissioned to decorate Captain Basil Sinclair of the American forces. I present him with this token of our admiration for his conspicuous bravery, his inestimable services to our cause in the field."

Pinning the decoration on his breast, the Marshal saluted. "I am also authorized to offer you an apology, Captain Sinclair, for all the inconveniences of your late detention. The order came from someone who, by unparalleled courage and sacrifice, contributed most vitally to the victorious conclusion of our campaign.

"The person I refer to is waiting to make apologies. I only hope that any indignity you have suffered will be alleviated by what will be said to you."

A DOOR opened, and, to his utter bewilderment, Sinclair found himself gazing at Claire Munter!

"Permit me," said the Marshal, "to introduce you to Mademoiselle Claire Revelle—a famous Parisian actress—who has been too long absent from our midst." He was smiling. "But I see that you have met her before."

Suggesting the awful strain she had been under, there were depressions in her cheeks; the soft gray eyes were sad and grave, having continuously faced death. Withal, she was most lovely to look upon.

"You!" gasped Sinclair.

"None other."

"But—but how did you manage to make them believe you were Fraulein Munter?"

"Ah!" A wise little smile lit the pale beauty of her face. "That," she said, "must never be told."

"And it was you who ordered my arrest?"

"I'm afraid it was."

"Will you tell me why?"

"You were getting a trifle too reckless. Besides—as I once told you—I had a desire to . . . to see you again." . . .

Don't Ignore Acid Scalp!

We have all been too close to people whose hair had a noticeable odor. It is due to an acidity that soap and water are powerless to prevent. You may not have acid scalp. Or you may have it and not know it. But dandruff should make you suspicious, and hair that "strings" is a sure sign.

When hair has a dull, "dead" look after curling—and the wave is all out a few hours after use of the iron—it is time to use Danderine. Just a few drops of this highly scientific preparation will check acidity, and give your hair such lovely softness that dressing it will be a delight. It will arrange easily, and stay as you arrange it. Every particle of scale will be dissolved. It makes an amazing difference. And for only thirty-five cents, your druggist will give you a bottle of Danderine that will last for weeks!

THE GAMBIA LAND CRAB WITH A VICTIM.
© Neville Kingston and reproduced by permission of the London Sphere.

PATIENT photographers, prying into little known phases of life, have recently succeeded in getting "close-ups" of animals and insects in some grotesque new poses, attitudes of hate and love, metamorphosis and death.

Using lenses that magnify many times and often waiting for hours to get the "shot" they want, they are disclosing phenomena which have hitherto been known only through the descriptions of naturalists. Several of these photographs, the work of English photographers, are shown on this page.

One of the most remarkable is that showing two wood ants in a battle to the death, taken by A. E. Smith and exhibited recently at the Royal Photographic Society's exhibition. The bodies of the two ants, looking like armored steel engines, are interlocked in a struggle that can only end in death for one or the other, apparently for the ant that is prone beneath the onslaught of his adversary.

Maurice Maeterlinck, author and naturalist, has described these battles of the ants. They fight, Maeterlinck says, with their pincers which are like the claws of lobsters. All the members of the wood ant family, along with other species, are equipped for combat. They differ, in this respect, from the termites, or white ants. The white ants have developed two types of citizens—the worker and the soldier.

The workers are absolutely helpless and must be guarded by the soldiers. These latter, produced from the same kind of eggs, as far as the eye can tell, as the workers, are revealed under the microscope as nightmarish monsters with armored heads and pincers that exceed in bulk the rest of the body. The pincers are so heavy and so cumbersome that the insect is incapable of eating and has to be fed by the workers.

One family of termites, the Eutermes, has even more fantastic soldiers. They are called syringe termites, taking their name from the fact that where their head should be is a huge apparatus exactly like the injection-bulb of an atomizer. By means of this bulb they are able to spray out a sticky liquid upon their advancing enemies which completely paralyzes them.

The white ant and the wood ant are enemies of long standing. The wood ants try to invade the mound cities that the white ants have built up. The soldiers are placed on guard while the workers go on about their business. Usually a battle follows, just outside the city, with many such individual skirmishes as shown in the photograph.

That the crayfish can literally jump out of his shell is shown in another photograph on this page. Here this small crab is just beginning the process of shedding his old armor, preparatory to growing a new coat of mail. The crayfish lies on its back and with great energy attempts to detach the tissue connecting the shell of the breastplates and tail. When this has been accomplished he is able to creep out of his old shell to a quiet spot where he remains absolutely motionless for the ten days required to build up a new shell.

There are two types of crayfish, the large and the small. The smaller variety is found in great numbers in the Middle West along streams and rivers. Boys, who are fond of running them down among the rocks of the bank in which they seek shelter, call them "craw-daddies." Their discarded shells, too, are often found.

Another form of land crab, the gambia, much more sinister-looking than the crayfish, is shown just having caught a mouse in its powerful claws. The mouse is the natural prey of the gambia. The gambia remains as if dead, watching with its telescopic eyes which are raised from the head like periscopes, until a mouse comes within range, when it strikes with the speed of light and certain death.

Snakes are known to be fond of eggs. The photograph on this page illustrates the remarkable ability they have to distend their bodies many times their normal size. The snake has just swallowed an egg in this instance. Travelers in India report having seen pythons and other large snakes swallow whole deer. The jaws of the snake are not fixed in a hinge-like arrangement like the human jaw, for example, but are so constructed as to become unhooked, as it were, permitting the greatest possible distention.

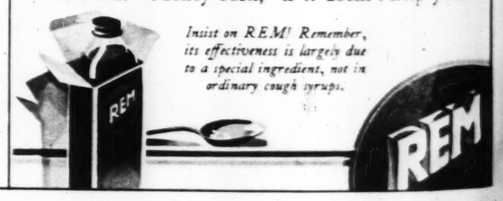
ROYAL PATENT CAKE FLOUR
"Bakes Like Magic"
USE IT FOR EVERYTHING GOOD TO EAT

Mr. E. M. Merchant of 665 43rd St., Louisville, Ky. is one of the champion horseshoe pitchers of the country. Here he tells how REM made a perfect score against his cough.

REM scores a "ringer"
for Champion Horseshoe Pitcher

"I was recently laid up for a week with a bad cold and a cough that I got travelling around pitching horseshoes," says Mr. Merchant. "I do that a lot for I was Kentucky's Ringer Champion in 1924. One Sunday morning I noticed a REM ad in the paper and decided I'd try it, for what I had been using hadn't helped me any. It proved to be the best cough medicine I'd ever used. By the time I'd taken two doses, my cough was considerably better. Before long it was entirely gone."

Grateful users recommend REM. It's different. It clings to your throat, soothes the irritation and quiets the cough. Pleasant to take and perfectly harmless. "Money back," if it doesn't help you.



Insist on REM! Remember, its effectiveness is largely due to a special ingredient, not in ordinary cough syrups.

A EUGÈNE WAVE

Waved again and again.....yet never waved over

As soon as your permanent wave begins to grow out, your hair is readily re-waved—by The Eugène Method. For the gentle Eugène Method is selective. It permanently waves the new straight hair without waving over the old.

Thus a Eugène Re-Wave is not a double wave—it is a matched new wave, strictly confined to the new straight hair.

You will find that it pays to pay the slightly higher price for Eugène perfection in permanent waving. Our booklet "The Eugène Method" tells the whole story. We will gladly send it to you, together with the names of accredited Eugène Wavers in your city.

Now—for a good night's Sleep

The kind that makes you wake up feeling fresh and full of energy . . . Make this 3-day test and see

Tonight—you can get 8 hours of solid sleep—without the use of drugs. Tomorrow—you should awaken abounding with new-found vigor.

Drugs, even though they put you to sleep, always leave you "logy" and muddled when you awaken. You never feel refreshed.

But no matter how sleepless your nights have been in the past, there is no need for drugs today. For a Swiss scientist has developed a pure food-beverage called Ovaltine that gives you sound, restful sleep in a natural way. The special food properties restore your tired mind and body as you sleep. You don't wake up feeling "logy."

Morning finds you a new man. Fresh, clear-eyed, buoyant. You have the energy to carry you right through the day and into the evening.

We offer you here a 3-day test. We want you to prove what we claim. Note, especially, how good you feel when you awaken in the morning.

Why Ovaltine brings restoring sleep

FIRST—It digests very quickly. Even in cases of impaired digestion.

SECOND—It supplies your system with certain health-building essentials which are often missing from your daily fare. One cup of Ovaltine has actually more food value than 12 cups of beef extract.

THIRD—Ovaltine has the unusual power of digesting 4 to 5 times its own weight of other foods you eat. Hence digestion goes on speedily and efficiently. As a result frayed nerves are soothed because digestive unrest, the main cause of sleeplessness, is overcome.

This is why, when taken at night, a cup of hot Ovaltine brings sound restoring sleep in a natural way.

Hospitals and Doctors recommend it

Ovaltine is a delightful pure food-drink. It contains no drugs. It is the special food properties of Ovaltine—and absolutely nothing else—that bring its wonderful results and popularity. In use in Switzerland for over 30 years. Now in universal use in England and her colonies. During the great war it was served as a standard ration to invalid soldiers.

A few years ago Ovaltine was introduced into this country. Today hundreds of hospitals use it. More than 20,000 doctors recommend it. Not only for sleeplessness, but because of its special dietetic properties, they also recommend it for nerve-strain, malnutrition, backward children, nursing mothers and the aged.

Just make a 3-day test of Ovaltine. Note the difference, not only in your sleep, but in your next day's energy. You tackle your work with greater vigor. You "carry through" for the whole day. You aren't too tired to go out for the evening. There's a new zest to your work; to all your daily activities. It's truly a "pick-up" drink—for any time of day.

A 3-day test

All druggists sell Ovaltine in 4 sizes for home use. Or they can mix it for you at the soda fountain. But to let you try it we will send a 3-day introductory package for 10c, to cover cost of packing and mailing. Just send in coupon with 10c.

DOCTORS say, "Eat heartily, eat a variety—but keep yourself 'regularized'"

FILET MIGNON—creamy potatoes—Russian dressing on your salad—chocolate parfait to finish . . .

These rich concentrated foods you like are not poison. They provide excellent nourishment and energy.

But how will you get rid of the waste from them? Cabbage, carrots, spinach at each meal? Every housewife knows how unpopular they are. And yet they must be eaten in huge quantities to have any decided laxative effect.

Cathartics? A temporary help but never a cure. Exhausting and dangerous to use daily.

Modern doctors are meeting the problem. Not with any medicine, but with a corrective food. Today physicians all over the country are successfully prescribing fresh yeast to provide the elements civilized diet lacks. To keep your system clean and active, so that it can eliminate waste completely.

As fresh as any vegetable from the garden, yeast actually decreases the number of harmful bacteria which are the result of a diet of rich, constipating foods. The daily absorption of poisons is prevented. The muscles which control the elimination of waste are gradually strengthened. Elimination becomes regular, more complete.

You will be amazed at the difference this simple corrective food makes in your skin, in your daily health, in your whole outlook on life.

Eat three cakes regularly every day, one before each meal or between meals. Plain, in water or any way you prefer. For stubborn constipation dissolve one cake in hot water (not scalding) before meals and at bedtime. Dangerous cathartics will gradually become unnecessary.

You can get Fleischmann's Yeast at any grocer's. Buy 2 or 3 days' supply at a time and keep in any cool, dry place. Send for a free copy of our latest booklet on Yeast in the diet. Address Health Research Department, N-947, The Fleischmann Company, 701 Washington Street, New York City.

San Francisco, Calif.

"Certain things I ate invariably upset me. For fully a year I had suffered regularly from indigestion and heartburn. Medicines didn't help a bit. Then, one day, I read about Fleischmann's Yeast and began to eat it every day. In a short time I was entirely relieved of my indigestion and heartburn. Today I can eat anything I want."

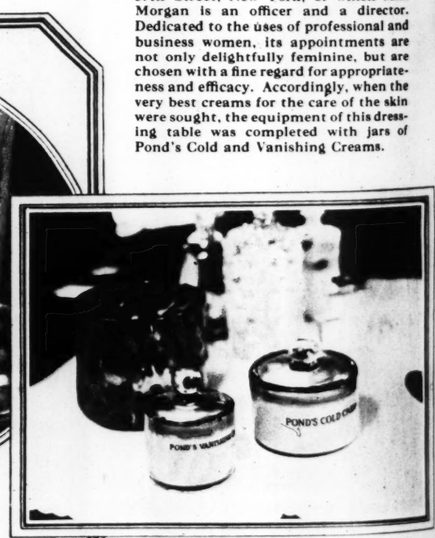
LADY LOUIS MOUNTBATTEN'S CHOICE
This beautiful young gentlewoman, one of England's greatest heiresses and a member of the British Royal Family, has chosen a dressing table of Sheraton design with a mirror mounted in black leather. To the gleam of gold-topped perfume bottles and the cloudy amber of her toilet set, a pair of jade green glass jars adds a dash of bright color. These jars, which hold Lady Louis's favorite creams, were presented to her by the Pond's Extract Company.

GLIMPSES OF FAMOUS DRESSING TABLES

A DRESSING TABLE TO MISS ANNE MORGAN'S TASTE
designed for the new clubhouse of the American Woman's Association, on West 57th Street, New York, of which Miss Morgan is an officer and a director. Dedicated to the uses of professional and business women, its appointments are not only delightfully feminine, but are chosen with a fine regard for appropriateness and efficacy. Accordingly, when the very best creams for the care of the skin were sought, the equipment of this dressing table was completed with jars of Pond's Cold and Vanishing Creams.

MRS. W. K. VANDERBILT'S POUDREUSE
In a delightful dressing room for her guests Mrs. Vanderbilt places a tiny, Louis Seize poudreuse, old Chinese porcelains, antique painted powder boxes. These accessories, with twin glass jars containing Pond's Cold and Vanishing Creams, complete an exquisite ensemble for giving one's toilette the last perfecting touch before one dines with Mrs. Vanderbilt.



THE DRESSING TABLE OF THE COUNTESS OF OXFORD AND ASQUITH
The extraordinary "Margot," wife of the former Premier of Great Britain, lives a life as full as a man's of activity and interests. So she chooses for her dressing table only those toilet articles that are essential to her daily needs—old perfume bottles of exquisitely cut glass, a powder box of tortoise shell, and glass jars of Pond's Two Creams which, the Countess says, she has used "for years and years."

MRS. RICHARD P. DAVIDSON'S SILK DRAPED DRESSING TABLE
This lovely granddaughter of the late Mark Hanna of Ohio, is a favorite in smart society of Washington where her husband's family has been prominent for generations. Her dressing table, exquisite in old rose and pale green taffeta, boasts slender lamps of green glass and jade green jars of Pond's Two Creams. Mrs. Davidson wrote the Pond's Extract Company:—"Pond's Creams aren't new to me, but in these lovely jars they're fascinating!"

PERFECTLY DELICIOUS to touch, exquisitely fragrant, the Two Creams prepared by Pond's are preferred by society women everywhere for the care of their skin. Their use is simple—yet it must be pursued carefully, daily—for the excellent effect these Creams are capable of!

THE COLD CREAM, as light and frothy as the crest of a wave, is for cleansing. Apply generously with up-and-out strokes, before retiring and during the day, if one has been out in dust-laden air. Wipe off with soft tissues. Repeat. Finish with cold water to close the pores.

For a dry skin, a little fresh Cream left on overnight will restore suppleness.

THE VANISHING CREAM serves a double purpose. It gives an enchanting finish to your skin. It makes your powder cling and lie smooth. Though some prefer to face the world with the soft even tone of the Vanishing Cream alone.

Furthermore, it protects the skin delightfully, preventing irritation from wind and dust and frosty air.
